TELLS OF INSURANCE MURDERS

TERRY Y. LANGFORD
Hired Killer

Confessed Hit-Man Testifies He Plotted With 2 Agents Held In Slayings Here

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

Brenda Freeman, her young son, Johnny, and Audrey Bridgewater Walker were murdered for $24,000 worth of life insurance policies on two of the victims, the confessed killer of the three testified yesterday.

Testifying was Terry Young Langford, 23, of 384 Brunson, Benton Harbor. Admitting that he could be called a "hired killer," Langford told how he plotted the ditch murders with two insurance men who he said had written policies on the Freeman boy and the Walker woman.

And when the two agents' supervisor became suspicious about the Freeman murders and the Walker policy, Langford tried to kill the supervisor, according to Langford's testimony. However, the man escaped and testified yesterday.

Langford was the main witness in two preliminary examinations in Berrien Fifth District court. Bound over to Circuit court following the examinations yesterday were Lorenzo Cross, 25, of 1905 South Union, Benton township, and Johnny Dortch, 27, of 148 North Crystal, Benton township.

Cross is charged with open murder in connection with the Feb. 18 killing of Audrey Bridgewater Walker, 26, of 239 Pipestone, Benton Harbor. Her body was found in a ditch along Yore avenue, Sodus township.

Dortch is charged with open murder in connection with the shotgun slaying of his allegedly illegitimate son, Johnny Freeman, 7, and the boy's mother, Brenda Freeman, 26, of 588 Colfax, Benton Harbor.

Their bodies were found in a ditch along Black Lake road, Pipestone township, on Sept. 27, 1974.

Although Langford testified yesterday that he committed all of the murders alone, his testimony indicated that the insurance men were themselves principals in the planning of the killings, said District Judge Leo Cook, who bound the men over.

Langford, himself charged with first degree murder in connection with the Walker killing, testified against his former "partners" as a part of a deal between him and the prosecutor's office.

Robert McDowell, chief assistant prosecutor, told the Judge yesterday that in exchange for "truthful testimony" Langford will be allowed to plead guilty to second degree murder. The prosecutor will request a sentence of from 20 to 40 years when Langford is sentenced. And he has been given immunity from further prosecution in connection with the killings.

According to Langford's testimony during both preliminary examinations he and the defendants, both agents for Western-Southern Life Insurance company, had a part in all of the killings.

The entire business began, Langford testified, "When I came home from prison (in the summer of 1974) and Johnny Dortch came to me and said he wanted to have a little boy taken out." "Taken out" means killed, he explained.

"You mean to say you are a hired murderer?" asked Stephen Small, attorney for Lorenzo Cross.

"Yes, you could say that," the short, muscular Langford answered.

Langford said the boy was identified by Dortch as Dortch's seven-year-old son, Johnny Freeman. Testimony by Paul Wright, district sales manager for Western-Southern, showed that Dortch wrote a $5,000 policy, with triple indemnity clause, for the boy in early 1974.

After the death of the boy, Dortch was paid $15,000 on the policy, Wright testified.

Langford said that first talk with Dortch was arranged by Cross because Dortch was looking for someone "kinda strong and hard." "He (Dortch) said he wanted me to kill Johnny but not Brenda," Lang-

Senate Probe Of Sub Lift Unlikely

By MIKE SHANAHAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional committees investigating the Central Intelligence Agency show little interest in opening full-scale inquiries into the partial recovery of a Soviet submarine from the bottom of the Pacific Ocean.

Public disclosure of last summer's highly classified operation raised few questions about the legality of the CIA's attempts to raise the diesel-powered sub.

Deep sea salvage operations in search of another nation's sunken vessels are acceptable under international law once the ship is given up for lost.

Meanwhile, NBC-TV said American and British forces once recovered electronic gear from a Soviet aircraft which crashed in the North Sea and American personnel recovered electronic equipment from a sunken Soviet vessel in the Sea of Japan and a nuclear weapon from a Russian airplane that crashed in the Sea of Japan.

The publicity focused on the Soviet sub operation made it seem likely that plans to go back for the most valuable items, believed still on the ocean floor, would be abandoned. About one-third of the vessel was raised, but this did not include communications codes and atomic warhead missiles, military sources said.

The submarine was found to be in four or five pieces on the ocean floor, according to today's Washington Post. The Post reported that one unnamed source said the portion of the submarine successfully recovered included part of the conning tower where the submarine's missiles were housed. The newspaper said this indicated that at least one of the nuclear missile warheads may have been salvaged.

The Soviet G-class submarine went down in 1968 in 16,000-feet of water about 750 miles northwest of Oahu, Hawaii, with the loss of 70 men.

The recovery operation was carried out by the Glomar Explorer, a salvage ship built for the project by billionaire Howard Hughes.

The Glomar Explorer, an expensively equipped 618-foot recovery vessel, is berthed in a private dock in Long Beach, Calif. A huge barge also used in the project and capable of going underwater to insure secrecy is in port at Redwood City, Calif.

The Redwood City fire marshal said he wants to make a safety inspection of the barge. "If they've been fooling around with nuclear warheads, I don't want to take any chances that anything might happen while the barge is moored here," said Fire Marshal George Aaves.

Bell Asks Charge For Info

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan Bell is asking the state to okay a plan which would force customers to pay a 20-cent charge for each of more than three calls placed monthly to the firm's Information operator.

Bell petitioned the Public Service Commission for approval of the charges on Wednesday, claiming that the majority of its customers are subsidizing the $22 million service for heavy users.

It is the second time around for the Information-charging scheme. Michigan Bell's February 1973 request was rejected by the PSC.

Bell claims the average customer makes only 10 calls to Information each year for numbers which are not listed in the phone book, and that 80 per cent of all Information requests are for listed numbers.

Extra charges would not be extended on Information calls to areas outside the "home" calling area, nor to calls from

Suspect Says He Pumped Shot Into Wounded Govatos

By SCOTT WILLIMANSON
Staff Writer

The key prosecution witness in the George Lacy, Jr., murder trial testified yesterday that both he and Lacy shot John Govatos at the Oasis party store.

Testifying under a promise that he wouldn't be prosecuted on a first-degree murder charge, Donnie Marshall told the jury he and Lacy each shot Govatos with a .38 revolver Jan. 4 at Govatos' party store in Hagar township.

Marshall's testimony came during the sixth-day of the trial in Berrien Circuit Judge Julian E. Hughes' court. Marshall was the last witness called to the stand by Berrien Prosecutor John A. Smietanka.

Lacy, 22, of 524 Whitcomb court, Benton Harbor, is on trial on a first-degree murder charge in connection with Govatos' death.

Marshall also is charged with first degree murder in the case, but Smietanka indicated that Marshall, in exchange for his testimony, will be permitted to plead guilty to second degree murder.

Under questioning from Smietanka, the 21-year-old Marshall, of 169 Bellview, Benton Harbor, said both he and Lacy were in the Oasis with Govatos. Then:

Marshall: "I grabbed the money."

Smietanka: "What then?"

Marshall: "That's when . . ."

Smietanka: "What?"

Marshall: "Then's when I shot him."

Between the prosecutor's question and Marshall's last response there was nearly dead silence in the courtroom. Marshall, fidgeting in the witness chair, was silent for almost a half-minute before responding, nearly inaudibly.

Marshall said Lacy and Govatos went into a back room of the Oasis about 11 p.m., and Marshall stood near a magazine rack in the store.

"I heard a shot and got scared. I thought (Govatos) shot Lacy." He said he went into the back room, saw Govatos on the floor and Lacy standing up. He testified he also saw money in a bag atop the safe.

"When I seen the money on the thing he (Lacy) told me I better shoot him (Govatos) because we were both in it together."

Smietanka: "Did you shoot him?"

Marshall: "Yeah."

Smietanka: "How many times?"

Marshall: "One."

Smietanka asked Marshall about how Govatos appeared when he (Marshall) first entered the back room. "Was Mr. Govatos moving?"

Smietanka: "What part did you shoot at?"

Marshall: "I don't know. I gave the gun back to Lacy and left out of there."

Marshall said he got into a taxi he and Lacy had outside the Oasis. He testified Lacy was in the store another "four or five minutes," then Lacy came out,

Decatur Girl, 13, Is Fire Heroine

DECATUR — Firemen here said a 13-year-old girl led her three younger sisters and a brother to safety when their rented home caught fire last night.

Fire Chief Chester Tortorelli said a faulty wall furnace apparently started the blaze which destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Robinson on New Swamp road, two miles south of Decatur.

He said the children were alone when the fire broke out about 8 p.m. and that Norma Jean Robinson, 13, led her two-year-old, out of the house before calling the fire department from a neighbor's home.

The mother, Mrs. James Robinson, had been at Lake View Community hospital in Paw Paw visiting her husband who is a patient there, the chief said.

None of the children were injured, the chief said.

Tortorelli said Mrs. Robinson returned home while firemen were fighting the blaze and tried to enter the home, apparently to save some clothing. She was taken to Lake View Community hospital because of smoke inhalation and shock. She was reported in "stable" condition today. Her husband, a heart patient at the hospital, is also reported in stable condition, hospital officials said.

Firemen's wives have started a drive to collect clothing for the Robinson children who are staying with relatives, Tortorelli said.

He said the Robinson family lost all its belongings and had no insurance.

He estimated the damage to the old, two-story home, and its contents, at $6,500 to $7,500.

Senate Works Overtime On Tax Boost

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Senate has scheduled a rare Friday session in hopes of discussing Gov. William Milliken's proposed income tax increase and possibly alternative tax measures of its own.

The Senate Taxation Committee is slated to meet today to begin consideration of the income tax hike, which cleared the House last week. It would raise the personal income tax from 3.9 per cent to 4.6 per cent.

Meanwhile, leading Democrats are examining a "blend" of taxes with the view of reducing the income tax hike needed. The outcome of these studies, and their reception by Senate Republicans, the House and Milliken himself, is still uncertain. Senate Majority Leader William Fitzgerald, D-Detroit, indicated Wednesday that he is optimistic about finding other tax alternatives.

Even if other revenue-producing tax proposals are approved, many lawmakers are doubtful they would raise enough money to enable the legislature to lower significantly the income tax increase.

Sen. John Bowman, D-Roseville, chairman of the taxation committee, revealed Wednesday he is considering a bill which would lower property tax assessments as a trade-off for the income tax hike. His proposal would reduce local assessments from 50 per cent of true cash value to 45 per cent in one-per-cent reductions over five years.

Bowman's home district in Macomb County has been feeling the pinch of swiftly increasing property taxes as the mainly blue-collar area expands and develops rapidly. Bowman also has supported bills to freeze equalized valuations for four-year stretches, but that legislation is in trouble.

Similar proposals to lower property tax assessments have been made before, but have never won much support. Bowman said he was trying to determine if the idea has more support now—especially in the House.

Bowman's committee also is considering reducing the income tax credit on business inventories, a proposal which may stand a better chance.

With Senate leaders obviously hoping the income tax bill will be approved in committee today, Bowman said: "I'm not sure how many votes I've got for it." And he said neither he nor the governor's staff knows whether the seven-tenths of a per cent hike will be enough to balance next year's books.

The move to hold a session Friday brought yowls of irritation from some Senate members, who protested the late notice. At least five promptly asked for excuses from the meeting, nearly insuring there won't be a final vote that day.

"I'd much rather have them on notice than to have the bills come out and not have them here," said Fitzgerald, who set the Friday session. He added he would advocate postponing next week's Easter recess, if needed, to take final action on the tax increase.

The legislature is hoping to give the tax measure final approval by next Wednesday, when lawmakers go on an extended vacation until April 7. Milliken wants the bill by April 1, so it can take effect a month later.

Biggie Delivered On The Big Job

While even his greatest admirers would never rate Dr. John C. Hannah as a great scholar, they and his most severe adversaries agree he is a front ranking Had he not chosen agriculture and teaching for a career, he would have fitted equally well into running a General Motors, the Presidency or any other assignment requiring vision and administrative ability.

As it was, he elected to start out in what some decades ago was known as the Michigan Agricultural College.

Eventually he became president of the East Lansing campus after it had been renamed Michigan State College.

Before World War II had wound down, Hannah was one of the first educators to anticipate a GI enrollment flood and he moved as quickly as wartime regulations would permit to provide the housing needs which that enrollment would create.

Early in his administration, he foresaw the need to expand MSC's tutorial output of farmers, engineers and school teachers into other learning fields.

Another necessity was to eradicate the MSC image of being a cow college.

His solution for that problem was to lure Clarence "Biggie" Munn from Syracuse University to coach the East Lansing football team.

Biggie took the ball in 1947.

His first three seasons improved greatly over the Green and White's annual average in years past and midway during the 1950 schedule his teams started off a consecutive winning margin of 28 games, the best in the school's history and one which few other aggregations can match.

The climax in his coaching career was Michigan State's first appearance in the Rose Bowl where on New Year's Day of 1954, it downed UCLA, 28-20.

Two weeks later, Biggie was elevated to athletic director, replacing Ralph Young who had reached retirement age.

When he came to the campus, full attendance in an aged, 27,000-seat stadium was a rarity.

The stadium was expanded, doubling capacity, and has been enlarged again. Ticket scalping for certain home games is the accepted thing.

Contrary to some apprehension that Biggie would concentrate all effort on football, just the reverse has taken place. Michigan State is entered into 14 other sports, all of them admirably housed and equipped.

A stroke in 1971 forced Biggie to the sidelines and two days ago this bear of a man died.

The one flaw in his career was the distance between him and Duffy.

Needless as may have been the feud, it was the inevitable result of two high powered individuals thrown into the forefront of a situation and neither one minded to play second fiddle in the orchestra.

Hannah finally resolved the conflict by having Duffy report to Jack Breslin, the school's executive vice president.

This runs counter to all managerial precepts taught in a business administration school, but it did keep two good men on the job uppermost in Hannah's mind.

Again this is a tribute to Hannah. Uncle John as his devoted MSU alumni call him is a good Republican; but he was not above borrowing a leaf from FDR's book in World War II on keeping MacArthur and Eisenhower at work in their theatres of action.

Toward the end of his stint in the athletic directorship, murmurs of opposition to Biggie began to circulate in the nature of the old fire horse slowing down and the necessity to bring on new talent.

There may have been grains of truth in the complaint, but if so, it failed to recognize the build-up to the stroke which nearly killed him.

Most apparently the criticism gave no credit to Biggie carrying out the order to put Michigan State on the map.

Repairing The Gadgets Takes Ever More Money

Are costs of repairs for your car — or cars — TV and radio sets, other appliances and household equipment getting you down?

Chances are you're well aware that more and more of your income is going for such expenses — but isn't that to be expected? Don't you have many more things that can get out of order than you had a few years ago?

Our increased enjoyment of mechanical and electronic devices adds up to one thing — our standards of living are rising. We are spending many billions of dollars annually for repairs and maintenance of the gadgets that new standards have brought. Today's repair costs are about double what it cost to keep fewer appliances and other mechanical aids in operating shape a decade ago.

This is another example proving what everyone already knows by long experience — that machinery and methods for getting things done with less work do not mean fewer jobs. Gadgets that have become so much a part of modern life in the last decade have helped create the multi-billion-dollar repair industry.

We don't know whether that should, or should not, be considered a consolation.

Another Round

Washington may be gearing up for another turn-out-the-lights campaign. Deputy Federal Energy administrator Dennis W. Bakke told an architect and engineer seminar that 40 per cent of the energy used to light, heat and cool office buildings is wasted.

Citing studies he said proved that 50-foot-candles of light provide sufficient lighting for work areas — and considerably less is needed elsewhere — Bakke said lighting systems in new buildings typically emit between 75 and 150 foot-candles.

Federal office buildings, of which there is an abundance, would be a good place to begin the dimout.

APPLAUDS SJHS STUDENTS

Editor,

I would like to write in answer to an article that appeared in the paper several days ago from a parent, criticizing the high school and the young people that organized the busing of 18 year olds to register to vote

I agree if an 18 year old is old enough to vote, he should be able to get himself registered. However, a lot of them do not, the same as too many of our older adults. The point I would like to make is, I believe we should give credit to the young people of the student council that organized the voting registration program and to all the young people who volunteered to pass out literature on the school millage vote.

To me, instead of criticizing, we should be giving these young people a pat on the back! They are interested and concerned enough about their school and community to get out and do something to help. They realize they are fortunate to have such a good school system and want to keep it that way.

The responsibility and willingness on the part of the young people to do this, shows me that they are good citizens and trying to do what they can to help. I hate to see them put down for it.

I, for one, am very proud of all the young people of St. Joseph High School.

The pretty, brown-haired beauty completely captivated a national television audience and the 7,500 persons who jammed Mobile, Ala.'s, new municipal auditorium Friday night to see her crowned America's 1965 Junior Miss. How does it feel to win such a title? "Absolutely unbelievable," she beamed as she hugged her mother who appeared to be in complete agreement. Patrice's triumph Friday night was shared by 40 of her Lakeshore high school friends who held bake sales, washed cars and held other fund-raising activities and chartered a bus to travel more than 1,000 miles to see their classmate compete for the national title. Patrice is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gaunder. Her father is Eau Claire basketball coach.

Bill Would Bar Arab Oil Money

WASHINGTON — One of the more unfortunate bills of the season has been introduced into the Senate.

This is a legitimate concern. But the bill, entitled the Foreign Investment Act of 1975, goes after this problem in a way that can only be likened to hitting a fly sitting on a glass table with a sledge hammer mounted on an armored truck.

Most of its provisions would apply to such enterprises as bakeries, producers of canned soup, manufacturers of turpentine, children's toys and soft drinks as well as to crucial industries — providing only that the business involved had total assets exceeding $1 million. These days, with inflation being what it is, that includes a massive number of companies.

It would put tens of thousands of American companies to much red tape, searching out and reporting on the indirect as well as direct owners and beneficiaries of its stocks and their nationalities, American and foreign alike, small investors and large. This would involve learning the beneficial owners of stocks bought and held by investment companies, banks and other such. An almost impossible and dreadfully costly requirement.

It would open the owners of stock in most American public companies, including those who own a dozen or so shares, to a host of predators. The action, in fact, would be equivalent to making public the savings and checking accounts of every citizen, rich and poor. In this, the bill is unquestionably unconstitutional.

It would, by making public the holdings of every shareholder in most public companies, make it much easier for professional raiders to gain control of firms and strip them clean, leaving those who had not sold out early with greatly devalued certificates of ownership.

It would, by the red tape and publicity involved, discourage a considerable amount of that foreign investment which has served this country well. Those who have forgotten should look at the record, note how much of this country's economic base was established through strong inputs of money from abroad.

Many Americans decry the export of jobs resulting from large-scale investments abroad by U.S. concerns. Yet this action is detrimental to foreign holdings here which create jobs for Americans. Even when put into a running company, such inputs free other capital for establishing new or expanding old enterprises.

Added note: This bill would authorize the president to ban those foreign investments here he thought unwise, an arbitrary power certain to be abused by some future chief executive.

Make no mistake about it. There is justifiable concern that oil-rich Arabs and others could gain an undue say in Strategic American concerns to the detriment of national security. There is also the danger foreign owners of high-technology firms could pass on advanced company secret knowhow to potential enemies of this country.

But there are laws already on the books which prevent foreign interests from involvement in a U.S. company in any way which gives them access to military and diplomatic secret material. If these laws have loopholes, these can be specifically corrected.

If there are other fields where foreign ownership would be unwise in our national interest, let Congress specify them and provide the necessary legislation. It is quite possible to restrict the access of foreign owners to high-technology secrets without limiting their right to buy reasonable amounts of stock.

Liberalized Sex May Destroy Us

A conservative who expresses reservations about the so-called sexual revolution takes certain tactical risks, inviting the charge of prudishness if not some darker imputation.

A year or so ago, officials at Princeton University distributed to the students a sex education pamphlet put out by an outfit in Toronto, not noticing — or not caring if they did notice — that it was laced throughout with explicit Maoist Propaganda. When we at National Review delightedly brought all this to general attention, we received for our pains a lot of mail to the effect that, oh ho, we had revealed ourselves to be prudish and Victorian conservatives, skittish about sex.

Of course, the received attitude in society has pretty much come to be that sex is just another consumer product, to be enjoyed according to individual taste. Most legal inhabitions have long since been stripped away, and social sanctions are all but invisible. Publications like Oui, Penthouse, Playgirl and Screw go far beyond the — by comparison — rather prim Playboy, the originator of the genre. Nothing is banned in Boston any more, except Ron Ziegler. Only last week I received in the mail a pamphlet from, I kid you not, the Methodist Gay Caucus.

But this liberated attitude toward Eros, I note, is historically unique, and that is a fact worth reflecting upon. Every culture known to the historian or the anthropologist, including past Western culture, has regarded sex as something special, having peculiar significance, sacred sometimes, but also powerful and potentially dangerous.

All other cultures, except for our own liberal-secular one, have therefore surrounded sex with a variety of restrictions, customs, norms, rites, and so on, all testifying to the special status of sex among the passions, and all designed to confine it in one way or another as if to minimize a potential danger. As in the novels of D.H. Lawrence, sex has traditionally been regarded as a sort of dark god, powerful but unpredictable, and to be approached with caution.

Now no one is maintaining that irregualr sexual behavior of all kinds did not occur in the past. But some restraining influence was exerted by laws, moral assumptions, and public opinion. One cannot avoid the conclusion that in the wake of our so-called sexual revolution self-indulegence regardless of the cost to others has become much more widespread. Rather than being restrained by accepted attitudes, self-indulgence is actually encouraged by them.

Not surprisingly, perhaps, the consume-enjoy-whatever-the-consequences attitude manifests itself elsewhere. What do our huge Federal deficits actually mean except that we demand public expenditures and pass the bill on to posterity. Naturally, few if any politicians put the matter just that way, since posterity is not voting in the next election, and has no lobbies for high expenditures twisting arms in Congress.

Put more generally, the problem may be stated as follows: In the absence of the restraints upon appetite formerly supplied by religion and by traditional morality, is self-government possible and can the social fabric be maintained?

When we at National Review delightedly brought all this to general attention, we received for our pains a lot of mail to the effect that, oh ho, we had revealed ourselves to be prudish and Victorian conservatives, skittish about sex.

Of course, the received attitude in society has pretty much come to be that sex is just another consumer product, to be enjoyed according to individual taste. Most legal inhabitions have long since been stripped away, and social sanctions are all but invisible. Publications like Oui, Penthouse, Playgirl and Screw go far beyond the — by comparison — rather prim Playboy, the originator of the genre. Nothing is banned in Boston any more, except Ron Ziegler. Only last week I received in the mail a pamphlet from, I kid you not, the Methodist Gay Caucus.

But this liberated attitude toward Eros, I note, is historically unique, and that is a fact worth reflecting upon. Every culture known to the historian or the anthropologist, including past Western culture, has regarded sex as something special, having peculiar significance, sacred sometimes, but also powerful and potentially dangerous.

All other cultures, except for our own liberal-secular one, have therefore surrounded sex with a variety of restrictions, customs, norms, rites, and so on, all testifying to the special status of sex among the passions, and all designed to confine it in one way or another as if to minimize a potential danger. As in the novels of D.H. Lawrence, sex has traditionally been regarded as a sort of dark god, powerful but unpredictable, and to be approached with caution.

Now no one is maintaining that irregualr sexual behavior of all kinds did not occur in the past. But some restraining influence was exerted by laws, moral assumptions, and public opinion. One cannot avoid the conclusion that in the wake of our so-called sexual revolution self-indulegence regardless of the cost to others has become much more widespread. Rather than being restrained by accepted attitudes, self-indulgence is actually encouraged by them.

Not surprisingly, perhaps, the consume-enjoy-whatever-the-con sequences attitude manifests itself elsewhere. What do our huge Federal deficits actually mean except that we demand public expenditures and pass the bill on to posterity. Naturally, few if any politicians put the matter just that way, since posterity is not voting in the next election, and has no lobbies for high expenditures twisting arms in Congress.

Put more generally, the problem may be stated as follows: In the absence of the restraints upon appetite formerly supplied by religion and by traditional morality, is self-government possible and can the social fabric be maintained?

Suspects In Robberies Are Arrested

Three men have been arrested in connection with a series of armed robberies that occurred during the last two weeks in December, Berrien Metro Crime officers said.

Two of the men demanded examinations when arraigned Wednesday in Fifth District court. The third was to be arraigned today.

—Dec. 17 in front of a home at 368 Walnut avenue, Benton township. The victim, Leroy Lewis, was robbed of $238, then shot in the buttocks.

—Dec. 23 holdup at the Esquire lounge, 190 Territorial road, Benton Harbor. A total of $113 was stolen from the bar owned by Mrs. Valerie Leatz.

—Dec. 31 robbery at Kritt's grocery store, 440 East Main street, Benton Harbor. A total of $300 to $400 was stolen from the store. The store is now known as the Main Street Market.

Palmer was jailed in lieu of $75,000 total bond.

Also demanding examination on the Dec. 17 armed robbery charge was George W. Anderson, 57, of 426½ Territorial road, Benton Harbor. He was released on $1,500 bond.

Robert Earl Copeland, 30, of 875 Waukonda avenue, Benton Harbor, was arrested on charges of armed robbery of the Esquire lounge and Kritt's grocery store.

Don Jewell, commander of Metro Crime, said more arrests are expected. He said several other similar armed robberies occurred during the same period.

Jury Finds No Cause In Injury Suit

A two-day auto negligence trial in Berrien circuit court ended yesterday when the jury ruled the plaintiffs had no cause for action.

The jury ruled in favor of the defendant, Harold Peters, of Benton Harbor, and against the plaintiffs, Ruth and James Ricketts of Eau Claire.

The Ricketts sought $50,000 during the trial in Judge William S. White's court, claiming Mrs. Ricketts sustained a back injury as the result of an auto accident in February, 1973, at Napier avenue and M-140 in Bainbridge township. They claimed her car was stopped for a school bus when a car, driven by Peters, rammed into the rear of her vehicle.

Peters, however, maintained the injury was not a result of the accident. Opposing counsel were Atty. S. Jack Keller, of St. Joseph, representing the Ricketts, and Atty. Daniel Jameson, of Kalamazoo, representing Peters.

Plucky BH Cobbler Back After Near-Fatal Beating

By RALPH LUTZ
Staff Writer

There was encouragement from friends, but it had to be personal courage that put 70-year-old Cobbler Frank Forestieri back in business after the vicious robbery attack that left him near death a little over a year ago.

Forestieri has opened his shoe repair shop at 166 Pipestone street, in Benton Harbor's Fidelity building. The location for many years was occupied by Nate's barber shop.

Forestieri has been a cobbler for nearly 30 years. He worked from a shop at 208 Territorial road. It was the afternoon of Feb. 19, 1974, that Forestieri was beaten about the head in a back room by an assailant. Police cited attempted robbery as the motive.

The assailant fled, apparently with little or no money, and has yet to be apprehended.

For the next two months, Forestieri was confined to Memorial hospital, St. Joseph.

"It was two months and one day," reminded Forestieri's wife, Mary, pointing to her husband's head.

Forestieri at first was near death. His skull was fractured in the front and back. Small skull depressions remain as somber reminders.

"My doctor said I should get back to work," snapped Forestieri. "I wanted to get back, too," he quickly added.

Forestieri has just recently recovered enough to work. After discharge from the hospital, it was a matter of recuperation at the family residence, at Napier apartments, 777 Napier avenue, Benton township.

Forestieri rested and thought. He first thought of reopening business outside Benton Harbor. When the final decision came, it was Benton Harbor.

"I like it here," Forestieri said. "It's got plenty of light here, and lot of people around."

Forestieri this week got his equipment assembled. He was at work Wednesday, and looking for the supply salesman. The salesman would bring in accessories to the shoe repair business, such as polish and laces.

"But, I'm in business and I've got my machines," exclaimed Forestieri. He pointed with pride to a large machine that both grinds and polishes. "I've had that machine since about 1957, and it's a good one."

As to the old customers?

"I hope they remember me," said Forestieri.

Mrs. Forestieri was confident. "Whenever we go out, even to a grocery store, we see people who ask Frank when he's going to get back to work," she said.

The sturdy cobbler said he'll work six days a week, opening about 8 or 8:30 a.m. "But, he's going to be out of the shop by 5," responded Mrs. Forestieri, obviously remembering that Feb. 19 afternoon when she and a daughter found Frank Forestieri after the attack.

Car Tab Sales Rise As Deadline Nears

The sale of 1975 license plate tabs in the Twin Cities is steadily increasing as the March 31 deadline nears, according to managers of both the St. Joseph and Benton Harbor Secretary of State offices. Sales at the St. Joseph office have increased steadily from 2,000 in December to 4,107 so far this month, according to Richard Howard, manager of the St. Joseph office.

Howard said license sales have been averaging about 400 a day this week, but he said he did not expect a heavy last minute rush for the tabs.

The use of the prepared license plate application has helped speed customers through the purchasing process, Howard said.

The Benton Harbor office, which opened in January, 1974, has sold approximately 7,500 this year, according to Manager Harry Miller.

Miller said he anticipates a heavy increase in sales before the March 31 deadline. He said he expects customers will have to wait in lines for a half hour or more during the final week of license plate sales.

Miller noted that failure to have 1975 plates after March 31 is a misdemeanor with a maximum penalty of $100 or 90 days in jail or both.

Purchasing the new tabs is not the only requirement that Michigan drivers should remember, Howard explained. "You also have to remember to put them on," he said.

The St. Joseph office, located at 2000 Niles avenue, is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. The Benton Harbor office, 244 Pipestone, is open from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Both offices will be open Saturday, March 29, during regular hours just to sell license plates and tabs.

Davis Heads BUW Public Relations

Barry J. Davis, vice-president of Paxson Advertising, Inc., St. Joseph, has been named public relations chairman for the 1975 Blossomland United Way campaign, according to Robert Mollnek, general chairman.

Davis said the main thrust of his division this year will be to acquaint the public with how people in the community help others through United Way agency program services.

The public relations division will include several section chairmen whose duties will include arranging and conducting report meetings, a kick-off dinner, and victory banquet; publicity; radio presentations; special promotional events; and film and speaker assignments.

Before joining Paxson, Davis was personnel manager for Auto Specialties. For six years, he held various administrative posts with the office products division of International Business Machines corporation in the San Francisco area. Davis spent a year as staff announcer for radio station KSCO in Santa Cruz, Calif.

Davis and his wife, Lauri, reside on Laurel drive, south of St. Joseph, with their two sons and daughter

College Fund Nets $14,683

Benton Harbor and St. Joseph area contributors to the United Negro College Fund, Inc., gave a total of $14,683 in 1974, the highest contribution in outstate Michigan, according to Mason D. Feisel, UNCF general chairman.

"This campaign should be considered a major victory especially in light of the economic downturn which has affected Michigan severely, Feisel said. Feisel is vice president, Laundry Products Group, for Whirlpool Corp.

The contribution total for the state was $843,000, the state's second highest in the 31-year history of the fund. Twin Cities contributions were up over the 1973 total of $13,063, Feisel said, and also up from the 1974 goal of $11,000.

There are 41 predominantly black colleges affiliated with the fund and Feisel said that while enrollment in colleges across the nation was down, more than 12,000 students were turned away from the colleges affiliated with the UNCF last year, thus amplifying the needs for funds.

Golden Event Sunday

General admission tickets for the Roger Williams concert to be presented by Civic Benefit club, are now available from several area merchants, according to chairman, Mrs. Roger Curry.

The concert will be held Sunday, April 27, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lakeshore high school auditorium.

Proceeds will go to the Link Crisis Intervention center at 2002 South State street, St. Joseph.

Tickets at $7.50 for general admission and $3 for students are available at Van's Pharmacy and Gillespie Drugs (downtown) in St. Joseph, Kendore in the Fairplain Plaza, Benton Harbor; Stancik's in Stevensville, Badt's in Coloma, and Andrews university in Berrien Springs.

Patron tickets at $12.50 which guarantee a reserved seat are also available.

Since its organization in 1950, the club has grown to an organization of 50 women working together for the purpose of rendering service to the community.

It began its service work by devoting many volunteer hours to hospitals and also, in the early years of the club, held style shows and home tours to raise funds for its projects.

The club has raised over $50,000 with some of the recipients being the Benton Harbor Community college (now Lake Michigan college), Berrien County Day Care Training center, Gard school, Michigan Children's Aid society, Memorial and Mercy hospitals, Y-Uncles, Berrien County Drug Treatment Center, and The Link.

In 1956 the club began bringing outstanding entertainment to the area with Roger Williams to be the 1975 performer.

Williams, pianist and recording star who has attained the title of "Best Selling Pianist" in the recording industry, has become an international favorite on the concert and night club stage. His album sales, now approaching 17 million, have paved the way for this popularity abroad.

He includes touches of jazz, rock, and classical music in his appearances but he stays mainly in the mainstream of "pop" for which he is well known.

The Link which will benefit from the concert is the newest youth serving center in Berrien county. Since August 1973, nearly 300 young people have received help in times of emotional and physical crisis, according to Richard Frier, director.

Last year's proceeds of $4,319 from the Pete Fountain concert were also given to The Link which offers free of charge to all residents of Berrien county, ages 10-17, crisis counseling, overnight shelter, food with parental consent, medical examiniations, referrals, follow-up, and a program for teenagers helping each other.

Mrs. Paul Freudenburg is co-chairman with Mrs. Curry for the Roger Williams concert. Mrs. Andrew West and Mrs. Ronald Alexander are advertising chairmen, Mrs. John Sharon, finance; Mrs. Gene Maddock and Mrs. Frederick Thomas, tickets; Mrs. John J. Howard and Mrs. John Schram, patrons; Mrs. Michael Vernasco and Mrs. James Pittman, hospitality, and Mrs. Willis Koontz and Mrs. William Bartz, publicity.

Pair Wed 50 Years

BANGOR — Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Frese, route 1, Bangor, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary at an open house Sunday, March 23, at the Simpson United Methodist church, Bangor, from 2 to 5 p.m.

The celebration will be hosted by the couple's children, Mrs. James (Ella Mae) Plant and Arthur A. Frese, both of Chicago. The couple also has eight grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Arthur Frese and the former Miss Beulah Dawson were married March 21, 1925, by the Rev. Keene Ryan of the Presbyterian church in Chicago at the home of the bride's parents.

Until his retirement, Frese was employed by the Chicago Transit Authority. He is currently a trustee for Arlington township, president of the Van Buren County Commission on Aging and of the Kalamazoo Shrine Camel Patrol Parade unit. He is a past president of the Bangor Senior Citizens.

Mrs. Frese retired from the Chicago main public library. She is a past matron of Golden Rule Chapter 339, Order of Eastern Star of Bangor, a past president of the Southwest District association, and is a member of American Legion Auxiliary 160 of Bangor, World War II Mothers, and is membership chairman of the American Association of Retired Persons of South Haven.

School In A Castle

GLOUCESTER, Mass. (AP) — An American castle will become an organ school.

It is a registered landmark with the National Trust for Historic Preservation. A medieval drawbridge leads to its central fortified tower, 12th-century French style.

Fox soon will organize and direct an international school of the concert organ, with library and museum facilities and concert programs.

The castle, built between 1925 and 1928 by inventor John Hays Hammond Jr., was acquired by the Catholic Archdiocese of Boston on Hammond's death in 1965. The archdiocese has been operating it as a museum since, but money to keep the museum open to the public, as the Hammond will directed, became short.

Fox, who has recorded on the castle's 10,000-pipe organ, contributed the required $250,000 and set up a new trusteeship.

Lenten Meditation

Rev. Thomas D. Keizer
Fairplain Presbyterian Church, Benton Harbor
Today's Scripture: Psalm 69:7-8

Taking a stand for important issues in life in the face of adversity is very Christian!

Old Testament prophets, New Testament Christians, leaders of the protestant reformation, modern spokesmen for the Christian faith: all of them have been willing to stand firm for the Lord in spite of the ridiculing and mocking given them by their contemp raries.

The psalmist David gives us an indication of his frustrations in taking a stand for the one true way. For he says his problems were the outcome of his stand for God. Even his own family turned against him.

In this season of Lent we recall the suffering Christ encountered in order to bring about a new life-style to all people. For his stand he was persecuted and killed. But . . . in the face of that conflict his way has stood through the ages as the only way for people twfind salvation.

We, too, are called to take a stand for the only way of living. That is, we are requested through the Holy Spirit to stand up and be counted for Christ in the midst of adversity and conflict.

Golden Event Sunday

General admission tickets for the Roger Williams concert to be presented by Civic Benefit club, are now available from several area merchants, according to chairman, Mrs. Roger Curry.

The concert will be held Sunday, April 27, at 7:30 p.m. in the Lakeshore high school auditorium.

Proceeds will go to the Link Crisis Intervention center at 2002 South State street, St. Joseph.

Tickets at $7.50 for general admission and $3 for students are available at Van's Pharmacy and Gillespie Drugs (downtown) in St. Joseph, Kendore in the Fairplain Plaza, Benton Harbor; Stancik's in Stevensville, Badt's in Coloma, and Andrews university in Berrien Springs.

Patron tickets at $12.50 which guarantee a reserved seat are also available.

Civic Benefit club is celebrating its silver anniversary this year.

Since its organization in 1950, the club has grown to an organization of 50 women working together for the purpose of rendering service to the community.

It began its service work by devoting many volunteer hours to hospitals and also, in the early years of the club, held style shows and home tours to raise funds for its projects.

The club has raised over $50,000 with some of the recipients being the Benton Harbor Community college (now Lake Michigan college), Berrien County Day Care Training center, Gard school, Michigan Children's Aid society, Memorial and Mercy hospitals, Y-Uncles, Berrien County Drug Treatment Center, and The Link.

In 1956 the club began bringing outstanding entertainment to the area with Roger Williams to be the 1975 performer.

Williams, pianist and recording star who has attained the title of "Best Selling Pianist" in the recording industry, has become an international favorite on the concert and night club stage. His album sales, now approaching 17 million, have paved the way for this popularity abroad.

He includes touches of jazz, rock, and classical music in his appearances but he stays mainly in the mainstream of "pop" for which he is well known.

The Link which will benefit from the concert is the newest youth serving center in Berrien county. Since August 1973, nearly 300 young people have received help in times of emotional and physical crisis, according to Richard Frier, director.

Last year's proceeds of $4,319 from the Pete Fountain concert were also given to The Link which offers free of charge to all residents of Berrien county, ages 10-17, crisis counseling, overnight shelter, food with parental consent, medical examiniations, referrals, follow-up, and a program for teenagers helping each other.

Mrs. Paul Freudenburg is co-chairman with Mrs. Curry for the Roger Williams concert. Mrs. Andrew West and Mrs. Ronald Alexander are advertising chairmen, Mrs. John Sharon, finance; Mrs. Gene Maddock and Mrs. Frederick Thomas, tickets; Mrs. John J. Howard and Mrs. John Schram, patrons; Mrs. Michael Vernasco and Mrs. James Pittman, hospitality, and Mrs. Willis Koontz and Mrs. William Bartz, publicity.

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR FRESE

Pair Wed 50 Years

BANGOR — Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Frese, route 1, Bangor, will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary at an open house Sunday, March 23, at the Simpson United Methodist church, Bangor, from 2 to 5 p.m.

The celebration will be hosted by the couple's children, Mrs. James (Ella Mae) Plant and Arthur A. Frese, both of Chicago. The couple also has eight grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Arthur Frese and the former Miss Beulah Dawson were married March 21, 1925, by the Rev. Keene Ryan of the Presbyterian church in Chicago at the home of the bride's parents.

Until his retirement, Frese was employed by the Chicago Transit Authority. He is currently a trustee for Arlington township, president of the Van Buren County Commission on Aging and of the Kalamazoo Shrine Camel Patrol Parade unit. He is a past president of the Bangor Senior Citizens.

Mrs. Frese retired from the Chicago main public library. She is a past matron of Golden Rule Chapter 339, Order of Eastern Star of Bangor, a past president of the Southwest District association, and is a member of American Legion Auxiliary 160 of Bangor, World War II Mothers, and is membership chairman of the American Association of Retired Persons of South Haven.

School In A Castle

GLOUCESTER, Mass. (AP) — An American castle will become an organ school.

It is a registered landmark with the National Trust for Historic Preservation. A medieval drawbridge leads to its central fortified tower, 12th-century French style.

Fox soon will organize and direct an international school of the concert organ, with library and museum facilities and concert programs.

The castle, built between 1925 and 1928 by inventor John Hays Hammond Jr., was acquired by the Catholic Archdiocese of Boston on Hammond's death in 1965. The archdiocese has been operating it as a museum since, but money to keep the museum open to the public, as the Hammond will directed, became short.

A New Event For Blossomtime

Cathedral Choral Society

PHILLIP JENKINS

A new feature this year of Blossom Week will be a performance by the Cathedral Choral Society Sunday, May 4, at 7:30 p.m. at the First Congregational church, Benton Harbor, according to Phillip Jenkins, director of music and arts at the church.

A small charge will be made to cover minor expenses.

Over 100 performers, composed mostly of twin city area singers, will present Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" and "In Ecclesis" by Gabriel, accompanied by brass and pianist Carolyn Nickel.

According to Jenkins, the Cathedral Choral Society was organized last fall for the Arts and Religion Festival and appeared with Dave Brubeck.

He said the group plans two major concerts per year and selected Blossom Sunday for their second performance, since Blossom Sunday was first declared in 1906 by the Rev. W.J. Cady of the First Congregational church of Benton Harbor.

Rehearsals for the concert will begin the week of April 8.

Jenkins was director of music in Plainfield, N.J., and a music specialist for the school system there before coming to Benton Harbor more than a year ago. He is administration director for the Cathedral School of executive Arts.

Blessing of the Blossoms will officially open Blossom Week Sunday, May 4, at the Tree-Mendus Fruit farm, Eau Claire. The week will culminate with the Grand Floral parade on Saturday afternoon, May 10, and the Grand Floral Ball Saturday night at Shadowland Ballroom, St. Joseph.

ECUMENICAL OUTDOOR EVENT

Pageant Is Saturday

PUBLIC INVITED: Lakeshore Ecumenical Council will present an outdoor musical pageant, "Prepare Ye The Way..," Saturday, March 22, at the Village Square parking lot in Stevensville. Performances will be held at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. The public is invited and there is no admission charge. Approximately 100 area residents will take part in the pageant including, from left, Cathy Yore, Pam Morey, and Joe Houseal, who will perform a number from "Godspell." Tom Shelley will be the featured guest performer. The spo- soring group, the Lakeshore Ecumenical Council, is composed of clergy and lay representatives from St. Joseph Catholic church annex, Stevensville United Methodist church, and St. Luke's Lutheran church, Stevensville. Rape Crisis Team Needed

Riverwood Community Mental Health center is organizing a "Rape Crisis Team," to assist women who have been assaulted. The team will be associated with the crisis intervention program, called Helpline, a telephone answering service of the Berrien drug treatment center.

The mental health center reported it is looking for women, "who can show both maturity and sensitivity in a crisis situation and who can be available at different times during day or night when a call might come through (from a victim) or when follow-up (counseling) is needed." Volunteers accepted will be trained.

New Year Begins Friday For Baha'i Community

On that day, for Baha'is in more than 300 countries and territories, in more than 60,000 communities begins BE 132. The BE stands for Baha'i Era and 132 is the number of years since the inception of the Baha'i Faith in 1844.

In St. Joseph, the Baha'is will hold an open house at the Edward Filstrup home, 2829 Lakeshore drive, at 8 p.m. Friday, March 21, to celebrate the occasion.

The program will consist of prayers, film strips showing a brief explanation of the Baha'i Faith and fellowship. Interested persons are invited.

The Baha'is believe that Baha'u'llah is the most recent revelator of God's will for man. Among the other divine educators are Jesus, Muhammad, Buddha and Zoroaster. Baha'u'llah who was born to a powerful Persian family, was jailed and tortured because of what the leaders believed was an audacious and dangerous claim. He was a captive of Muslim governments for almost 40 years. He died in exile in Palestine in 1892, at his home near the present World Center of the Baha'i Faith which is at Haifa, Israel, on the slopes of Mount Carmel.

In the extensive Baha'i writing — many of which are in the hand of Baha'u'llah himself — the urgent needs for social reform as well as spiritual regeneration are stressed.

Baha'is believe in the equality of men and women, the harmony of science and religion, the need for the elimination of all forms of prejudice, for universal compulsory education, an international auxiliary language, and a uniform monetary system throughout the world.

One of the ways the importance of the Bahai Faith was emphasized by its founders was through the introduction of a new calendar. The Baha'is believe this new calendar may provide an important alternative to the existing calendars used throughout the world when the nations undertake to standardize the system of measuring time in the not too distant future.

Among the calendars still currently used are the Gregorian calendar of Western Europe (and the Americas); the Julian calendar still employed in sections of Eastern Europe; the Hebrew calendar referred to by the Jews; and the Islamic calendar in use throughout the Middle East.

As the nations become increasingly interdependent they will seek a common calendar free of the objections and associations which make each of the older calendars unacceptable to large segments of the world's population. The Baha'is feel that the Baha'i calendar might provide a suitable replacement because of its simplicity and convenience.

The Baha'i calendar, like the Gregorian calendar, uses the solar year as the basis for its organization. The Baha'i year consists of 19 months of 19 days each (361 days), with the addition of certain intercalary days (four in ordinary and five in leap years) between the 18th and 19th months in order to adjust the calendar to the solar year. The months of the Baha'i calendar are named after the attributes of God: Glory, Beauty, Perfection, Grace, Justice, Majesty, etc.

The Baha'i New Year begins with the March equinox, March 21, one of two times during the year when the sun crosses the celestial equator and when the length of day and night are approximately the equal. The Baha'i era began on the day of the religion's birth, May 23, 1844. Hence this Naw-Ruz festival begins the 132 year of the Baha'i era.

LETS GET AQUAINTED

PLASTICS have come a long way in recent years in their uses for the home. Durable modern surfaces are available in tremendous variety for furnishings, flooring, even wall surfaces. And experts predict they will play an even bigger role in the future.

The advantages for many areas of the home are obvious. They wipe clean with a damp cloth, are relatively impervious to water and beverage stains, scratches and dents, and sunlight.

You might find plastic surfaced furniture the ideal choice in a room where practicality gets first consideration, as perhaps in a family room or child's bedroom. Available in striking colors or beautiful woodgrain finishes, they give you beauty along with the practicality, in a wide selection of chests, desks, tables, night stands, many in coordinated groups.

Whether you insist on the warmth and beauty of fine woods, or have a decorative use for modern hard-surface furnishings, you'll find a handsome variety to choose from in our showroom. Stop in and talk over your decorating needs. You'll find helpful service always, with furnishings to suit your needs . . . and your budget.

The Baha'i year consists of 19 months of 19 days each (361 days), with the addition of certain intercalary days (four in ordinary and five in leap years) between the 18th and 19th months in order to adjust the calendar to the solar year. The months of the Baha'i calendar are named after the attributes of God: Glory, Beauty, Perfection, Grace, Justice, Majesty, etc.

The Baha'i New Year begins with the March equinox, March 21, one of two times during the year when the sun crosses the celestial equator and when the length of day and night are approximately the equal. The Baha'i era began on the day of the religion's birth, May 23, 1844. Hence this Naw-Ruz festival begins the 132 year of the Baha'i era.

PLASTICS have come a long way in recent years in their uses for the home. Durable modern surfaces are available in tremendous variety for furnishings, flooring, even wall surfaces. And experts predict they will play an even bigger role in the future.
The advantages for many areas of the home are obvious. They wipe clean with a damp cloth, are relatively impervious to water and beverage stains, scratches and dents, and sunlight.
You might find plastic surfaced furniture the ideal choice in a room where practicality gets first consideration, as perhaps in a family room or child's bedroom. Available in striking colors or beautiful woodgrain finishes, they give you beauty along with the practicality, in a wide selection of chests, desks, tables, night stands, many in coordinated groups.
Whether you insist on the warmth and beauty of fine woods, or have a decorative use for modern hard-surface furnishings, you'll find a handsome variety to choose from in our showroom. Stop in and talk over your decorating needs. You'll find helpful service always, with furnishings to suit your needs . . . and your budget.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Likely It's In His Head

Dear Ann Landers: I met this magnificent guy, age 24, three years ago. We were engaged last July. I was a virgin when we met but he changed all that. And I'm glad he did, because I learned something that might make a big difference in our marriage. The guy has become impotent in the last seven months.

The most confusing part of all this is that when we are sitting on the sofa, riding in a car, or in a movie, he's rarin' to go. The minute we get in a bedroom — nothing.

The situation has become so embarrassing that he is afraid to attempt sex. He says he's sure his problem is mental, not physical, and after we are married everything will be O.K.

My parents are planning a big wedding. Should I go ahead in the hope that what he says is true? — Cross Between Fires

Dear C.B.F.: That "magnificent guy" should be examined by a physician and learn whether his problem is mental or physical. Chances are 10 to 1 it's in his head. If such is the case, he should go to a counselor and get it OUT of his head.

If counseling doesn't help, you must decide if you want to marry a man who is impotent and count on wedded bliss to change the situation.

Deep Conflict

Dear Ann Landers: Ten years ago my husband and I took my widowed mother into our home. We cared for her until she died five years ago. My sister who lives in a distant state refused to help. Martha came to visit three times during those five years.

Last year Martha demanded that we become close because "we are the only ones left." She wants to be the big sister and boss me around, although we are both grown women. (She has been married three times, divorced twice.)

I've developed some ghastly psychosomatic illnesses trying to establish a peaceful relationship. To put it bluntly, she is making me sick.

My husband and children can't stand Martha and they think I am nuts for trying to get along with her. I'm searching for wise counsel. Should I see a psychiatrist? — Confused

Dear C.: Yes. That sentence, "She is making me sick," is the tip-off. You need to explore verbally the conflicts that exist in your thinking — and there must be many, dating back to childhood.

Nothing in your letter indicates that Martha has moved to your city, so I assume she is still in another part of the country. If she can make you miserable from a distance, you really do need professional help.

Too Much Sex

Dear Ann Landers: You were unnecessarily rude to that couple who said they had given up sex because it caused more unhappiness than any single thing in the world.

I agree with them. The world has gone sex crazy. I'm sick to death of the whole rotten mess.

Wouldn't it be beautiful if sex were used only for procreation — as the good Lord intended? — Seen Too Much

Dear Much: The sex drive is the second strongest emotion known to man. (Instinct for survival is Number One.) Sex as an expression of love came late in our evolution. Now that the world is threatened by starvation unless we do something about birth control on a massive scale, I hope you will re-think your views.

Got those wedding bell blues over costs . . . guest list . . . what to wear . . . and other details? Ann Landers's completely new "The Bride's Guide" will help. For a copy, send a dollar bill, plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (20 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Illinois 60120.

Folk Concert Tickets Ready

DOWAGIAC — A concert featuring folk singer Kay Britten, sponsored by Southwestern Michigan college, will be held Wednesday, April 2, at 7:30 p.m. in the Edwardsburg junior high school auditorium.

Tickets are $1 and may be obtained at the college business office or by mailing a self-addressed envelope.

Miss Britten has toured extensively in concert throughout the United States and overseas, accompanying her singing on the classic guitar, autoharp and dulcimer.

She has appeared frequently on radio and television, including her own program of folk songs and a year-long TV series. Born and educated in England, she studied in light opera and the musical theatre at the Royal College of Music.

This concert is another of the 1974-75 Artist Series events sponsored by SMC. Additional information concerning programs may be obtained by contacting the SMC community services office.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

When Tristam de Lyonesse arrived at King Arthur's court, he was thought to be a country bumpkin. But it did not take him long to prove himself with sword, lance and shield. He became one of the two or three most feared Knights of the Round Table.

It took him a trifle longer to show that he could handle himself just as well at the bridge table. A few hands such as today's did the trick for him.

He sat East and as any one can plainly see, South is cold for seven hearts with all finesses working for him. In addition to this West opened the four of clubs. South played dummy's seven and Sir Tristam played the king without any apparent thought.

Declarer put on the ace and then did some thinking. That four spot might well have been fourth best of five, in which case South wanted to do anything possible to prevent a club ruff. He laid down his ace of hearts and played a second heart. Tristram took his king and proceeded to lead a club to give his partner the deadly ruff that South had tried to avoid.

FOR FRIDAY, MARCH 21, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll be tugged at from all sides today unless you limit the numberof irons in the fire. Set priorities and stick to them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't talk about things today unless they're a "fait accompli" or you'll kid yourself into believing they're already done.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You still have warning signals to treat your purse with respect. Buy only what's necessary today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be extra-careful today not to say things that will reflect poorly on you in the eyes of others. You need their respect.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your hunches about ideas of others are not too sharp today. Don't rely on them or you'll turn off some good friends or associates.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll encounter persons with whom you have little in common at a gathering. Try to avoid them. You'll have less patience than usual.

LIBRA (SEPT. 23-Oct. 23) Your interests will be in conflict with several others today. Confrontations can only be avoided if you're not too self-serving.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You tend to face tasks much too negatively today — that's why they will be extra-difficult to complete with any degree of success.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be careful not to be drawn into another's complicated affair and be put in a position where you must dip into your pocket to bail her out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can't be all things to all people now. If you try, you'll wind up pleasing no one, including yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-FEb. 19) Don't tackle tasks now that you know will be too difficult to handle. Wait until you get a knowledgeable co-worker.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you gamble today, be aware of what could happen if it comes up lemons. Don't risk more than you can afford to lose.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

When Tristam de Lyonesse arrived at King Arthur's court, he was thought to be a country bumpkin. But it did not take him long to prove himself with sword, lance and shield. He became one of the two or three most feared Knights of the Round Table.

It took him a trifle longer to show that he could handle himself just as well at the bridge table. A few hands such as today's did the trick for him.

He sat East and as any one can plainly see, South is cold for seven hearts with all finesses working for him. In addition to this West opened the four of clubs. South played dummy's seven and Sir Tristam played the king without any apparent thought.

Declarer put on the ace and then did some thinking. That four spot might well have been fourth best of five, in which case South wanted to do anything possible to prevent a club ruff. He laid down his ace of hearts and played a second heart. Tristram took his king and proceeded to lead a club to give his partner the deadly ruff that South had tried to avoid.

What do you do now?

A — Bid three spades. This two notrump is the one rebid you didn't want to hear but you still should show your very good spades.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding two notrump your partner has jumped to three notrump over your two spades. What do you do now?

FOR FRIDAY, MARCH 21, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll be tugged at from all sides today unless you limit the numberof irons in the fire. Set priorities and stick to them.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't talk about things today unless they're a "fait accompli" or you'll kid yourself into believing they're already done.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You still have warning signals to treat your purse with respect. Buy only what's necessary today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be extra-careful today not to say things that will reflect poorly on you in the eyes of others. You need their respect.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your hunches about ideas of others are not too sharp today. Don't rely on them or you'll turn off some good friends or associates.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll encounter persons with whom you have little in common at a gathering. Try to avoid them. You'll have less patience than usual.

LIBRA (SEPT. 23-Oct. 23) Your interests will be in conflict with several others today. Confrontations can only be avoided if you're not too self-serving.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You tend to face tasks much too negatively today — that's why they will be extra-difficult to complete with any degree of success.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be careful not to be drawn into another's complicated affair and be put in a position where you must dip into your pocket to bail her out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You can't be all things to all people now. If you try, you'll wind up pleasing no one, including yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-FEb. 19) Don't tackle tasks now that you know will be too difficult to handle. Wait until you get a knowledgeable co-worker.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you gamble today, be aware of what could happen if it comes up lemons. Don't risk more than you can afford to lose.

JOAN AND DAVID AIKEN
Sailboat Trip Depicted In Art

A collection of artwork, depicting places visited by artists avid and Zora Aiken on their 5,000-mile trip by sailboat, is on exhibit at the Lincoln township public library through Tuesday, March 25.

The Aikens left Michigan City, Ind., in the fall of 1973, traveled down the Calumet, Illinois and Mississippi rivers to New Orleans, then sailed on to the Florida Keys. Their return trip through the Intracoastal Waterway, Erie Canal and the Great Lakes brought them back to Michigan City last August.

Aiken, who once raced sailboats, and his wife chose sailing over the more conventional means of transportation to enable them to see more of the United States and scenes they most like involving water.

Their exhibit consists of sketches, watercolors, acrylics, oils and pen-and ink drawings and contains a variety of scenes from their trip. Also on display are local scenes including the New Troy and Saugatuck mills and farms from the Sawyer, Bridgman and Baroda areas.

Prior to the cruise, the Aikens resided in Chicago where he had his studio. In addition to painting, Aiken also does woodcarving and has written and illustrated short stories for Gallery magazine. He studied at Chicago's Art Institute and served his apprenticeship at Handelan and Pedersen art studio of Chicago.

Mrs. Aiken also studied at the Chicago Art Institute and the art center in San Miguel de Allende, Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Aiken now reside at Box 164, Log Cabin road, Sawyer.

They plan to sail this summer to Florida by way of the St. Lawrence Seaway, enabling them to see more of the country's north east shore.

Cranbrook Seeks Artists For Regional Invitational

Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum, Bloomfield Hills, is inviting Michigan artists working in painting, drawing or a combination to participate in a regional invitation to be shown first in the San Francisco Bay Area and then at Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum, followed by museums in midwestern states.

The exhibition of Michigan work, which will open at the San Jose Museum of Art in October, is in response to Cranbrook Academy of Art Museum's recent exhibition, "Interstices," by Northern California and Bay Area artists.

There is no limit on the number of slides submitted and the entry deadline is April 30. Slides should be clearly marked as to media, size of object and date, with a biography included. Selections will be made by Cranbrook museum director John Peterson in May, when artists will be notified. There is no limit to size of works.

Wall Cover Adds Warmth

An easy fix-up project that won't involve much cost or time is to panel one or two walls with lumber. An added dividend comes from wood's high insulation value; its warmth is physical, as well as visual.

Boards of nominal one-inch thickness are much more effective as a wall insulator than decorator panels that usually are only one-fourth to three-eighths inch thick.

GETTING THE NEWS: Stephen Wiesenfeld and son Jason, 2, shown at home in Edison, N.J., after hearing of U.S. Supreme Court decision Wednesday that grants widowers with children the same Social Security benefits that widows with children receive. Court decision was 8-0. (AP Wirephoto)

Supreme Court Reduces Miranda Decision Clout

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Supreme Court ruling in a bicycle theft case reduces the protection that criminal suspects have under the Miranda decision, which requires police to advise suspects of their rights.

The court upheld the conviction of William Robert Hass, who was arrested in August 1972 in connection with bicycle thefts in Klamath Falls, Ore.

As required by the 1966 Miranda decision, police advised Hass of his rights to remain silent and to have a lawyer present during questioning. When he asked for a lawyer, police told him he would see a lawyer when he got to the police station, and in the meantime they went on questioning him.

The Supreme Court ruled 6 to 2 Wednesday that his statements, although they could not be used as part of the main case against him, were properly introduced to contradict his denials in court that he knew where the bicycles were stolen from.

Police officers testified that Hass had pointed out the homes from which the bicycles were taken. Justice Harry A. Blackmun Jr., speaking for the court, said the 1966 Miranda rule was not "a license to testify inconsistently."

The ruling echoed and extended one in 1971 approving similar use of statements by a defendant who was not told of his right to an appointed lawyer.

Justices William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall dissented, saying the decision was a serious undermining of the Miranda principle.

"After today's decision, if an individual states that he wants an attorney, police interrogation will doubtless now be vigorously pressed to obtain statements before the attorney arrives," the dissenters said.

The court's decision reversed a ruling of the Oregon Supreme Court overturning Hass' burglary conviction.

In another case, the Supreme Court reiterated that laws based on "archaic" generalizations about men being the family bread winners cannot be tolerated under the Constitution.

By an 8-0 vote, the court struck down a federal law which denies Social Security benefits to widowers whose working wives leave them with children to care for.

Brennan, writing for the court, said the law assumed that "male workers' earnings are vital to the support of their families, while the earnings of female wage earners do not significantly contribute."

Brennan said such distinctions "could not be tolerated under the Constitution."

In a brief filed in the case, the government said extending the benefits to widowers would cost $20 million a year, even though most bereaved male workers would not be eligible because they would be earning too much money.

The law was challenged by Stephen Wiesenfeld of New Brunswick, N.J., whose wife died in childbirth in 1972. She had been employed as a school teacher.

ALLEGAN SHERIFF'S REQUEST

Action Delayed On Funds

ALLEGAN — Allegan county board of commissioners has delayed consideration of three requests from Sheriff Robert Whitcomb for approval of two federal grant applications and a budget boost.

The budget boost, involving $82,475, was requested to cover added salary and wage costs for full and part-time empoyes.

The board, in a once-postponed meeting Tuesday, ordered the proposal held for consideration at the board's first scheduled night session March 25 at 7:30 p.m.

The federal grant applications, which are ready for submission, cover $116,500 for a metropolitan detective squad which would concentrate on felony investigations and $225,000 for a micro-wave communications system.

The budget increase, if granted, would bring total labor costs for the department close to the half-million-dollar mark.

In other action the board approved a county services committee proposal for the establishment of a "problem drivers school" to be located in the Allegan area. Commissioners were told that the cost of the school would be covered by a $10 fee paid by the students. The program had the endorsement of Circuit Judge Gary Stewart and Circuit Judge George Corsiglia both of whom indicated that they would make extensive use of such a program if it were available. It would be directed by an advisory board named by the chairman of the county board.

Commissioners concurred unanimously with Probate Judge Dwight Cheever's opposition to 11 proposed changes in the state's juvenile code which he pictured as ultra-liberal and costly to implement. The board approved a resolution outlining objections to the proposed legislation.

The board approved a resolution requesting the state to provide construction code enforcement for the county's local units of government which have not adopted their own codes and provided for local enforcement. State inspection would be provided until such time as the county adopts its own code.

Commissioners gave tentative approval to a proposal by Treasurer Fred Edgerton establishing a revolving fund for delinquent taxes. Under Edgerton's plan, the county would pay school districts and other local units of government for taxes returned as delinquent. Edgerton said this would allow the local units to budget their funds.

With three commissioners abstaining and one voting no the board voted to pay $665 in veterinary fees for boarding of animals confiscated when their owners were arrested. Prosecuting Atty. Fred Hunter said that the veterinarian had refused for some time to release the animals until he was paid and that the bill had kept mounting, he finally agreed to do so if the county would pick up the tab. Hunter added that the prosecutor's office would sue the owners for reimbursement of the money.

Michigan Pair Make Dramatic Appeal For More Bike Paths

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Michigan men who rode their bikes from Detroit to Washington in 11 days pedaled through a driving downpour Wednesday to meet with administration officials on the steps of the Capitol.

Tony Lenzini of Corswell and George Ettinger of Fenton made the trip to dramatize efforts to establish a nationwide system of bike paths.

"I wouldn't want to make that ride again for all the money in the world," Lenzini said. He and Ettinger were met by Reps. Bob Traxler and Donald W. Riegle Jr., Michigan Democrats.

Also on hand were officials from the Department of Transportation who cycled over from their offices. One said the White House had called and asked for DOT people to greet Lenzini and Ettinger.

Eittinger and Lenzini pedaled between 300 and 400 miles of the more than 500-mile distance between Washington and Detroit. They traveled the remaining miles by car after Lenzini hurt his knee slightly in an accident.

They said they traveled between eight and 11 hours daily, and were confronted with snow and ice.

Between Wheeling, W.Va., and Moundsville, W.Va., they related, a policeman told them to get off a restricted road. They did and rode to the local police station to ask directions, only to be told that was the only road they could take.

They went back to the road and finished that leg of the journey without seeing another policeman, they said.

7 reasons to start your garden with a Toro® Tiller

THERE'S more than one reason why Toro Tillers are selling faster than we can make them. Read on about a tiller so indestructible, it thinks it's a tank.

1. Toro Tillers are tough. They're built to last, year after year. In fact, the tines are so strong, they're guaranteed against breakage for the life of the tiller.

2. A tiller for any size job. 3, 4 and 5 hp models with easy-recoil starting, 4 cycle engines.

3. Adjustable tilling height. All models feature positive depth control adjustable from 1" to 8".

4. Two tilling speeds. Available on the larger 4 and 5 hp models. Low for sod busting and mulching; high for soil blending.

5. Safety reverse gear eliminates hand-backing your Tiller. Tiller stops when gear is released.

6. Many attachments for versatility. Including: pick and slasher tines; furrow; Til-Row for cultivating; bolo tine extensions for tilling width up to 38".

7. Save up to $290* a year on vegetables alone! Based on 25' x 30' garden, $10 investment for seeds. So Toro Tiller helps pay for itself.

Cultivate yourself. Send for our free full-color brochure, "The Toro Guide to Lawns & Mowers." Write: The Toro Company, Dept. 500, 8111 Lyndale Av., Bloomington, Minn. 55420. Or pick one up at your nearest Toro Dealer. He's listed in the Yellow Pages.

GETTING THE NEWS: Stephen Wiesenfeld and son Jason, 2, shown at home in Edison, N.J., after hearing of U.S. Supreme Court decision Wednesday that grants widowers with children the same Social Security benefits that widows with children receive. Court decision was 8-0. (AP Wirephoto)

Supreme Court Reduces Miranda Decision Clout

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Supreme Court ruling in a bicycle theft case reduces the protection that criminal suspects have under the Miranda decision, which requires police to advise suspects of their rights.

The court upheld the conviction of William Robert Hass, who was arrested in August 1972 in connection with bicycle thefts in Klamath Falls, Ore.

As required by the 1966 Miranda decision, police advised Hass of his rights to remain silent and to have a lawyer present during questioning. When he asked for a lawyer, police told him he would see a lawyer when he got to the police station, and in the meantime they went on questioning him.

The Supreme Court ruled 6 to 2 Wednesday that his statements, although they could not be used as part of the main case against him, were properly introduced to contradict his denials in court that he knew where the bicycles were stolen from.

Police officers testified that Hass had pointed out the homes from which the bicycles were taken. Justice Harry A. Blackmun Jr., speaking for the court, said the 1966 Miranda rule was not "a license to testify inconsistently."

The ruling echoed and extended one in 1971 approving similar use of statements by a defendant who was not told of his right to an appointed lawyer.

Justices William J. Brennan Jr. and Thurgood Marshall dissented, saying the decision was a serious undermining of the Miranda principle.

"After today's decision, if an individual states that he wants an attorney, police interrogation will doubtless now be vigorously pressed to obtain statements before the attorney arrives," the dissenters said.

The court's decision reversed a ruling of the Oregon Supreme Court overturning Hass' burglary conviction.

In another case, the Supreme Court reiterated that laws based on "archaic" generalizations about men being the family bread winners cannot be tolerated under the Constitution.

By an 8-0 vote, the court struck down a federal law which denies Social Security benefits to widowers whose working wives leave them with children to care for.

Brennan, writing for the court, said the law assumed that "male workers' earnings are vital to the support of their families, while the earnings of female wage earners do not significantly contribute."

Brennan said such distinctions "could not be tolerated under the Constitution."

In a brief filed in the case, the government said extending the benefits to widowers would cost $20 million a year, even though most bereaved male workers would not be eligible because they would be earning too much money.

The law was challenged by Stephen Wiesenfeld of New Brunswick, N.J., whose wife died in childbirth in 1972. She had been employed as a school teacher.

ALLEGAN SHERIFF'S REQUEST

Action Delayed On Funds

ALLEGAN — Allegan county board of commissioners has delayed consideration of three requests from Sheriff Robert Whitcomb for approval of two federal grant applications and a budget boost.

The budget boost, involving $82,475, was requested to cover added salary and wage costs for full and part-time empoyes.

The board, in a once-postponed meeting Tuesday, ordered the proposal held for consideration at the board's first scheduled night session March 25 at 7:30 p.m.

The federal grant applications, which are ready for submission, cover $116,500 for a metropolitan detective squad which would concentrate on felony investigations and $225,000 for a micro-wave communications system.

The budget increase, if granted, would bring total labor costs for the department close to the half-million-dollar mark.

In other action the board approved a county services committee proposal for the establishment of a "problem drivers school" to be located in the Allegan area. Commissioners were told that the cost of the school would be covered by a $10 fee paid by the students. The program had the endorsement of Circuit Judge Gary Stewart and Circuit Judge George Corsiglia both of whom indicated that they would make extensive use of such a program if it were available. It would be directed by an advisory board named by the chairman of the county board.

Commissioners concurred unanimously with Probate Judge Dwight Cheever's opposition to 11 proposed changes in the state's juvenile code which he pictured as ultra-liberal and costly to implement. The board approved a resolution outlining objections to the proposed legislation.

The board approved a resolution requesting the state to provide construction code enforcement for the county's local units of government which have not adopted their own codes and provided for local enforcement. State inspection would be provided until such time as the county adopts its own code.

Commissioners gave tentative approval to a proposal by Treasurer Fred Edgerton establishing a revolving fund for delinquent taxes. Under Edgerton's plan, the county would pay school districts and other local units of government for taxes returned as delinquent. Edgerton said this would allow the local units to budget their funds.

With three commissioners abstaining and one voting no the board voted to pay $665 in veterinary fees for boarding of animals confiscated when their owners were arrested. Prosecuting Atty. Fred Hunter said that the veterinarian had refused for some time to release the animals until he was paid and that the bill had kept mounting, he finally agreed to do so if the county would pick up the tab. Hunter added that the prosecutor's office would sue the owners for reimbursement of the money.

Michigan Pair Make Dramatic Appeal For More Bike Paths

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Michigan men who rode their bikes from Detroit to Washington in 11 days pedaled through a driving downpour Wednesday to meet with administration officials on the steps of the Capitol.

Tony Lenzini of Corswell and George Ettinger of Fenton made the trip to dramatize efforts to establish a nationwide system of bike paths.

"I wouldn't want to make that ride again for all the money in the world," Lenzini said. He and Ettinger were met by Reps. Bob Traxler and Donald W. Riegle Jr., Michigan Democrats.

Also on hand were officials from the Department of Transportation who cycled over from their offices. One said the White House had called and asked for DOT people to greet Lenzini and Ettinger.

Eittinger and Lenzini pedaled between 300 and 400 miles of the more than 500-mile distance between Washington and Detroit. They traveled the remaining miles by car after Lenzini hurt his knee slightly in an accident.

They said they traveled between eight and 11 hours daily, and were confronted with snow and ice.

Between Wheeling, W.Va., and Moundsville, W.Va., they related, a policeman told them to get off a restricted road. They did and rode to the local police station to ask directions, only to be told that was the only road they could take.

They went back to the road and finished that leg of the journey without seeing another policeman, they said.

Fear Endless Contamination Cycle

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Livestock feed made partially from animals which ate poisonous feed is being sold in what some scientists warn may become an endless cycle of contamination for Michigan, according to the Grand Rapids Press.

The newspaper said Wednesday state officials exercise almost no control over contaminated animals sold to rendering plants to produce the feed plus some byproducts for human use.

"I'm having the rendering plant pick up my cows," says Gerald Willcome of Marne, whose Ottawa County farm is quarantined after finding levels up to 1.6 parts per million of polybrominated biphenyl (PBB), a fire-retardant chemical, in his swine.

Willcome said he sent for trucks from the rendering plant because Michigan Farm Bureau Services refused to take the cows although the firm did collect his swine recently. The farmers said his cows have PBB levels below the .3 parts per million which would forbid their sale and require they be quarantined.

"It's crazy though. The renderer just grinds the animals up and sells them back to the farmer again," Willcome said.

Frederic Halberts, a farmer near Battle Creek with a Masters degree in chemical engineering, said some of his cattle had 500 to 5,000 parts per million of the fire retardant chemical. He estimated about 50 animals with such high levels went to rendering plants before the state started tests for PBB.

"I know my figure is conservative. If that had been ground up and spread evenly, it could have contaminated several hundred thousand more livestock.

"When the state first found the PBB in cattle, it only warned the farmer. It didn't quarantine him. So, he could have taken dead ones to the renderers," Halberts reported.

Clarence Ruger, manager of the Battle Creek rendering plant, said there is no state check to see if his plant uses animals with PBB.

But Ruger said his firm tries to ban contaminated animals if an external check finds them sickly and a veterinarian confirms they contain PBB. But some scientists say many contaminated animals show no sign of illness before they die.

Ruger said meat and bone from rendered animals are used for dog, cat, hog, chicken and cattle feeds. Some tallow or grease is used in soaps or shampoo, he said.

And, Ruger said, his firm delivers feed to grain elevators across the state, including some run by Farm Bureau Services.

It was an accidental mixup which saw PBB included in feed the Farm Bureau Services sold nearly two years ago that is blamed for triggering the contamination problem around Michigan.

Now, that firm is picking up and disposing of quarantined animals. But the disposal by Farm Bureau Services applies only to those animals with .3 parts per million of the chemical or more, the Press said.

Lawyer To Pay Jurors' Salaries

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A federal judge has ordered a lawyer to pay the court salaries of 21 prospective jurors he inconvenienced by failing to appear for a trial.

The unusual payment of $20 for each juror was levied Wednesday by U.S. District Court Judge Herbert J. Stern against Jerome L. Yesko, a former New Jersey assemblyman. The judge's order came after Yesko sent an unprepared associate to try a $1 million personal injury suit on behalf of a plaintiff who had hired Yesko.

Youngblood Has No Plans For Political Life

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Former state Sen. Charles Youngblood Jr, Wayne County Probate Judge Frank Szymanski and a third man have been cleared of bribe conspiracy charges by the State Court of Appeals.

Youngblood, 42, said he has no plans to pick up the political pieces of his life that was shattered when he was forced Jan. 9, 1974, by his Democratic Senate colleagues to resign the seat he held for 12 years as a Detroit Democrat.

Senate Democrats refused in late 1973 to join Republicans in an ouster move. However, a storm of public outrage over having a convicted felon in their midst forced Democrats to change their minds. They informed Youngblood after Christmas recess that his forced removal was imminent if he did not resign.

The Appeals Court said Wednesday there was no proof offered a Wayne County Circuit Court jury that the other two defendants—Judge Szymanski and Grosse Pointe Shores beer and wine distributor Louis Pappas—were guilty of conspiracy to bribe the chairman of the State Liquor Control Commission as charged.

CHARLES YOUNGBLOOD
Cleared of Charges

"We find evidence in the record from which the jury might infer that defendant Youngblood knew that the purpose of the conspiracy was to bribe the chairman of the Liquor Control Commission," the Appeals Court said in an opinion by Judge Timothy Quinn. But there can be no conspiracy with just one person, so the charge against Youngblood was dropped, the court said.

The Appeals Court said Circuit Court Judge Allan Miller should have granted Szymanski's motion to direct the jury to acquit Szymanski.

Syzmanski withdrew from probate judge duties in May 1973 after his indictment but continued to draw pay, occupy his office and have the use of a secretary. But in January 1973, he agreed to give up his office rights and put his $37,000 annual salary in escrow pending outcome of the appeal.

The men were convicted Oct. 17, 1973, of conspiring to bribe Liquor Commissioner Stanley Thayer to get liquor licenses for three suburban Detroit supermarkets. The conviction by the all-woman jury was tainted by "extraordinary circumstances of the time," meaning the political scandals of Watergate and former Vice President Spiro Agnew, argued George Newman, Youngblood's attorney.

Youngblood was sentenced to 60 days in jail and fined $3,000. Szymanski was fined $10,000 and sentenced to 30 days in jail and Pappas got 90 days and a $10,000 fine.

"The bitterness wore off a long time ago. I don't have any hard feelings toward anybody anymore," said Youngblood, who now lives with his wife and five of their six children near Gulliver, a tiny community in the Upper Peninsula's Schoolcraft County. Youngblood is director of the Manistique-Schoolcraft County Chamber of Commerce.

Chrysler, GM SUB Pool May Dry Up In Spring

DETROIT (AP) — Special unemployment benefit funds at Chrysler and General Motors are expected to run dry this spring, leaving more than 130,000 laid-off auto workers in bleak financial straits.

Chrysler's fund could be exhausted by the first week of April and GM's could run out by mid-May due to massive, unprecedented industry layoffs, according to United Auto Workers union projections.

The Supplemental Unemployment Benefit (SUB) funds, a unique cushion designed to see auto workers through temporary layoff periods, were not designed to cope with recession-level furloughs.

Laid-off assemblers who now collect an average $170 a week in SUB pay and unemployment compensation, will lose an average $90 a week when the funds run out, leaving them and their families with $80 a week income.

In some states, where unemployment compensation is high, furloughed workers stand to lose less than half their current pay. In Michigan, for example, maximum unemployment compensation is $106, among the highest in the nation. A worker there may only lose $64 in SUB pay.

But in states where jobless benefits are low, exhaustion of SUB pay can be devastating. Unemployment pay in Indiana and Mississippi is no more than $60 a week, lowest in the nation There, laid-off auto workers could lose $110 a week in SUB benefits.

"It can be a real nightmare for those people," said an official at the UAW, which has been pushing for improvements in state unemployment benefits.

With 46,000 of its 114,000 hourly workers on layoff for more than four months, Chrysler's fund is only 12 per cent of maximum levels, $15.4 million. Three months ago the fund held $80 million.

Last week, the firm paid SUB benefits to 39,000 eligible workers, eroding the fund by $4.9 million—far more than the company put into the fund during the period. Chrysler currently contributes 12 cents for each hour each working employe spends on the job.

Chrysler's SUB fund for 5,000 UAW-represented salaried employes on layoff was exhausted earlier this month. Chrysler is the only major automaker with a SUB plan for union-represented white-collar employes.

GM's fund is $77 million, 14 per cent of maximum levels, with weekly payments averaging $8.7 million. "At current levels, we expect the fund to hold out only until mid-May," GM confirmed Wednesday.

More than 127,000 of GM's 400,000 hourly workers are on indefinite layoff, many for over a year. GM says 7,000 have already exhausted SUB benefits, while 94,000 remain eligible.

Small Idea NOW National Trend

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — The challenge for a small savings bank here was to find a way to compete with the big, multi-service banks that had the sole legal right to offer checking accounts.

Slowly, the solution took shape at Consumers Savings Bank. It was the NOW account, in which depositors can write checks on their savings accounts, which still earn interest.

The idea caused a court fight, but NOW accounts won. Other banks in Massachusetts and New Hampshire took up the concept, and now the Ford administration is proposing that banks in other states be allowed to offer NOW accounts.

"We're delighted," said Donald Hall, senior vice president of Consumers Savings. "We realize now that we started a national trend. But at the beginning, we were just interested in providing better service for our customers."

The administration's suggestion for nationwide NOW accounts was contained in a package of banking legislation proposed Wednesday. It also would remove the ceiling on the amount of interest banks can pay on savings accounts.

"NOW" stands for negotiable order of withdrawal. The withdrawal slips look like checks, and stores accept them just as they do checks. But the money in people's accounts earns 5 per cent interest.

When Consumers Savings proposed the idea in 1970, the state banking commissioner rejected it. The bank sued, and two years later the state Supreme Court ruled that it was legal.

At the present time, 261 savings banks in Massachusetts have NOW accounts.

Initially, banks offering NOW accounts charged 15 cents for each withdrawal, but competition set in. Now, most offer free NOW accounts.

"We think it makes a good deal of sense for the public," Hall said. "Other bankers tell me this is one of the most significant banking innovations in a long, long time."

"Savings banks now feel they are able to compete much better with commercial banks," said Edward Flynn, deputy director of the state Banks and Loans Division. "The commercial banks were against the idea at first, and opinion among them is still divided."

Hanoi Moving In U.S. Vacuum

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Vietnam's current offensive was launched in the belief that the United States is unwilling or unable to give South Vietnam the military aid necessary to survive, according to an authoritative Hanoi journal. This assessment in Hoc Tap magazine supports Ford administration contentions that a congressional cutback in U.S. aid has encouraged Hanoi to intensify its attack.

Initially, banks offering NOW accounts charged 15 cents for each withdrawal, but competition set in. Now, most offer free NOW accounts.

"We think it makes a good deal of sense for the public," Hall said. "Other bankers tell me this is one of the most significant banking innovations in a long, long time."

"Savings banks now feel they are able to compete much better with commercial banks," said Edward Flynn, deputy director of the state Banks and Loans Division. "The commercial banks were against the idea at first, and opinion among them is still divided."

Hanoi Moving In U.S. Vacuum

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Vietnam's current offensive was launched in the belief that the United States is unwilling or unable to give South Vietnam the military aid necessary to survive, according to an authoritative Hanoi journal. This assessment in Hoc Tap magazine supports Ford administration contentions that a congressional cutback in U.S. aid has encouraged Hanoi to intensify its attack.

House Okays Delay In Campaign Law

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan's campaign finance reform law would become effective three months later than originally planned under a bill the House has approved, 101-5.

The House on Wednesday passed the bill delaying from April 1 to July 1 the effective date of the new measure. The bill also makes various technical amendments to the new law governing campaign donations which won final legislative approval last summer.

Supporters of the delay said the Secretary of State's office "cannot make heads or tails" out of the Campaign Finance Reform Act as originally passed last summer. Therefore, supporters said, the office cannot issue rules for operating under the bill in time for the April 1 date.

An attempt was pending to keep an earlier date, but even backers of that move admit their chance of success is almost nonexistent.

The bill requires the Secretary of State to issue rules for operating by April 1. The rules must go through legislative channels and are to be effective July 1. Until July 1 existing campaign finance laws remains in effect.

The bill normally would be sent to the Senate immediately upon House passage. But Rep. John Engler, R-Mount Pleasant, asked that it be held over a day to reconsider the earlier date.

Engler tried to move the effective date back to May 1 so the new campaign finance provisions could cover school board elections scheduled for June. That attempt was defeated, 21-85.

Engler said he doubts the House will support his request to reconsider the vote by which the bill passed, but added "I'm trying to fight this any way possible."

Elections division spokesmen say there are no state elections scheduled between now and July 1. However, there are a number of municipal elections that will be held in April and numerous school board elections scheduled for June, they said.

"We couldn't give a specific number," one spokeman added.

The Campaign Finance Reform Act:

—Requires disclosure of the place of business and occupation of all contributors of more than $200, and bans virtually all anonymous donations under $10.

—Establishes 10 separate categories of in-kind contributions.

—Limits a candidate to one official committee, treasurer and bank depository.

—Requires independent committees and candidates to file reports on certain dates.

Violations are penalized by a $1,000 fine. If a report is not filed, the State Elections Division will withhold the certificate of election.

BOY OF THE YEAR: Kenneth Ivory, 17, of Milwaukee, Wis., is congratulated by President Ford Wednesday in Washington on being installed as national "Boy of the Year" in a special White House ceremony. President Ford presented a plaque to Ivory, a senior and class president at Lincoln High School where he is captain of the football, basketball and baseball teams. (AP Wirephoto)

30 Days To 'Confess'

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The head of the Michigan Welfare Department wants to give welfare cheaters 30 days to confess without fear of prosecution.

John Dempsey made the proposal Wednesday to the state's 83 county prosecutors. He said the 30-day "hands off" policy might encourage persons who fraudulently obtained welfare benefits to return the money to the state.

Dempsey told a news conference that welfare fraud cases are seldom if ever prosecuted. But he added that the moratorium could be one element in a 10-week review of some 193,000 Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) cases.

State officials hope to cut error rates of ineligible cases and save about $30 million in federal welfare funds. The U.S. government has threatened to withhold that much money from Michigan unless the state cuts its rate of errors in ineligible payments.

Dempsey said the Michigan Prosecuting Attorneys Association has mailed letters urging prosecutors to impose a moratorium on welfare fraud cases.

He called federal error standards "unrealistic, arbitrary and unfair" but said Michigan must try to achieve them or lose the federal funds.

Gov. William Milliken on Tuesday anounced a "welfare eradication effort" in a special report to the legislature.

Milliken also told lawmakers he would establish pilot programs around the state which would coordinate all human services. The projects will study mini-mergers of mental health services — a concept he still supports on the state level although a bill merging those departments died last year.

The governor stressed the need to remove ineligible recipients from the welfare rolls and reduce overpayments.

He said 7.8 per cent of those getting ADC payments are not eligible, 27.9 per cent are overpaid and 8.2 per cent are underpaid.

Malpractice Bills In Senate

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A package of 14 bills which constitutes a major program aimed at solving the medical malpractice insurance crisis was introduced in the Michigan Senate Wednesday.

The bills contain the recommendations of the state insurance commissioner to make insurance available to all doctors. The program was announced last month in a report to Gov. William Milliken.

The key to the program involves a proposed state fund to insure doctors who cannot buy malpractice insurance. An estimated 3,300 of Michigan's 11,000 doctors have reportedly been unable to buy such insurance from private companies.

The rates under the special, legislatively-created fund, would be the same or slightly higher than those available from private companies, said Michael Dively, deputy director of the state Commerce Department and co-author of the package.

Money for the fund would come from assessments on all doctors in Michigan.

The program contains 30 recommendations in all, which include providing funds to increase regulation and monitoring of medical performance; requiring better reporting on malpractice determinations against doctors; and studying the possibility of a "no-fault" system to compensate for injuries resulting from medical treatment.

Other malpractice legislation also is under study, including a proposal to spread those doctors unable to get insurance through the entire insurance business, forcing each company to accept its share.

Oil, Social Security Debate Rages

Tax Cut Bill Bogged In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite pressure for a quick tax cut, the Senate is bogged down in debate on whether the tax-cut bill should raise Social Security benefits and the taxes of major oil companies.

With a planned Easter recess approaching, the Senate after two full days of debate has yet to consider the basic provisions of the $29.2-billion antirecession tax cut recommended by its Finance Committee.

A breakthrough could come today with a vote on whether to end debate on the tax package and the side-issues of Social Security hikes and oil-industry taxes.

But even if the motion carries, each senator would be allowed one hour of debate and that could carry the discussion well into next week.

Reviewing the Senate's work over the preceding two days, Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., floor manager of the bill, said Wednesday: "We have yet to vote on the first tax cut for anybody."

Instead, the net effect of the Senate action thus far has been to increase some corporate taxes by:

—Eliminating the oil depletion allowance for major companies but retaining it for independent producers under certain conditions. This would raise the taxes of the oil companies by some $1.2 billion a year.

—Repealing the foreign tax credit for oil companies, meaning a tax increase of at least $1 billion.

—Repealing the foreign-income deferral, thus raising taxes on U.S. corporations by a minimum $600 million.

Long is fighting every effort to add amendments that could transform the legislation into something beyond a tax-cut measure. Meanwhile, the White House, in almost daily pronouncements, is calling for quick passage of a bill that cuts taxes and does nothing else.

Still another factor was added Wednesday night when Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., offered a $2.4-billion amendment to raise Social Security benefits an average 8.7 per cent, retroactive to Jan. 1.

Under present law, benefits for the 31 million Social Security recipients are due to go up by that amount on July 1. Congress has shown no inclination to follow President Ford's urging that the hike be held to 5.5 per cent in an effort to reduce federal spending.

On a surprisingly quick voice vote, the Senate adopted an amendment by Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., to repeal the foreign tax credit for the major oil companies. This would result in a $1-billion increase in the companies' tax liability.

This amendment still allows the oil companies to subtract foreign taxes from their taxable income, and it reduces the standard 48-per-cent corporate tax rate on such earnings to 24 per cent.

A second Hartke amendment, approved 73 to 24, eliminates for all U.S. companies a provision allowing firms to defer paying taxes on income earned abroad until that money is returned to the United States.

If the foreign income is reinvested in a foreign country, it can escape taxation altogether. The Hartke amendment requires that all foreign income be taxed in the year it is earned.

Lake Ferry Service May End

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Co. is seeking to abandon ferry service across Lake Michigan as well as some 150 miles of track between Manistee, Traverse City and Petoskey.

The line said it is losing money and told the Interstate Commerce Commission it can no longer afford to operate the car-ferry, which runs between Ludington, Mich. and Kewaunee, Wis. and Manitowoc, Wis.

In all, the C&O is seeking to abandon 1,000 miles of track in eight states.

RAGING WATERS: Portions of U.S. route 460 east of Lynchburg, Va., were under water Wednesday as a result of heavy rains which fell Tuesday and early Wednesday. The rainfall, which totaled 2.47 inches in the area, caused several schools to close as well as portions of U.S. Route 260 east and numerous secondary schools. (AP Wirephoto)

Lake Ferry Service May End

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Co. is seeking to abandon ferry service across Lake Michigan as well as some 150 miles of track between Manistee, Traverse City and Petoskey.

The line said it is losing money and told the Interstate Commerce Commission it can no longer afford to operate the car-ferry, which runs between Ludington, Mich. and Kewaunee, Wis. and Manitowoc, Wis.

In all, the C&O is seeking to abandon 1,000 miles of track in eight states.

RAGING WATERS: Portions of U.S. route 460 east of Lynchburg, Va., were under water Wednesday as a result of heavy rains which fell Tuesday and early Wednesday. The rainfall, which totaled 2.47 inches in the area, caused several schools to close as well as portions of U.S. Route 260 east and numerous secondary schools. (AP Wirephoto)

Saigon Abandons Three More Provinces

SAIGON, South Vietnam (AP) — The number of provinces abandoned or lost by the South Vietnamese government rose to seven today, and at least three more may be given up, government officials disclosed.

The territory conceded to the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong includes Hue, the former imperial capital on the northern coast and a city of 200,000 people.

Officials said the latest additions to the list of lost provinces are Binh Long, only 60 miles north of Saigon, and Thua Thien, on the northern coast. Hue is the capital of Thua Thien.

The abandonment of Quang Tri, the country's northernmost province, was reported Wednesday. Three in the Central Highlands — Kontum, Pleiku and Darlac — were given up early this week, and Phuoc Long, east of Binh Long, was overrun by the North Vietnamese in January.

The seven provinces total about 13,000 square miles, a fifth of South Vietnam's total area and a territory slightly smaller than Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island combined.

The population of the seven provinces totals about 1.7 million, just under 10 per cent of South Vietnam's total. Hundreds of thousands of these are fleeing from Communist control and will put an added strain on the Saigon government's already-huge economic burden.

President Nguyen Van Thieu in a five-minute radio address today acknowledged the abandonment of Kontum and Pleiku only. He said they were given up without a fight because government forces in the highlands were outnumbered 4-to-1 and because of the limitation of American aid.

Thieu charged that North Vietnam had launched a general offensive across South Vietnam and committed 19 divisions (about 115,000 men) to it. He said Hanoi had sent five of its eight strategic reserve divisions across the border in January and February to join this force.

Thieu's government announced the nightly curfew in the Saigon area had been advanced two hours, from midnight to 10 p.m. "because of the present emergency situation and security requirements."

It was the first such extension of the curfew since the big North Vietnamese Eastern offensive in 1972. But some South Vietnamese officers said it was a precautionary measure and that they saw no threat of an immediate major attack on the capital.

Hundreds of thousands of refugees were streaming along the roads leading out of the provinces being given up and those adjoining. There were no reports of any attempts by the North Vietnamese or Viet Cong to interfere with them.

Highway 1, the country's main north-south road along the coast, was jammed south of Hue as frightened civilians made the 40-mile journey to Da Nang, the country's second largest city.

U.S. officials said four American government employes working in Hue had been evacuated, but four American civilians there had not been located yet.

DOCTORS' STRIKE CONTINUES: Picketing doctors in training stand under canopy of Mount Sinai Hospital in rainy New York City Wednesday as a strike by resident doctors and interns continued at 22 hospitals. The strike by 3,000 members of the Committee of Interns and Residents got underway Monday and a spokesman said Wednesday that there was no sign of a settlement in sight. (AP Wirephoto).

Jury To Quiz Scott's Dad On Patty Hearst's Flight

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The father of sports activist Jack Scott is to testify today before a federal grand jury investigating the flight of Patricia Hearst and two Symbionese Liberation Army companions.

The FBI has been seeking John J. Scott's son to determine if he knows the whereabouts of Miss Hearst, SLA members Emily and William Harris and Wendy Yoshimura, who is sought on 1972 bomb possession charges. No charges have been placed against young Scott in the Hearst case.

Miss Hearst, daughter of newspaper executive Randolph A. Hearst, and the three other fugitives were reported to have hidden last year at a South Canaan, Pa., farmhouse rented by a woman identifying herself as the younger Scott's wife, Micki.

The elder Scott's attorney, Doron Weinberg, said his client testified before the grand jury here March 6.

Weinberg said John Scott, an apartment house manager at Las Vegas, Nev., last saw his son about two weeks ago in the Nevada city.

Jack Scott, 33, former athleic director at Oberlin College in Ohio, once wrote that he wanted to fight "the authoritarian, racist, militaristic nature of contemporary athletics."

The Long Island newspaper Newsday said Jack Scott had been in contact with Miss Hearst and may be with her and her SLA companions.

FBI interest also includes pro basketball star Bill Walton, apparently because the Scotts live in Walton's $100,000 home near Portland, Ore.

Walton was questioned by FBI agents at San Francisco for 20 minutes last week, but he told newsmen later he knew nothing of any connection between the Scotts and the Pennsylvania house.

The 22-year-old Portland Trailblazers star also denied he knew anything about the whereabouts of Miss Hearst, or anyone in the SLA.

He said the Scotts were "on vacation" at a place unknown to him.

Scott also aroused FBI interest because of two visits to William H. Brandt, an inmate at California's Soledad Prison. Brandt, 27, is serving a 6-month to 15-year sentence for possession of explosives.

Authorities say Brandt's roster of visitors included Kathy Soliah, a good friend of SLA member Angela Atwood. Miss Atwood and five other members of the terrorist band were killed in a fiery shootout with Los Angeles police on May 17, 1974.

At a June 2, 1974, rally at Berkeley, Calif., Miss Soliah exhorted the Harrises and Miss Hearst to "keep fighting."

Brandt, two men and Miss Yoshimura, 32, were indicted in connection with a March 31, 1972, raid in Berkeley where police seized pipe bombs and a machine gun in a garage rented by the woman. Miss Yoshimura escaped and has been a fugitive ever since.

Crim Asks Mortgage Assistance

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The federal government should create a fund to help the unemployed and elderly meet home mortgage payments, Michigan House Speaker Bobby Crim said Wednesday.

The proposed federal Homeowners Loan Corp. would pay mortgages, acquire and refinance mortgages and reclaim homes already lost to foreclosure, the Davison Democrat said.

Crim appeared before the U.S. Sentate Subcommittee on Housing and Urban Affairs in Washington, D.C. A copy of his remarks was released from his Lansing Office.

In December, when Michigan's unemployment rate was nine per cent, the outstanding debts of unemployed workers included an estimated $1.35 billion in mortgages, Crim said. Those mortgage debts carried accompanying annual interest obligations of $94.5 million, he said.

Berrien Circuit Judge Sends 5 Men To Prison

Of six men sentenced yesterday by Berrien Circuit Judge William S. White, five got prison terms, and the sixth was sentenced to the county jail.

Four of the six were sentenced for assaultive crimes.

Willie E. Field, 29, of 141 Quince court, Benton Harbor, was sentenced to 10 to 30 years in prison for armed robbery. Field was accused of robbing Hubert Love with a .22 revolver Sept. 13 at 722 East Washington avenue, Benton Harbor, and stealing currency.

Kenneth T. Bolen, 18, of 353 High street, Benton Harbor, drew a 5 to 15 year prison term for assault with intent to rob while armed. He was charged with assaulting Bob Hoffman with a machette Dec. 6 at the American laundry, on Pipestone street, in Benton Harbor.

Herbert Wells, Jr., 28, of Hopewell, Va., got 2 to 4 years for felonious assault. He was accused of assaulting his estranged wife, Theresa, with a handgun Oct. 27 at her trailer at 604 West John Beers road, Lincoln township.

George M. Dunn, 19, of 868 Wells street, Benton Harbor, was sentenced to 30 months to 4 years in prison for larceny in a building. Dunn was charged with stealing an auto transmission owned by Russell Brant from a garage on Territorial road, Benton township, on Nov. 5.

Samuel Bell, 18, address unknown, got 18 months to 2 years in prison for attempted assault with a deadly weapon. He was accused of attempting to assault Kathleen Bruce with a rifle Dec. 14 at 1097 McAllister avenue, Benton Harbor.

Sentenced to six months in the county jail was Robert E. Garner, 22, of Hagar Shores, for conspiracy to receive and conceal stolen property valued at under $100. However, Garner was freed, since he had already served 145 days in jail, and credit for good behavior brought his total to six months.

Paw Paw Man Heads For Trial

PAW PAW — Jerry Dale DeProw, 2, 100 Michigan avenue, Paw Paw, was bound over to circuit court following preliminary examination yesterday on charges of resisting arrest and assault with intent to do great bodily harm.

DeProw was arrested March 10 as the result of a fight near the Paw Paw village hall in which Robert Larry Brown, 30, of Kalamazoo, suffered a knife wound in the abdomen.

Brown was treated for the injury at Lake View Community hospital, Paw Paw, and later released, according to hospital authorities.

DeProw is accused of assaulting Officer Larry Fisher of the Paw Paw village police as he attempted to take him into custody in connection with the case.

Jury Acquits BH Man Of Break-In Charge

A Berrien circuit court jury deliberated one hour yesterday at the conclusion of a two-day trial in Judge Chester J. Byrns' court before acquitting a Benton Harbor man accused of breaking and entering.

Cleared was Chuck (also known as Lamart) Roberts, 25, of 141 Oden street.

He had been accused of breaking into the home of David Kemp, at 767 Pearl street, Benton Harbor, on Oct. 31. Opposing counsel were St. Joseph Atty. Paul Jancha and Assistant Prosecutor Scott Beaky.

Berrien District Court Hands Down 3 Sentences

One man was bound over to circuit court, one demanded examination, three people were sentenced and three pleaded not guilty in Berrien Fifth District court yesterday.

Kenneth R. Turney, 20, was bound over to circuit court on a charge of breaking and entering in connection with a burglary at the Andrews university campus store, June 7. Turney remained in jail in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Court records listed Turney's address as the House of David, Empire avenue, Benton Harbor.

Leroy Cobb, 17, of 714 Ash street, Niles, demanded examination on a charge of delivery of marijuana on Jan. 29 in Niles. He was arrested during a Berrien Metro narcotics squad raid March 18. He remains in jail in lieu of $5,000.

Sentenced were:

Charles F. Richards, 30, of 517 North Cass street, Berrien Springs, $151 or 45 days for driving under the influence of intoxicants in connection with a traffic accident March 18 in Oronoko township.

Robert E. Robinson, 20, of 471 Maple, Benton Harbor, $40 or 20 days for failure to stop, identify and report a traffic accident Jan. 13 in Benton Harbor.

Robert E. Cooper, 34, Muskegon, $200 for driving under the influence of intoxicants Feb. 7 in St. Joseph.

Pleading innocent were Dennis P. McGill, 24, Judy's hotel and Danny A. Rush, 19, of 306 Marshall street, both of New Buffalo, on charges of entering without permission a house at 15 McKean drive, Grand Beach, on March 15.

Kenneth R. Lott, 19, of 105½ St. Joseph road, Berrien Springs, pleaded innocent to charges of possession and use of marijuana March 14 in Berrien Springs. He was released on $500 bond.

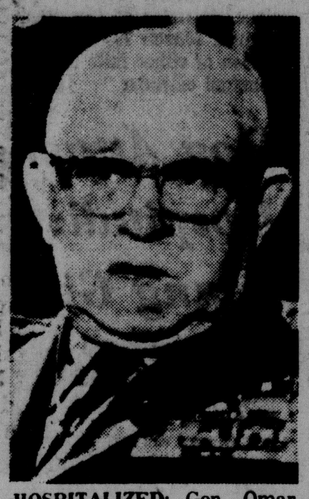
Berrien Circuit Judge Sends 5 Men To Prison

Of six men sentenced yesterday by Berrien Circuit Judge William S. White, five got prison terms, and the sixth was sentenced to the county jail.



HOSPITALIZED: Gen. Omar Bradley, the highest ranking military officer in the United States, has suffered a cerebral hemorrhage, a military spokesman said Wednesday. Bradley, 82, is listed in stable condition at the UCLA Medical Center, where he was admitted early Monday morning. (AP Wirephoto)

Four of the six were sentenced for assaultive crimes.

Willie E. Field, 20, of 141 Quince court, Benton Harbor, was sentenced to 10 to 30 years in prison for armed robbery. Field was accused of robbing Hubert Love with a .22 revolver Sept. 13 at 722 East Washington avenue, Benton Harbor, and stealing currency.

Kenneth T. Isom, 18, of 383 High street, Benton Harbor, drew a 5 to 15 year prison term for assault with intent to rob while armed. He was charged with assaulting Bob Hoffman with a machette Dec. 6 at the American laundry, on Pipestone street, in Benton Harbor.

Herbert Wells, Jr., 28, of Hopewell, Va., got 2 to 4 years for felonious assault. He was accused of assaulting his estranged wife, Theresa, with a handgun Oct. 27 at her trailer at 604 West John Beers road, Lincoln township.

George M. Dunn, 19, of 808 Wells street, Benton Harbor, was sentenced to 30 months to 4 years in prison for larceny in a building. Dunn was charged with stealing an auto transmission owned by Russell Brant from a garage on Territorial road, Benton township, on Nov. 5.

Samuel Bell, 19, address unknown, got 16 months to 2 years in prison for attempted assault with a deadly weapon. He was accused of attempting to assault Kathleen Bruce with a rifle Dec. 14 at 1091 McAllister avenue, Benton Harbor.

Sentenced to six months in the county jail was Robert E. Garner, 22, of Hagar Shores, for conspiracy to receive and conceal stolen property valued at under $100. However, Garner was freed, since he had already served 145 days in jail, and credit for good behavior brought his total to six months.

Paw Paw Man Heads For Trial

PAW PAW — Jerry Dale DeProw, 2, 109 Michigan avenue, Paw Paw, was bound over to circuit court following preliminary examination yesterday on charges of resisting arrest and assault with intent to do great bodily harm.

DeProw was arrested March 10 as the result of a fight near the Paw Paw village hall in which Robert Larry Brown, 30, of Kalamazoo, suffered a knife wound in the abdomen.

Brown was treated for the injury at Lake View Community hospital, Paw Paw, and later released, according to hospital authorities.

DeProw is accused of assaulting Officer Larry Fisher of the Paw Paw village police as he attempted to take him into custody in connection with the case.

April Cancer Drive Chaiman Is Named

Attorney David J. Williams of St. Joseph has been named chairman of the American Cancer Society's Berrien county 1975 educational and fund-raising crusade to be held in April.

This year's theme will be: "We want to wipe out cancer in your lifetime."

Williams' appointment was announced at the March meeting of the county board. He will lead volunteers on a county-wide effort to help teach families how to protect themselves against cancer.

American Cancer Society volunteers will ask for fiscal support of the society's programs on behalf of research, public and professional education and service to the cancer patient.

The promise of research is so great," the new crusade chairman said, "that the 1975 crusade is one of the most important ever. The dedicated people in laboratories, the men, women and children suffering from cancer, and our hopes for the future all depend on our willingness to support the cancer fight."

Over 1,000 volunteers will visit friends, neighbors and businesses in Berrien county communities. They will distribute this year's crusade leaflet of cancer information.

Sub chairmen are Mrs. Joseph Ropele, Rev. Fr. Robert F. Andrews, rector of St. Paul's Episcopal church and Selmer Anderson, YMCA program director.

Area chairman include: George J. Javor, Andrews university; Mrs. Robert Sonnenberg, Bainbridge township; Mrs. William Feather, Baroda; Mrs. Mary Lou Graham, Benton Harbor; Mrs. Clifford Masterson, Benton township; Mrs. Dan A. Kline, Berrien Springs; Mrs. Donovan Moon, Berrien township; Mrs. Richard Knuts, Bertrand.

Mrs. C. E. Phillippi, Buchanan; Mrs. Conrad Larson, Buchanan township; Mrs. Erwin Schmidt, Coloma; Mrs. Ken Stewart, Coloma township; Mrs. Charles Denk, Chikaming township; Mrs. Oliver Rector, Fairplain; Mrs. Ronald Inman, Hagar township; Mrs. Arthur Howell, Galien; Mrs. Randy Pschigoda, Lake township; Mrs. Erick Petznick, Lincoln township.

Mrs. Ross VanAllen, New Buffalo and New Buffalo township; Mrs. Donald White, Niles; Mrs. Elvia Liles, Niles township (north) Mrs. Donald Pears, Niles township (south); Mrs. Phil Merkel, Oronoko township; Mrs. John Glassman, Pipestone township; Mrs. Thomas Fillwock, Royalton township; Mrs. Ronald Willging, St. Joseph; Mrs. Ronald D. Drews, St. Joseph township; Mrs. Otis Joseph, Sodus township; Mrs. Fred Williams, Three Oaks; Mrs. Donald Nimitz, Weesaw township.

"We want to take cancer out of the medical books and put it in the history books as something that afflicted people a long time ago," Williams said. "The Society's long-range objective is to eliminate cancer entirely as a disease of mankind, while the immediate goal is to save more lives and to diminish suffering from cancer to the fullest extent possible."

Williams has been associated with the law firm of Fisher, Troff and Fisher since June, 1972. He previously was an attorney on the general counsel's staff of Seaboard Coast Line Industries, and an attorney on the legal staff of the Federal Trade Commission in Washington.

A 1956 graduate of St. Joseph High school, he received his bachelor's of arts degree from Albion college in 1960 and his juris doctor from Louisiana State University law school in 1969.

Williams spent a combined total of nine years on active duty and in the reserve duty with the United States Marine corps in which he reached the rank of captain.

Williams teaches business law at Lake Michigan college. He is a church-school teacher and serves on the vestry of St. Paul's Episcopal church, St. Joseph.

He and his wife, Susan, live with their two sons in St. Joseph township.

County Cancer Chairman

Women May Keep Names

BOSTON (AP) — After six years of trying, women in Massachusetts are likely to get the statutory right to keep their maiden names after marriage.

Three proposals — one of them already on the desk of Gov. Michael S. Dukakis — aim to clarify the common-law right a woman already has to choose her married name. Opposition is not expected from Dukakis.

Posse Will Pick Queen April 26

HARTFORD — A Van Buren county sheriff's posse queen will be chosen in a contest to be held April 26, at 2 p.m., at the Van Buren county youth fair grounds, according to a posse spokesman.

Entry applications must be returned to posse members by April 12, the spokesman said.

Applicants must be between 16 and 25, single and a resident of the county in order to enter the contest.

Capistrano Tourists See Very Few

Swallows Can't Read Dates

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (AP) — Wednesday was the day when the tourists came back to Capistrano. They didn't see many swallows.

The tourists came back because they can read calendars and knew it was March 19 — St. Joseph's Day. It was the day the swallows, by local legend, always return to the Mission San Juan Capistrano. And there are people who like to watch swallows arriving.

But ornithologists don't buy the tale of unerring swallow punctuality and say the birds flit in from their wintering areas in South America any old time in March.

Fewer swallows are arriving to start plastering their mud nests on the walls of the old San Juan Capistrano mission. Man's intrusions have diminshed the flocks.

In years past, upwards of 30,000 swallows made the long migration to Capistrano to feed off the insects that preyed on area crops.

But most of the farmland has given way to housing developments, and the birds have been flying on to other areas with fewer people and more open space.

Still, the legend lives on in this sleepy community 60 miles south of Los Angeles.

Many local folk maintain that early arrivals among the swallows are "scouts," that the tardy arrivals are "laggards" but that the main force gets here promptly on March 19 — even in leap years.

The legend of the swallows is lost in the past. Some say the birds were thick here even before the "Jewel of the Missions" was built by Father Junipera Serra in 1776.

A city press release gives this version:

"The swallows took refuge at the mission centuries ago after a local innkeeper smashed their nests because their chatter disturbed his customers.

"A padre walking by took pity on the birds and cried out for them to come to the mission, which traditionally welcomes all God's creations.

"The swallows have, ever since, departed on Oct. 23 and arrived March 19, a demonstration of either faith or an instinctual calendar."

Dog Attack Hospitalizes Young Girl

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP) — A 4-year-old Muskegon girl was hospitalized in fair condition Wednesday after an attack by a dog caused wounds doctors said required nearly 1,000 stitches to close.

Sally Simon said her daughter, Shawn, was attacked by a large St. Bernard-German Shepherd mixed blood dog while playing at a neighbor's home Sunday.

Mrs. Simon said she was told the attack occurred after a group of children had been playing near the chained animal and feeding it popcorn.

The girl's injuries included numerous cuts and punctures about the head. A neurosurgeon had to operate to remove bone splinters from her brain after doctors discovered one of the dog's fangs penetrated her skull, Mrs. Simon said.

Woman Patient Wins Sex Therapy Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — A woman patient has won $350,000 in damages from a prominent East Side psychiatrist convicted of coercing her into 14 months of sexual therapy on his office couch.

The award followed an eight-day state Supreme Court trial on a $1.25 million malpractice suit filed by Julie Roy, a San Francisco store clerk, against Dr. Renatus Hartogs, 66.

Pressing for the full $1.25 million in damages, Miss Roy's attorney, Robert Cohen, told the jury of four women and two men that "the scars of Dr. Hartogs' treatment lay heavily on her.

"This doctor, to satisfy his own petty desires, took this nice, sick little girl and had sex with her for 14 months. People like Julie have to be protected."

Tuesday the jury ruled that Dr. Hartogs had seduced Miss Roy, 36, as part of his treatment. Deliberations continued Wednesday and the jurors awarded Miss Roy $250,000 compensatory damages and $100,000 in punitive damages.

Throughout the trial, the bearded, portly psychiatrist insisted that he had never had sex with his patients. Wednesday, his lawyer, Samuel Halpern declared:

"She's not entitled to five cents."

Hartogs moved for the verdict to be set aside as excessive. Justice Allen Murray reserved decision on the motion.

Miss Roy, a former secretary for Esquire magazine, contended that Dr. Hartogs induced her to have sex regularly on his office couch during her twice weekly therapy sessions in 1969-70. The treatment worsened her emotional condition, she said.

Madeline Sherwood, who played the role of the mother superior in the "Flying Nun" television series, testified for Miss Roy that she had sexual relations with Hartogs while she was his patient 26 years ago. Justice Murray threw out her testimony, however, because of the long lapse of time.

Dr. Hartogs is also being sued for malpractice by Corrine Stern, 50, a Hillsdale, N.J., school teacher, who claimed that he had sex with her regularly during seven years as his patient.

Denying that he had had intercourse with his patients, Dr. Hartogs said that his office couch was only 20 inches wide and added that a tumor on a testicle made sex impossible for him.

State Court Of Appeals Upholds 1973 Conviction In Van Buren

PAW PAW — The state court of appeals has upheld the 1973 Van Buren circuit court conviction of a Detroit man on a charge of unlawful use of a motor vehicle.

In his appeal, Frank S. Thompson, 21, argued that the circuit court had accepted his guilty plea to the charge without informing him that any possible sentence he received could be made consecutive with a sentence he received on a charge of concealing stolen property in Detroit.

In its ruling, the appeals court said that the law requires only that the trial court advise the defendant about minimum and maximum sentences for any offense to which a plea is offered.

"We do not interpret this language to require trial court to inform defendant of the possible consecutive nature of sentence," the court said.

Thompson, according to court records, was arrested near Paw Paw May 7, 1973 on a charge of auto theft in connection with a vehicle reported missing earlier from Detroit. At the time he was out on bond, awaiting trial on the Detroit charge of concealing stolen property.

In August, 1973, Thompson was sentenced to serve from 20 to 30 months in state prison on the concealing stolen property charge. In September he pleaded guilty in Van Buren circuit court to an amended charge of unlawful use of a motor vehicle.

Thompson was subsequently sentenced in October to serve from 16 months to two years in prison.

Witness Says He Also Shot

A medical examiner testified at a preliminary hearing for Lacy that Govatos died from three gunshot wounds to the neck at the base of the skull. Smietanka did not attempt to explain when the third shot was fired.

Marshall testified that before the two went to the Oasis, Lacy told him: "I'll probably have to kill that ...(obscenity)..."

"I thought he was jokin'," Marshall said softly.

Marshall said Lacy had told him in November that he (Lacy) "wanted to kill this...(obscenity)....one day" because Govatos had brought charges against Lacy previously.

Court records show Lacy, in March, 1973, was acquitted in Berrien circuit court of a charge of uttering and publishing a bad check for $175. The person who signed the complaint, and testified against Lacy at trial, was John Govatos.

The chain of events relating to the murder, according to Marshall's testimony yesterday:

On Friday (Jan. 3), Lacy and he went to the Oasis intending to rob it. Marshall lay in the grass outside the store, waiting for Govatos to come out, while Lacy drove around in a cab. Govatos was detained, Lacy picked up Marshall, and both went home.

Saturday (Jan. 4) afternoon, Lacy met Marshall and asked: "Are we still going to do it?" Marshall said he was "scared," Lacy called him a "coward."

Lacy got a .38 revolver from Charles Howard (held at the county jail as a material witness, he earlier testified he gave Lacy his gun.). Howard, Marshall, and Lacy in the early evening drove out to the Oasis "planning on robbin' it," but called off the robbery because of too many people inside the store.

He and Lacy went to a woman's house, found out what time the store closed, then went to a bar. There, Marshall took some speed.

He and Lacy went back to the Oasis in the cab Marshall was driving (he was a cab driver for Twin Cities Taxi), waited in the cab on the shoulder of US-33 until the lights in the store went out, "then he (Govatos) came out." They drove up and asked Govatos where they could get some gas, he told them the closest place was Benton Harbor. Marshall drove off because he was "scared," Lacy "called me some names," so they returned.

Govatos was scraping ice off his windshield, so they drove up next to him, Marshall held a gun on Govatos, and both Marshall and Govatos got into Govatos' car.

Lacy drove off in the cab, and Govatos' car followed it to Jean Klock park in Benton Harbor.

Marshall got $40 from Govatos, but when he met Lacy, he told him "the dude don't have no money."

Lacy said: "After all the trouble we went to we're gonna get some money. This ...(obscenity)... is gonna give us some money."

They left Govatos' car at the beach, and returned to the Oasis in the cab, where the shooting occurred and the money stolen.

After the killing, they drove around awhile, picked up two women, went to a bar, and Marshall then dropped Lacy off and kept driving the cab. He threw out the shells from the .38 he still had—three live rounds and three spent cartridges. At no time did Marshall state how much was stolen during the robbery.

He said the next day Howard and Lacy came to his apartment where he returned the revolver to Howard, then all three went shopping in Gary and Michigan City.

Howard testified that Lacy and Marshall talked freely about the murder while driving to Indiana, but Marshall said they told him "nothing" happened at the Oasis.

Cross examination of Marshall was expected to be conducted today by Lacy's counsel, Benton Harbor Atty. James Ford. Ford said he plans to begin calling defense witnesses after that.

Information Calls May Cost Extra

pay phones, hospitals or hotels.

Under the plan, persons with visual, physical or mental handicaps who have difficulty using the telephone book would be exempt from the extra charges, Bell officials said.

It is similar to an Information-charge program now in effect in Georgia and at Cincinatti Bell, the firm said, where the number of calls dropped from 66,000 in January 1974, before extra charges, to 18,000 in January 1975.

Michigan Bell said Cincinnati Bell has found that five per cent of its customers make more than three calls per month and are assessed the extra charge for Information service while the remainder do not exceed the free-call limit.

Michigan Bell Vice President Lloyd Haynes said the information charges would help hold down future phone company rate increases and would redistribute information costs more equitably.

He said 30 per cent of Michigan Bell's 5,000 operators handle an average of 600,000 calls on a business day. It works out to 190 million calls to Information in Michigan every year.

He said 10 per cent of the firm's customers make almost 60 per cent of the calls to Information, and that one out of four Bell customers place more than three calls a month and would be affected by the charge.

"We are not trying to eliminate Information. It has been and will continue to be available for customers who want to make use of it. But those who use it the most should pay their fair share of the costs," he said.

Haynes said the plan would make it possible to hold basic residence rates about $4 less per year. He said the proposed charging plan would generate about $10 million annually, $2 million in increased revenues from the charge and the balance in savings from lowered expenses.

Bell officials said Information calls will cost extra in New York city beginning later this year. The Bell company will give a 30-cent credit to customers who make no information calls.

Teacher Admits Guilt; Nurse Says Innocent

The former director of nursing at Memorial hospital pleaded innocent and a Decatur special education teacher pleaded guilty, both to charges of disorderly person, soliciting a man to engage in a homosexual act.

Both men appeared in Berrien Fifth District court Wednesday.

David S. Mackie, 32, of 3005 Lake Shore drive, apartment 211, St. Joseph, pleaded innocent and was freed on $1,000 bond.

Jack H. Warner, 46, route 3, Twin Lakes, Dowagiac, pleaded guilty and was placed on presentence investigation. He was freed on $1,000 bond.

Both men were arrested by Berrien metro felony squad officers, Tuesday, at a rest area on M-140 south of Carmody road, Bainbridge township.

Supt. Wayne Hellenga at Decatur said his office was investigating. He said Warner was not at the school yesterday and was not expected today.

She defeneded her politcal morality under seven hours of cross examination Wednesday in a civil suit brought by an opposition politician who charged she used unfair tactics to win her parliamentary seat in the 1971 election. If the case goes against her, Mrs. Ghandhi would be forced to resign and lose the right to seek office for six years. (AP Wirephoto)

BH Man Is Injured In Pool Cue Attack

A Benton Harbor man received six stitches yesterday after he was hit on the head with a pool stick, city police said.

Booker T. Washington, 37, of 574 Cass street, was treated for a cut then released from Mercy hospital.

Washington told police he was hit during a fight at the Harbor Hotel, 209 Territorial road. Police said they were unable to get a description of the assailant. The fight was reported to police at 5:30 p.m.

Benton Harbor Patrolman John Pagel reported a motorist abandoned an allegedly stolen car and fled on foot Wednesday after going through a red light at 12th and Main streets.

Pagel said he observed the car make an illegal turn but couldn't catch the male driver. Linda Davis, 206 North Paw Paw avenue, later reported she was the owner of the abandoned car and that it had been stolen, Pagel said.

Benton Harbor police said a purse containing $100 cash was stolen from a room at Mercy hospital. Luba Allerton, of Route 5, Clawson road, Dowagiac, told police she had hung her purse on a doorknob in a room near the out-patient waiting area. The theft occurred Tuesday evening police said.

St. Joseph police said tools valued at $70 owned by the St. Joseph school district and Walter F. Kapp, 1913 South State street, were stolen from a truck. Police said the school truck had been parked at Milton junior high and at St. Joseph high school Tuesday night with the doors unlocked. Kapp is a school maintenance man.

Firemen Put Out Truck Blaze

Firemen said the fire broke out in a Great Lakes Express trailer on I-94 about 15 miles south of the Twin Cities. The truck driver had been trying to call a fire department via a citizen band radio. Meanwhile an unidentified motorist who had been following the truck called the fire department from a phone booth.

The driver, identified as LeRoy Coleman, of Dearborn, finally stopped at Pipestone and M-139.

Firemen said the fire was caused by cartons of merchandize falling on a charcoal heater in the trailer.

No estimate of damage was available, firemen said. The freight, being hauled by the Saginaw based company, included cans of spray paint which exploded because of the fire.

The blaze was reported at 4:38 a.m.

Probe Of Sub Lift Unlikely

vance on the CIA's recovery operation.

However, Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., a veteran member of both the Senate Armed Services and CIA oversight committees, complained that he was never informed.

Symington said if CIA Director William E. Colby "was spending that kind of money to raise a submarine without notifying proper committees of Congress that are supposed to review operations, I think he should resign."

Published reports have placed the cost of the operation at between $250 and $350 million.

Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., of the Senate CIA oversight committee, declined to comment. But Sen Milton R. Young, R-N.D., said he believed about four senators had been told about the project.

Young said it had turned up valuable intelligence about Russian submarines.

In the House, Rep. Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich., said the CIA provided detailed briefings on the submarine project to members of the House Armed Services intelligence subcommittee. He is chairman of that subcommittee and of the new House Select Committee investigating misuse of the agency's powers.

Questions of whether the effort to raise a relatively old Soviet sub was worth the financial cost and potential diplomatic embarrassment were privately raised, Nedzi said. He added that it would be useful to raise them again now that the operation has been made public.

"This obviously is a big project," he said. "For us to ignore it would not be proper under the circumstances."

He said, "The obvious questions are how much money do you invest? How much do you get for your money?"

But Nedzi said it is not Congress' role to approve or disapprove such an operation. He made no call for immediate hearings or consideration by the new committee.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of a new Senate committee looking into intelligence activities, said after a meeting of the panel that no decision had been made on whether the salvage effort would be examined.

But Church was critical of the cost. "If the CIA can spend $350 million with which to pay Howard Hughes to raise obsolete 18-year-old submarines, then I think the agency needs a cost-benefit ratio. No wonder we're going broke."

There were some reports that the Soviet government had long been aware of the salvage operation. There was no public comment or protest of any kind from the Soviets a full day after the disclosures.

President Ford and the CIA had no public comment.

Baroda Man Stands Mute To Charge

Authorities from the U.S. Department of Treasury arrested McCarver, 33, last November when he was found with a 12-gauge shotgun. In 1960, McCarver was sentenced to two to 15 years in prison by the Berrien county circuit court for burglarizing a Stevensville service station.

Murder Plots Told In Court

ford testified.

At this point in the hearing yesterday Dortch began crying and sobbing. Langford interrupted his testimony, glanced incredulously at Dortch, and told how Dortch had arranged for his son and the woman to be killed.

Langford, carrying a sawed-off shotgun under his jacket, went to the home of Brenda and Johnny Freeman one night in September "but I couldn't make a move 'cause there were people in the house," he testified.

He and Dortch met later and "Johnny Dortch said by me being seen she would have to go too," Langford testified, noting that on the night of the aborted murder try he entered the home, saw Brenda Freeman and the other people, made an excuse for his presence and left.

Dortch then phoned Miss Freeman, told her that a "friend" would be by to pick her up to give her some money from Dortch, Langford testified. On the night of Sept. 18 Langford picked up the woman and boy, he swore yesterday, drove them out to rural Pipestone township and killed them.

Testifying with the objectivity of an experienced homicide detective, Langford described the slayings.

"I picked them up on Catalpa (street in Benton Harbor). Dortch told me where to pick them up. Brenda got in front and put Johnny in back. I'd seen them only once before. We went to Black Lake road. I had the sawed-off (which he pulled from next to the seat and placed to the woman's temple)."

"I asked Brenda to get out, she did, and I shot her."

Langford testified that he then returned to the car, "got Johnny out," shot Johnny, then shot Miss Freeman again, then shot the boy again.

Harry Creager, attorney for Dortch, asked "Why did you shoot them each a second time?" Langford seemed astonished. "Because I had a contract to take them out," he thundered.

After a week or so had passed, and the bodies had not been found, Langford testified that at Dortch's instruction he called the state police and told them where the bodies could be found. This was done "so the policy would come down," Langford testified.

Within 60 days, Langford said, he had received a grand total of $1,000 from Dortch and Cross.

The next victim in the alleged scheme was Audrey Bridgewater Walker, who voluntarily bought $3,000 worth of insurance from Cross. The three $1,000 policies each had triple indemnity clauses and Langford was listed as the beneficiary, he testified.

Before she took out the policies Langford talked with Cross and implied that he might "take out" (kill) Mrs. Walker and split the insurance, Langford testified.

Chester Wilburn, manager of the Benton Harbor Western-Southern office and the immediate supervisor of both Cross and Dortch, testified that he was slightly suspicious about the death of the Freemans. He was also suspicious when he saw Mrs. Walker's application for a policy, he said yesterday.

At the time he asked Cross, who sold her the policy, whether or not Mrs. Walker and Langford were engaged to be married, as the application stated. He testified that he had questions about the legality of Langford being beneficiary and he expressed these questions to Cross. Still, he testified, the policy was written.

Sometime later he was working late one night with Dortch in the office on M-139. Wilburn said he heard a knock at the door. Dortch stood up and walked directly into the bathroom and Wilburn answered the door.

"I opened the door and there he (Langford) stood with a short shotgun pointed at me," Wilburn testified. "I asked him if he was kidding and he said 'this ain't no joke.'"

Langford then instructed him to empty his pockets and place the contents on a desk. "I thought he was going to rob me. I called 'Johnny, Johnny,' but Johnny didn't come out of the bathroom," he testified.

Figuring that Langford was going to kill him, Wilburn testified that he "took a run to the door and ran across a parking lot." He returned, nervously, when Langford came out of the building with the gun "broken down" and laughing about this fine joke, Wilburn said.

Langford earlier testified that he did not kill the man because he "pleaded for his life." He said he and Dortch and Cross planned the murder of Wilburn and Dortch was to tell police Wilburn had been robbed and shot by a man who left the office before Dortch got out of the bathroom.

Within two weeks' Wilburn testified, Audrey Bridgewater Walker was killed.

During Langford's preliminary examination two weeks ago it was brought out that she was shot with both a handgun and a shotgun. In his matter-of-fact, descriptive way, Langford explained why.

Aided by Cross, Langford borrowed a .32 pistol on the afternoon of Feb. 18. "I intended to kill her that night," he testified.

Langford and the woman went out that night and "ended up on Yore avenue, Sodus township," he said. They had been arguing "over another young lady," Mrs. Walker saw the .32 pistol in the car, "and pulled it on me," Langford related.

"I took it (the pistol). I asked her out of the car. She got out of the car. I shot her. She broke a-running. The .32 misfired. At that time I reached under the seat and got the sawed-off." Then, Langford testified, he shot her four times with the shotgun.

That night, after killing the woman, Langford testified he did several things: washed and returned the auto to its owner, Cross; went out for a drink; "smoked some weed;" drank some gin; went out for coffee and donuts; spent the night with a female acquaintance.

No insurance was paid following the death of Mrs. Walker, Langford said.

Also testifying yesterday were medical experts who said the cause of death in all three cases was gunshot wounds. No weapons have been found, according to McDowell.

UPON THIS ROCK

"Then he called for a light, and sprang in, and came trembling, and fell down before Paul and Silas, And brought them out, and said, Sirs, what must I do to be saved?"
Acts 16: 29-30

The most important question in the world: what must I do to be saved? It was asked by a Philippian jailor many years ago, and by many others since. The answer was given by Paul and Silas: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house." These words are true but they are only part of the answer. Believeing is necessary. But so is doing. "And they spake unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in his house." When the jailor learned the will of Jesus he also obeyed. "And he took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes; and was baptized, he and all his, straightway."

He believed and was baptized, as Jesus had commanded, and he was saved. "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." Mark 16: 15-16. Will you believe and obey and be saved? Witness Says He Also Shot

A medical examiner testified at a preliminary hearing for Lacy that Govatos died from three gunshot wounds to the neck at the base of the skull. Smietanka did not attempt to explain when the third shot was fired.

Marshall testifed that before the two went to the Oasis, Lacy told him: "I'll probably have to kill that ...(obscenity)..."

"I thought he was jokin'," Marshall said softly.

Marshall said Lacy had told him in November that he (Lacy) "wanted to kill this...(obscenity)....one day" because Govatos had brought charges against Lacy previously.

Court records show Lacy, in March, 1973, was acquitted in Berrien circuit court of a charge of uttering and publishing a bad check for $175. The person who signed the complaint, and testified against Lacy at trial, was John Govatos.

The chain of events relating to the murder, according to Marshall's testimony yesterday:

On Friday (Jan. 3), Lacy and he went to the Oasis intending to rob it. Marshall lay in the grass outside the store, waiting for Govatos to come out, while Lacy drove around in a cab. Govatos was detained, Lacy picked up Marshall, and both went home.

Saturday (Jan. 4) afternoon, Lacy met Marshall and asked: "Are we still going to do it?" Marshall said he was "scared," Lacy called him a "coward."

Lacy got a .38 revolver from Charles Howard (held at the county jail as a material witness, he earlier testified he gave Lacy his gun.). Howard, Marshall, and Lacy in the early evening drove out to the Oasis "planning on robbin' it," but called off the robbery because of too many people inside the store.

He and Lacy went to a woman's house, found out what time the store closed, then went to a bar. There, Marshall took some speed.

He and Lacy went back to the Oasis in the cab Marshall was driving (he was a cab driver for Twin Cities Taxi), waited in the cab on the shoulder of US-33 until the lights in the store went out, "then he (Govatos) came out." They drove up and asked Govatos where they could get some gas, he told them the closest place was Benton Harbor. Marshall drove off because he was "scared," Lacy "called me some names," so they returned.

Govatos was scraping ice off his windshield, so they drove up next to him, Marshall held a gun on Govatos, and both Marshall and Govatos got into Govatos' car.

Lacy drove off in the cab, and Govatos' car followed it to Jean Klock park in Benton Harbor.

Marshall got $40 from Govatos, but when he met Lacy, he told him "the dude don't have no money."

Lacy said: "After all the trouble we went to we're gonna get some money. This ...(obscenity)... is gonna give us some money."

They left Govatos' car at the beach, and returned to the Oasis in the cab, where the shooting occurred and the money stolen.

After the killing, they drove around awhile, picked up two women, went to a bar, and Marshall then dropped Lacy off and kept driving the cab. He threw out the shells from the .38 he still had—three live rounds and three spent cartridges. At no time did Marshall state how much was stolen during the robbery.

He said the next day Howard and Lacy came to his apartment where he returned the revolver to Howard, then all three went shopping in Gary and Michigan City.

Howard testified that Lacy and Marshall talked freely about the murder while driving to Indiana, but Marshall said they told him "nothing" happened at the Oasis.

Cross examination of Marshall was expected to be conducted today by Lacy's counsel, Benton Harbor Atty. James Ford. Ford said he plans to begin calling defense witnesses after that.

Information Calls May Cost Extra

pay phones, hospitals or hotels.

Under the plan, persons with visual, physical or mental handicaps who have difficulty using the telephone book would be exempt from the extra charges, Bell officials said.

It is similar to an Information-charge program now in effect in Georgia and at Cincinatti Bell, the firm said, where the number of calls dropped from 66,000 in January 1974, before extra charges, to 18,000 in January 1975.

Michigan Bell said Cincinnati Bell has found that five per cent of its customers make more than three calls per month and are assessed the extra charge for Information service while the remainder do not exceed the free-call limit.

Michigan Bell Vice President Lloyd Haynes said the information charges would help hold down future phone company rate increases and would redistribute information costs more equitably.

He said 30 per cent of Michigan Bell's 5,000 operators handle an average of 600,000 calls on a business day. It works out to 190 million calls to Information in Michigan every year.

He said 10 per cent of the firm's customers make almost 60 per cent of the calls to Information, and that one out of four Bell customers place more than three calls a month and would be affected by the charge.

"We are not trying to eliminate Information. It has been and will continue to be available for customers who want to make use of it. But those who use it the most should pay their fair share of the costs," he said.

Haynes said the plan would make it possible to hold basic residence rates about $4 less per year. He said the proposed charging plan would generate about $10 million annually, $2 million in increased revenues from the charge and the balance in savings from lowered expenses.

Bell officials said Information calls will cost extra in New York city beginning later this year. The Bell company will give a 30-cent credit to customers who make no information calls.

INVITED TO LUNCH

PARIS (AP) — Caroline and John F. Kennedy Jr. have been invited to lunch with President Valery Giscard d'Estaing on Friday, the Elysee Palace announced today.

Teacher Admits Guilt; Nurse Says Innocent

The former director of nursing at Memorial hospital pleaded innocent and a Decatur special education teacher pleaded guilty, both to charges of disorderly person, soliciting a man to engage in a homosexual act.

Both men appeared in Berrien Fifth District court Wednesday.

David S. Mackie, 32, of 3005 Lake Shore drive, apartment 211, St. Joseph, pleaded innocent and was freed on $1,000 bond.

Jack H. Warner, 46, route 3, Twin Lakes, Dowagiac, pleaded guilty and was placed on presentence investigation. He was freed on $1,000 bond.

Both men were arrested by Berrien metro felony squad officers, Tuesday, at a rest area on M-140 south of Carmody road, Bainbridge township.

Supt. Wayne Hellenga at Decatur said his office was investigating. He said Warner was not at the school yesterday and was not expected today.

LEGAL FIGHT: India's Prime Minister Indira Ghandi arrives at Allahabad, India, High Court Wednesday to complete her testimony in a legal battle to retain her post as head of government. She defeneded her politcal morality under seven hours of cross examination Wednesday in a civil suit brought by an opposition politician who charged she used unfair tactics to win her parliamentary seat in the 1971 election. If the case goes against her, Mrs. Ghandhi would be forced to resign and lose the right to seek office for six years. (AP Wirephoto)

BH Man Is Injured In Pool Cue Attack

A Benton Harbor man received six stitches yesterday after he was hit on the head with a pool stick, city police said.

Booker T. Washington, 37, of 574 Cass street, was treated for a cut then released from Mercy hospital.

Washington told police he was hit during a fight at the Harbor Hotel, 209 Territorial road. Police said they were unable to get a description of the assailant. The fight was reported to police at 5:30 p.m.

Benton Harbor Patrolman John Pagel reported a motorist abandoned an allegedly stolen car and fled on foot Wednesday after going through a red light at 12th and Main streets.

Pagel said he observed the car make an illegal turn but couldn't catch the male driver. Linda Davis, 206 North Paw Paw avenue, later reported she was the owner of the abandoned car and that it had been stolen, Pagel said.

Benton Harbor police said a purse containing $100 cash was stolen from a room at Mercy hospital. Luba Allerton, of Route 5, Clawson road, Dowagiac, told police she had hung her purse on a doorknob in a room near the out-patient waiting area. The theft occurred Tuesday evening police said.

St. Joseph police said tools valued at $70 owned by the St. Joseph school district and Walter F. Kapp, 1913 South State street, were stolen from a truck. Police said the school truck had been parked at Milton junior high and at St. Joseph high school Tuesday night with the doors unlocked. Kapp is a school maintenance man.

Three Niles Residents Hospitalized

NILES — Three Niles residents were hospitalized as the result of a two-car accident at Fifth and Main streets here last night.

Police identified the trio as Jeffrey Short, 17, Kevin Shelton, 16, and Edward Flick, 40.

Police said the accident occurred when a car driven by Shelton, eastbound on Main, struck a car driven by Flick, northbound on Fifth. Short was a passenger in Shelton's car.

A spokesman for Pawating hospital, Niles, said Shelton was in good condition early today while Short was listed as fairly good. Flick was reported in fair condition.

Police said Shelton was issued a ticket for reckless driving.

Firemen said the fire broke out in a Great Lakes Express trailer on I-94 about 15 miles south of the Twin Cities. The truck driver had been trying to call a fire department via a citizen band radio. Meanwhile an unidentified motorist who had been following the truck called the fire department from a phone booth.

The driver, identified as LeRoy Coleman, of Dearborn, finally stopped at Pipestone and M-139.

Firemen said the fire was caused by cartons of merchandize falling on a charcoal heater in the trailer.

No estimate of damage was available, firemen said. The freight, being hauled by the Saginaw based company, included cans of spray paint which exploded because of the fire.

The blaze was reported at 4:38 a.m.

Probe Of Sub Lift Unlikely

vance on the CIA's recovery operation.

However, Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., a veteran member of both the Senate Armed Services and CIA oversight committees, complained that he was never informed.

Symington said if CIA Director William E. Colby "was spending that kind of money to raise a submarine without notifying proper committees of Congress that are supposed to review operations, I think he should resign."

Published reports have placed the cost of the operation at between $250 and $350 million.

Chairman John C. Stennis, D-Miss., of the Senate CIA oversight committee, declined to comment. But Sen Milton R. Young R-N.D., said he believed about four senators had been told about the project.

Young said it had turned up valuable intelligence about Russian submarines.

In the House, Rep. Lucien N. Nedzi, D-Mich., said the CIA provided detailed briefings on the submarine project to members of the House Armed Services intelligence subcommittee. He is chairman of that subcommittee and of the new House Select Committee investigating misuse of the agency's powers.

Questions of whether the effort to raise a relatively old Soviet sub was worth the financial cost and potential diplomatic embarrassment were privately raised, Nedzi said. He added that it would be useful to raise them again now that the operation has been made public.

"This obviously is a big project," he said. "For us to ignore it would not be proper under the circumstances."

He said, "The obvious questions are how much money do you invest? How much do you get for your money?"

But Nedzi said it is not Congress' role to approve or disapprove such an operation. He made no call for immediate hearings or consideration by the new committee.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, chairman of a new Senate committee looking into intelligence activities, said after a meeting of the panel that no decision had been made on whether the salvage effort would be examined.

But Church was critical of the cost. "If the CIA can spend $350 million with which to pay Howard Hughes to raise obsolete 18-year-old submarines, then I think the agency needs a cost-benefit ratio. No wonder we're going broke."

There were some reports that the Soviet government had long been aware of the salvage operation. There was no public comment or protest of any kind from the Soviets a full day after the disclosures.

President Ford and the CIA had no public comment.

Baroda Man Stands Mute To Charge

Authorities from the U.S. Department of Treasury arrested McCarver, 33, last November when he was found with a 12-gauge shotgun. In 1960, McCarver was sentenced to two to 15 years in prison by the Berrien county circuit court for burglarizing a Stevensville service station.

Murder Plots Told In Court

ford testified.

At this point in the hearing yesterday Dortch began crying and sobbing. Langford interrupted his testimony, glanced incredulously at Dortch, and told how Dortch had arranged for his son and the woman to be killed.

Langford, carrying a sawed-off shotgun under his jacket, went to the home of Brenda and Johnny Freeman one night in September "but I couldn't make a move 'cause there were people in the house," he testified.

He and Dortch met later and "Johnny Dortch said by me being seen she would have to go too," Langford testified, noting that on the night of the aborted murder try he entered the home, saw Brenda Freeman and the other people, made an excuse for his presence and left.

Dortch then phoned Miss Freeman, told her that a "friend" would be by to pick her up to give her some money from Dortch, Langford testified. On the night of Sept. 18 Langford picked up the woman and boy, he swore yesterday, drove them out to rural Pipestone township and killed them.

Testifying with the objectivity of an experienced homicide detective, Langford described the slayings.

"I picked them up on Catalpa (street in Benton Harbor). Dortch told me where to pick them up. Brenda got in front and put Johnny in back. I'd seen them only once before. We went to Black Lake road. I had the sawed-off (which he pulled from next to the seat and placed to the woman's temple)."

"I asked Brenda to get out, she did, and I shot her."

Langford testified that he then returned to the car, "got Johnny out," shot Johnny, then shot Miss Freeman again, then shot the boy again.

Harry Creager, attorney for Dortch, asked "Why did you shoot them each a second time?" Langford seemed astonished. "Because I had a contract to take them out," he thundered.

Bangor Accepts Bids For New Middle School

BANGOR — Bids totaling $2,396,784 for the construction of a middle school here were accepted by the Bangor school board last night.

School officials set a 16-month construction time for the building to be located just southwest of the present high school.

Construction is being financed by a $4.1 million bond issued approved by school district voters in April, 1974.

Also included in the bond issue are funds for the demolition of the old high school now occupied by middle school students. The demolition and construction of an elementary school will come after completion of the middle school, officials said.

Middle school construction bids accepted by the board last night were about $200,000 under estimates of what costs would be, school officials said.

Receiving the contract for general construction was Elmridge Construction and Development company of Grand Rapids with its low bid, including alternates, of $1,601,224. High bid among 13 was $1,901,203, from Holland Construction of Holland.

Awarded the contract for plumbing, heating and ventilation was the Holland firm of Breuker and DenBleyker, Inc., with a low bid of $497,968. There were 10 bidders and highest bidder was K&L Mechanical of Holland with a bid of $602,052.

The electrical contract for $297,592, went to the lowest of seven bidders, Parkway Electric of Holland. High bidder was Berdu Electric, Inc., $352,300, also of Holland.

The contract for carpeting was taken under study by the board. The firm with the apparent low bid of $62,994 was Central Tile and Terrazzo company of Holland.

Area Health Revamp Due

The Southwestern Michigan Comprehensive Health Planning association (SMCHPA), regional health planning agency for Berrien, Van Buren and Cass counties, faces probable disbandment or incorporation into a larger health services grouping.

Under the new National Health Planning and Resources Development Act of 1974, Michigan currently is in the process of being divided geographically into new and larger administrative health service areas, according to the Michigan Association for Regional Medical Programs.

Federal guidelines call for the new regional groupings to have populations of not less than 500,000 and not more than 3 million. They also provide that an existing Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area must be entirely within the boundaries of a single health service area.

The current southwestern Michigan region covered by SMCHPA apparently does not meet the guideline requirements. It has a population of only about 270,000 persons and Van Buren county is a part of the Kalamazoo Standard Metropolitan Statistical Area.

SMCHPA is a nonprofit organization formed in 1969 for overall planning of health service needs in the three counties. It has reviewing power for federal grant requests for health care facilities and programs in the three counties.

John Ross, executive director of SMCHPA, said the realignment of health service regions in the state foreshadows some changes for his organization. But he noted that there are exceptions in the guidelines that conceivably could leave this region untouched.

He noted that the SMCHPA board is to meet Monday and is expected to develop a recommendation on this area's place in any new health service area. The recommendation is to be forwarded to Governor Milliken. The governor has until May 7 to submit the proposed new health services area boundaries for Michigan to the federal health, education and welfare department.

Berrien Sheriff To Offer Boating Classes For Teens

The Berrien sheriff's department's marine division will offer free boating classes for youths 12 to 16 years of age to enable youngsters to qualify for certificates to operate motorboats of six or more horsepower. The classes will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. on the third floor of the county courthouse in St. Joseph on March 24 and 31. Lt. William R. Beilman, marine officer, noted youths in the 12 to 16 age group must attend two two-hour classes and pass a written examination to obtain Michigan Boating Safety certificates that permit them to operate boats over six horsepower by themselves. Students are provided course texts, Beilman said, and added classes cover Michigan boating laws, safe boat handling, common sense while in a boat, and first aid.

Motorboat Control Ordinance Adopted

DOWAGIAC — Silver Creek township board adopted a water craft control ordinance for the operation of motorboats on Dewey lake last night.

The ordinance, which will become effective 30 days after publication, bans the operation of a boat at high speeds on the lake between the hours of 6:30 p.m. and 10 a.m. the following day.

It also bans a motor boat from towing a water skier or a water sled during these hours.

The lake will be posted with signs and the Cass county marine division of the sheriff's department will be responsible for enforcement of the ordinance, according to township officials.

The ordinance, which was requested by the lake property owners, is the first water control ordinance for any of the lakes in the township.

In other areas, the board agreed to notify Edward Case, owner of the Silver Creek kennels, that he is operating a commercial business in an area zoned for residential use.

Supervisor John Jerue was instructed by the board to investigate the possibility of obtaining an easement for a drain into Little Crooked lake because water has been seeping into the septic tanks of residents in the Adams drive area.

The board instructed township Attorney Daniel French to begin legal proceedings to collect delinquent personal property taxes on two parcels of land in the Highland beach area. The taxes, delinquent since 1970, amount to a total of $513.

The township annual meeting was scheduled for April 5 at 1 p.m. in the township hall on Dixon street.

The solid waste disposal was also scheduled to begin operation Saturday and will remain open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. every Saturday for the spring and summer months. The disposal is located at the former township hall on Townhall road.

The board voted to pay the Sister Lakes fire department $7,776 for fire and ambulance protection and agreed to purchase a metal detector for no more than $125.

Jewelry Reported Missing

NILES — Norma Hall, 1710 Howard street, Niles, told Niles township police yesterday that jewelry valued at $640 was taken in a break-in at her home.

Police said Mrs. Hall told officers she returned from a two-day stay in the hospital and found a window on the west side of the house had been broken.

Reported taken were a wedding ring set, valued at $250, a gold watch, valued at $200, and other assorted pieces of jewelry valued at $190.

BH Getting U.S. Grant Of $50,000

Congressman Edward Hutchinson announced the City of Benton Harbor will be awarded a $50,000 federal grant for the rebuilding of the pavilion at Jean Klock park. The grant will be from the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation of the Interior department.

MICHIGAN WEEK

Warner Again Regional Chief

KALAMAZOO — James J. Warner, executive vice president of Warner Vineyards, Paw Paw, has been reappointed region nine chairman for Michigan Week, according to William R. Biggs, Michigan Week deputy general chairman for western Michigan.

"Region nine (southwestern Michigan) hummed with Michigan Week activity last year under Jim Warner's direction," Biggs said. "I'm certain that the 1975 program will be equally effective in his capable hands as he directs Michigan Week plans in Berrien, Cass, Kalamazoo, St. Joseph, and Van Buren counties."

A graduate of Michigan State university, East Lansing, Warner is also president of Warner Vineyard Supplies, Lawton, and a director of the First National Bank of Lawton. He and his wife have two sons.

Michigan Week is sponsored by the Greater Michigan Foundation, a citizens' organization devoted to Michigan's advancement. Dates for the 22nd annual observance are May 17-24.

State Scholarship Exams April 26

LANSING — The first of three tests for high school juniors competing for state scholarships for the 1976-77 school year will be given April 26, the state board of education announced.

High school juniors who want to compete for the scholarships, which pay up to $1,200 annually for tuition at public and independent colleges, have until March 31 to register for the first exam. It will be given at 200 test centers throughout the state.

The state board has designated the American College Test (ACT) as the exam for State of Michigan scholarships.

An estimated 35,000 Michigan high school juniors are expected to take the examination April 26 or on alternate test dates later in the year. Other tests will be given June 14 and Oct. 19.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction John W. Porter said high school juniors can register to take the ACT at every high school in the state.

"Participation in this examination is the first step in the process of selecting state scholarship recipients," Dr. Porter said. "State scholarships of up to $1,200 per year are awarded on the basis of need. They may be used at any of the 90 Michigan insitutions of higher learning and may be renewed for up to four years if the student continues to show need and remains in good academic standing."

During the current academic year, more than 20,000 Michigan students are receiving $10.5 million in state scholarships, Dr. Porter said.

Coloma Asks Survey On Stretch Of Road Where 5 Have Died

COLOMA — A survey of road conditions along a quarter mile stretch of Coloma road in Coloma township where five people have died in auto accidents since October has been requested by Coloma township police.

Chief Richard Klimaszewski said the Berrien county road commission had been asked to conduct the survey.

The survey was being sought, according to Klimaszewski, to see if any condition exists which might be a factor in the crashes.

The latest in the string occurred early Sunday when a car careened into two motorcycles killing three people on the cycles.

The week before a Hartford woman died when her car left the stretch of road and overturned. A Coloma man was killed in the first of the series on Oct. 18, when his car hit a tree.

Klimaszewski said all three accidents occurred between midnight and 3 a.m. along the stretch of road which lies just west of the Coloma city limits.

Klimaszewski said while other factors may have contributed "the survey may uncover additional conditions for the accidents."

Bangor Accepts Bids For New Middle School

BANGOR — Bids totaling $2,396,784 for the construction of a middle school here were accepted by the Bangor school board last night.

School officials set a 16-month construction time for the building to be located just southwest of the present high school.

Construction is being financed by a $4.1 million bond issued approved by school district voters in April, 1974.

Also included in the bond issue are funds for the demolition of the old high school now occupied by middle school students. The demolition and construction of an elementary school will come after completion of the middle school, officials said.

Middle school construction bids accepted by the board last night were about $200,000 under estimates of what costs would be, school officials said.

Receiving the contract for general construction was Elmridge Construction and Development company of Grand Rapids with its low bid, including alternates, of $1,601,224. High bid among 13 was $1,901,203, from Holland Construction of Holland.

Cass Gunners Set For State Title Shootout

RANGERS NOT AWED BY TOP-RANKED ALL SAINTS

The best in the west will be challenging the celebrated Bay City All Saints pointslingers Saturday night in what shapes up as a classic Class C championship shootout.

Cassopolis will go gunning for southwestern Michigan's first state title in four seasons at 8:30 p.m. in Ann Arbor's Crisler Arena in a match of high scoring and highly-ranked finalists.

Once-beaten and No. 1 rated Bay City — will pit a 76.6 season scoring average against No. 7 Cass (24-3) and its awesome 80.6 point mark.

"I kind of look for a high scoring game...it could be a barn burner," declares Cass coach Bob Folett.

Cassopolis has used what looks like a "damn the defense, full speed ahead" strategy while rolling up the most wins in school history and its longest trek down the tournament trail, so the Rangers aren't about to change their philosophy now.

All-state candidate Roger Walters, the little man with the big punch, will continue to lead the Rangers who have seen a dream turn into a true life adventure. The 6-0 senior guard is averaging 26.2 points per game with a 708 tally total which stands second in southwestern Michigan history.

The run-and-gun Rangers have appeared to have little regard for defense while allowing more than 70 points per game and providing fans with plenty of thrills by winning their last four games by three points and less or in overtime.

And while Cassopolis is being caught up in state tournament fever for the first time with a young coach, All Saints and veteran mentor Lefty Franz will be continuing as state tournament "regulars."

Senior all-stater Billy Harris leads a 26-1 All Saints squad which has reached the state level of tournament competition five times in its seven-year history while compiling a fantastic 147-19 record. Franz has a 339-122 mark in 23 years of coaching.

Harris, who will be playing in his eighth state tournament game in three seasons, scored 33 points in last year's title tilt and is now averaging 17.4 overall but 20.0 in the tourney. The 6-2 senior forward missed the first six games of the season following knee surgery for a football injury.

Gary Rasdorf, a 5-10 senior guard, is actually the top Bay City scorer at 19.0. Tim Trepkowski, a 6-5 senior center, is the top rebounder and also the other double digit pointmaker at 12.7.

Trepkowski and Harris are returning regulars from last year's state championship team. Rasdorf was the sixth man.

"They can't wait to play them...they are not a bit awed by them," says Follett of the attitude among his Rangers.

"We are going to have to board with them and get our shooting touch back," adds Follett on what he and assistant coach Ken Wright see as keys to the game.

Cass needs the boards to launch its devastating fast break and faces a big test in that department because Bay City is slightly taller, especially when considering bench strength. Franz boasts that 11 of his players can dunk the ball.

But Follett feels he'll have the "best jumper" in in 6-4 junior center Gary Young, who also stands second on the team in scoring at 15.7.

Mark Scott, a 6-3 senior forward, is also tough on the boards and a 14.0 point-maker. Sophomore Kevin Loder, who was brought up from the jayvees late in the season, is scoring at a 9.6 clip in the tourney, while senior guard Bill Dungey stands at 8.4 overall, but 11.3 while being "just super in the tournament."

Follett is confident the Cass sharpshooters will get back on target after shooting under 40 per cent for the first time this season in last Saturday's semifinal overtime win.

Follett also doesn't like talk of his Rangers' defense being vulnerable. "I think our defensive average is a bit deceptive," he notes. "The more we score the more the other team is going to have the ball. I've been pleased with our defense in the tournament. The defense has been tough when it has had to be."

There's no doubt about the emphasis on defense at Bay City. All Saints has allowed just 56.6 per game while switching defenses but often using a 1-2-2 zone.

"We play pretty good defense down here," reports Franz. "We've concentrated more on defense this year than on offense. I felt we could put the ball in the hoop, but in order to win we had to play good defense.

"You can control the tempo of the game on defense. That's why I've changed my whole philosophy the last couple of years. Maybe you'll have a bad game on offense, but you should never play a bad defensive game."

Franz also points to rebounding as determining the outcome. "They are quick," says the veteran coach, "but you've got to get the ball before you can run... that's what I'm depending on. If we can match them on the boards, they are not going to be able to run on us."

All Saints' frenzied followers — they packed the 3,500-seat Bay City Central gym nine times this season — saw their team through a tough regular season schedule which included only five Class C schools and wins over the likes of Detroit U-D High, ranked No. 3 in the final Class A poll. The only loss was to Class A Saginaw Eisenhower 76-61, a setback later avenged in an 88-62 victory.

In the tournaments, Bay City has beaten No. 4 Unionville-Sebawaing 89-67 and No. 3 White Cloud 59-48, but like Cass, the independent All Saints have had some close calls. They edged Saginaw St. Peter & Paul in overtime in the district final and tipped No. 13 Negaunee 64-62 in the semifinals.

"The hardest thing in the world is to repeat," concludes Franz. "You know the chances must be 1,000 to 1."

Underdog Cass will take those odds.

Montana Facing Giant Task Against Big Bruins Tonight

CMU Coach Hoping For Improved Effort

From Associated Press

Let's face it — Montana doesn't come to mind when you start talking about college basketball powers.

Just ask Montana Coach Jud Heathcote, whose Grizzlies meet second-ranked UCLA, 24-3, tonight in the regional semifinals of the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball tournament.

"Realistically, we stand a slim chance," Heathcote said.

All of the other coaches talk much more confidently, but only eight teams will be left after Thursday night's clashes. And that will be cut to just four by Saturday night, the four that will advance to the finals at San Diego next week.

Heathcoate, a former assistant to Marv Harshman at Washington State, said he called his former boss after advancing to the Western Regionals by downing Utah State 69-63. Harshman, now head coach at Washington and one of the few coaches to defeat UCLA this season, gave Heathcoate the secret.

"He told me just to get in front in a hurry and keep in front," said Heathcoat, whose Grizzlies have compiled a 21-6 record.

The other West Regional game at Portland, Ore., will pit Arizona State, 24-3, against Nevada-Las Vegas, 23-4.

In the Midwest Regional at Las Cruces, N.M., Cincinnati, 22-5, will take on Louisville, 25-2, and Maryland, 23-4, meets Notre Dame, 19-8.

Kentucky, 23-4, plays Central Michigan, 21-5, and Indiana, 30-0, clashes with Oregon State, 19-10, in the Mideast Regional at Dayton, Ohio.

The East Regional will be played at Providence, R.I., where Syracuse, 21-7, plays North Carolina, 22-7, and Boston College, 21-7, meets Kansas State, 19-8.

Heathcote isn't the only coach who's spreading the word about how good their opponent is.

"If we don't play any better than we did in our first game, then Kentucky won't have to play very well to beat us," said Central Michigan's Dick Parfitt.

Even top-ranked Indiana Coach Bobby Knight is playing the game.

"Oregon State is quick, strong and has big personnel," Knight said. "they play a full-court, three-quarter or half-court press, a man-to-man and a zone. There's not much they don't do well.

"Oregon State is capable of beating any team in the country. They beat UCLA this year and they beat 'em last year, too. That shows you what kind of team they are."

Oregon State Coach Ralph Miller responded in kind.

"Indiana is a strange situation for us," he said. "A team as good as that scares a lot of people."

Coach Jack Hartman of the 17th-ranked Kansas State Wildcats said his team was "tickled to death to be any place."

Starting three freshmen and a sophomore, Catlett said his 12th-ranked Bearcats are a team that has to be reckoned with.

"They're convinced they are going to win their next four games," the Cincy coach said. "I have to believe in them."

Crum, whose third-ranked Cardinals beat Cincinnati during the regular season said the Bearcats' "freshmen aren't freshmen anymore. They've won 16 straight.

"They're a lot better team," Crum said, "but we're better too. We feel we've had a great year."

When Driesell took over as head coach at Maryland, he said he wanted to build the Terraphs into the "UCLA of the East."

"We're not scared of anyone," Driesell said. "we're one of the best teams in the country and our record proves it. And if we put it all together, people had better be scared of us.

"We realize that all it takes is four (more) games to win the national championship, and we think we can do it."

NIT Games Real Lesson

The winners advance to the Saturday's semi-finals, joining St. John's and Providence in the Big Four of this 38th annual post-season tournament.

"The object of the game is to get the better shot," says Oregon Coach Dick Harter, explaining why his team likes to set up plays with ball-handler Ronnie Lee. "We hope to get the better shot from our pattern offenses."

Princeton and South Carolina will be meeting for the second time this season. The Gamecocks won earlier in the year, 65-48, but Coach Frank McGuire sees Princeton as a formidable opponent even though the Tigers will have trouble with his big front line.

"That victory was at our place, and at a different time," says McGuire. "Princeton is now a team constantly moving the ball. In a 40-minute game, they will try to control the ball at least half of the time.

"They are very disciplined. A lot of people think defense is just stopping a player one-on-one. That's not so. Princeton's careful ball-handling is defense. When you see a team turning over the ball 19 or 20 times, that's a potential for at least 10 points. Princeton doesn't do things like that very often."

Oral Roberts won its way into the quarters with a tingling 97-95 victory over Memphis State in the first round. Oregon beat St. Peter's 85-79, South Carolina tripped Connecticut 71-61 and Princeton routed Holy Cross 84-63.

Tigers' LaGrow On Ropes

FORT MEYERS, Fla. (AP) — Lerrin LaGrow really got bombed again Wednesday. The Detroit Tigers edged the Kansas City Royals 11-10 in 10 innings, but boy did LaGrow get bombed.

He was on the throwing end of five Kansas City home runs. Altogether LaGrow gave up eight runs in less than five innings work and upped his earned run average to 17.06 in Grapefruit season play.

He is on the ropes in his bid to remain a Tiger starter.

"When the bell rings, I'm going to have to go with the pitchers I think are the sharpest, the pitchers who have looked the best down here," said Manager Ralph Houk after Wednesday's slugfest.

Tom Veryzer and Leon Roberts had homers for Detroit, which won its second straight game for the first time this spring. It was also the second time in as many days the Tigers unloaded for 11 runs.

Down 9-7 in the ninth, Detroit scored three times, taking advantage of Kansas City errors. Rupert Jones tied it for K-C in the bottom of the inning with a home run, setting the stage for Robert's game-winning blast in the 10th.

LaGrow, who was in the starting rotation all last season, has been hit hard three times out of four appearances this spring. He's given up 23 runs, 22 hits and six homers — in just 11 2-3 innings' work.

"He got the bleep kicked out of him today, that's for sure," said Houk. "I can't figure it out. It's amazing that they could hit that many balls off him that hard."

Houk wasn't about to write him off, though.

"We'll just have to keep pitching him and see what happens. We've just got to have patience."

LaGrow can be thankful that the team's pitching staff hasn't set the world on fire this spring. Only Mickey Lolich, Joe Coleman and John Hiller are assured of their spots on the eight-man staff Houk hopes to take North with him.

High in the bidding for spots on the staff are Vern Ruhle, Dave Lemanczyk, Tom Walker, Luke Walker, Fred Holdsworth and LaGrow, said Houk.

LaGrow said, "It's been an unusual spring for me.

"I had great stuff today — super stuff. It's unbelievable that I got hit that bad. I couldn't explain it if I tried. I just have to try to forget about it ... Maybe I'll get it all out of my system down here."

Cass Gunners Set For State Title Shootout

RANGERS NOT AWED BY TOP-RANKED ALL SAINTS

The best in the west will be challenging the celebrated Bay City All Saints pointslingers Saturday night in what shapes up as a classic Class C championship shootout.

Cassopolis will go gunning for southwestern Michigan's first state title in four seasons at 8:30 p.m. in Ann Arbor's Crisler Arena in a match of high scoring and highly-ranked finalists.

Once-beaten and No. 1 rated Bay City — the defending state champ — will pit a 76.6 season scoring average against No. 7 Cass (24-3) and its awesome 80.6 point mark.

"I kind of look for a high scoring game...it could be a barn burner," declares Cass coach Bob Folett.

Cassopolis has used what looks like a "damn the defense, full speed ahead" strategy while rolling up the most wins in school history and its longest trek down the tournament trail, so the Rangers aren't about to change their philosophy now.

All-state candidate Roger Walters, the little man with the big punch, will continue to lead the Rangers who have seen a dream turn into a true life adventure. The 6-0 senior guard is averaging 26.2 points per game with a 708 tally total which stands second in southwestern Michigan history.

The run-and-gun Rangers have appeared to have little regard for defense while allowing more than 70 points per game and providing fans with plenty of thrills by winning their last four games by three points and less or in overtime.

And while Cassopolis is being caught up in state tournament fever for the first time with a young coach, All Saints and veteran mentor Lefty Franz will be continuing as state tournament "regulars."

Senior all-stater Billy Harris leads a 26-1 All Saints squad which has reached the state level of tournament competition five times in its seven-year history while compiling a fantastic 147-19 record. Franz has a 339-122 mark in 23 years of coaching.

Harris, who will be playing in his eighth state tournament game in three seasons, scored 33 points in last year's title tilt and is now averaging 17.4 overall but 20.0 in the tourney. The 6-2 senior forward missed the first six games of the season following knee surgery for a football injury.

Gary Rasdorf, a 5-10 senior guard, is actually the top Bay City scorer at 19.0. Tim Trepkowski, a 6-5 senior center, is the top rebounder and also the other double digit pointmaker at 12.7.

Trepkowski and Harris are returning regulars from last year's state championship team. Rasdorf was the sixth man.

"They can't wait to play them...they are not a bit awed by them," says Follett of the attitude among his Rangers.

"We are going to have to board with them and get our shooting touch back," adds Follett on what he and assistant coach Ken Wright see as keys to the game.

Cass needs the boards to launch its devastating fast break and faces a big test in that department because Bay City is slightly taller, especially when considering bench strength. Franz boasts that 11 of his players can dunk the ball.

But Follett feels he'll have the "best jumper" in in 6-4 junior center Gary Young, who also stands second on the team in scoring at 15.7.

Mark Scott, a 6-3 senior forward, is also tough on the boards and a 14.0 point-maker. Sophomore Kevin Loder, who was brought up from the jayvees late in the season, is scoring at a 9.6 clip in the tourney, while senior guard Bill Dungey stands at 8.4 overall, but 11.3 while being "just super in the tournament."

Follett is confident the Cass sharpshooters will get back on target after shooting under 40 per cent for the first time this season in last Saturday's semifinal overtime win.

Follett also doesn't like talk of his Rangers' defense being vulnerable. "I think our defensive average is a bit deceptive," he notes. "The more we score the more the other team is going to have the ball. I've been pleased with our defense in the tournament. The defense has been tough when it has had to be."

There's no doubt about the emphasis on defense at Bay City. All Saints has allowed just 56.6 per game while switching defenses but often using a 1-2-2 zone.

"We play pretty good defense down here," reports Franz. "We've concentrated more on defense this year than on offense. I felt we could put the ball in the hoop, but in order to win we had to play good defense.

"You can control the tempo of the game on defense. That's why I've changed my whole philosophy the last couple of years. Maybe you'll have a bad game on offense, but you should never play a bad defensive game."

Franz also points to rebounding as determining the outcome. "They are quick," says the veteran coach, "but you've got to get the ball before you can run... that's what I'm depending on. If we can match them on the boards, they are not going to be able to run on us."

All Saints' frenzied followers — they packed the 3,500-seat Bay City Central gym nine times this season — saw their team through a tough regular season schedule which included only five Class C schools and wins over the likes of Detroit U-D High, ranked No. 3 in the final Class A poll. The only loss was to Class A Saginaw Eisenhower 76-61, a setback later avenged in an 88-62 victory.

In the tournaments, Bay City has beaten No. 4 Unionville-Sebawaing 89-67 and No. 3 White Cloud 59-48, but like Cass, the independent All Saints have had some close calls. They edged Saginaw St. Peter & Paul in overtime in the district final and tipped No. 13 Negaunee 64-62 in the semifinals.

"The hardest thing in the world is to repeat," concludes Franz. "You know the chances must be 1,000 to 1."

Underdog Cass will take those odds.

Montana Facing Giant Task Against Big Bruins Tonight

From Associated Press

Let's face it — Montana doesn't come to mind when you start talking about college basketball powers.

Just ask Montana Coach Jud Heathcote, whose Grizzlies meet second-ranked UCLA, 24-3, tonight in the regional semifinals of the National Collegiate Athletic Association basketball tournament.

"Realistically, we stand a slim chance," Heathcote said.

All of the other coaches talk much more confidently, but only eight teams will be left after Thursday night's clashes. And that will be cut to just four by Saturday night, the four that will advance to the finals at San Diego next week.

Heathcoate, a former assistant to Marv Harshman at Washington State, said he called his former boss after advancing to the Western Regionals by downing Utah State 69-63. Harshman, now head coach at Washington and one of the few coaches to defeat UCLA this season, gave Heathcoate the secret.

"He told me just to get in front in a hurry and keep in front," said Heathcoat, whose Grizzlies have compiled a 21-6 record.

The other West Regional game at Portland, Ore., will pit Arizona State, 24-3, against Nevada-Las Vegas, 23-4.

In the Midwest Regional at Las Cruces, N.M., Cincinnati, 22-5, will take on Louisville, 25-2, and Maryland, 23-4, meets Notre Dame, 19-8.

Kentucky, 23-4, plays Central Michigan, 21-5, and Indiana, 30-0, clashes with Oregon State, 19-10, in the Mideast Regional at Dayton, Ohio.

The East Regional will be played at Providence, R.I., where Syracuse, 21-7, plays North Carolina, 22-7, and Boston College, 21-7, meets Kansas State, 19-8.

Heathcote isn't the only coach who's spreading the word about how good their opponent is.

"If we don't play any better than we did in our first game, then Kentucky won't have to play very well to beat us," said Central Michigan's Dick Parfitt.

Even top-ranked Indiana Coach Bobby Knight is playing the game.

"Oregon State is quick, strong and has big personnel," Knight said. "they play a full-court, three-quarter or half-court press, a man-to-man and a zone. There's not much they don't do well.

"Oregon State is capable of beating any team in the country. They beat UCLA this year and they beat 'em last year, too. That shows you what kind of team they are."

Oregon State Coach Ralph Miller responded in kind.

"Indiana is a strange situation for us," he said. "A team as good as that scares a lot of people."

Coach Jack Hartman of the 17th-ranked Kansas State Wildcats said his team was "tickled to death to be any place."

Starting three freshmen and a sophomore, Catlett said his 12th-ranked Bearcats are a team that has to be reckoned with.

"They're convinced they are going to win their next four games," the Cincy coach said. "I have to believe in them."

Crum, whose third-ranked Cardinals beat Cincinnati during the regular season said the Bearcats' "freshmen aren't freshmen anymore. They've won 16 straight.

"They're a lot better team," Crum said, "but we're better too. We feel we've had a great year."

When Driesell took over as head coach at Maryland, he said he wanted to build the Terrapins into the "UCLA of the East."

"We're not scared of anyone," Driesell said. "we're one of the best teams in the country and our record proves it. And if we put it all together, people had better be scared of us.

"We realize that all it takes is four (more) games to win the national championship, and we think we can do it."

NIT Games Real Lesson

The winners advance to the Saturday's semi-finals, joining St. John's and Providence in the Big Four of this 38th annual post-season tournament.

"The object of the game is to get the better shot," says Oregon Coach Dick Harter, explaining why his team likes to set up plays with ball-handler Ronnie Lee. "We hope to get the better shot from our pattern offenses."

Princeton and South Carolina will be meeting for the second time this season. The Gamecocks won earlier in the year, 65-48, but Coach Frank McGuire sees Princeton as a formidable opponent even though the Tigers will have trouble with his big front line.

"That victory was at our place, and at a different time," says McGuire. "Princeton is now a team constantly moving the ball. In a 40-minute game, they will try to control the ball at least half of the time.

"They are very disciplined. A lot of people think defense is just stopping a player one-on-one. That's not so. Princeton's careful ball-handling is defense. When you see a team turning over the ball 19 or 20 times, that's a potential for at least 10 points. Princeton doesn't do things like that very often."

Oral Roberts won its way into the quarters with a tingling 97-95 victory over Memphis State in the first round. Oregon beat St. Peter's 85-79, South Carolina tripped Connecticut 71-61 and Princeton routed Holy Cross 84-63.

Cleveland's Robinson Cracks Whip

Dick Allen To Join Braves?

But Allen and the Indians—althoug not connected—were the talk around the grapefruit circuit.

Cleveland Manager Frank Robinson used the off day to take his Indians "over the fundamental mistakes we've been making." He also talked to George Hendrick about the center fielder's failure to run full speed on a double in Tuesday's 10-inning 5-4 loss.

"George's explanation satisfied me," the rookie manager said. "He said he thought the ball left the park for a home run."

Instead, the ball hit the fence and Hendrick barely made it to second when he possibly could have ended up with a triple.

"I told George he still should have been running hard," Robinson said. "Not only did it prove to be embarrassing to him, it also cost us the game.

"He knows now he was wrong. I'm sure he realized it when the ball hit the fence instead of going over. In a way, I'm glad it happened down here so I can say, 'Don't let these things happen during the season.'"

Robinson defended Hendrick and said at least two other players have failed to run hard after hitting pop flies.

"Just because it's Hendrick, everybody is watching every move he makes...George wasn't the first, and he wasn't the first one I talked to."

In West Palm Beach, Fla., Atlanta Braves vice president Eddie Robinson said he believes slugger Dick Allen will join the National League club soon.

"I do think he is going to play," Robinson said. "I've thought all along he would show, and I believe that more than ever right now."

Allen was in Florida Sunday and arranged a meeting with the White Sox for Monday. However, Allen didn't show at the meeting and was back at his Perkasie, Pa., home Wednesday.

The Braves purchased Allen from the White Sox for $5,000 and a player to be named if Allen plays for Atlanta. Last year, Allen led the American League with 32 home runs.

Ferguson Jenkins hurled four scoreless innings and Texas scored three runs in the fourth inning as the Rangers defeated the Houston Astros 5-2. Jenkins was touched for only three hits while striking out four.

Minnesota tallied three runs on only one single to snap the New York Yankees' four-game winning streak with a 5-1 victory. Yankee pitcher Scott McGregor walked the first two batters in the eighth. Then after Eric Soderholm singled home one run, an error let in another and the third scored on a wild pitch.

Two home runs by Buddy Bradford, his fifth and sixth of the spring, paced the Chicago White Sox to a 14-7 romp over the St. Louis Cardinals. Bradford drove in six runs in all.

Clay Kirby and Fred Norman combined to pitch the Cincinnati Reds to a five-hit 1-0 victory over the New York Mets. Johnny Bench, doubled, was sacrificed to third and scored the lone run on an infield out.

Kansas City slammed six home runs, but it was a 10th inning roundtripper by Leon Roberts that lifted the Detroit Tigers to an 11-10 victory over the Royals.

Mike Hegan's homer and two doubles by Pedro Garcia powered the Milwaukee Brewers over California 8-4, the Angels' first loss in six Cactus League starts. Garcia had four hits in the game and the Brewers' designated hitter, Hank Aaron, had a double and a run batted in.

Derrel Thomas stroked a two-run double in the third to tie the score at 2-2, then rookie Marc Hill scored Gary Matthews with a sacrifice fly for the go-ahead run as San Francisco beat the Oakland A's 7-2. Bobby Murcer tripled in a run for the Giants in the fifth.

Mike Ivie walked with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth to give the San Diego Padres a 5-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Five San Diego pitchers held the Cubs to just four hits, but one was a triple by George Mitterwald to knock in three runs.

The Philadelphia Phillies edged the Boston Red Sox 5-4 on Larry Cox's bloop single in the 13th inning. The safety scored Don Hahn with the winning run.

Lee Lacy blooped a single in the ninth to break a 3-3 deadlock and give the Los Angeles Dodgers a 4-3 victory over the Montreal Expos.

New Rules Aid Offense

NFL Continues Efforts To Restore Balance

HONOLULU (AP) — Watch out you Fearsome Foursomes, Purple Peaple Eaters, Doomsday Defenses, No-Names and Mean Joe Greenes. Waikiki Beach does you no good.

National Football League owners in their annual meeting on Oahu Island in the Pacific passed seven rule changes Wednesday and the majority help the offense.

The moves mark a continuance of the 1974 philosophy that the offense needs help to restore more balance in the pro game.

"In general, the new rule changes will benefit the offense," asserted NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Two years ago there was wide criticism that defenses had moved far ahead of offenses and made the NFL games dull. So a year ago came a series of rule changes aimed at helping the team trying to move the ball.

This time the owners went further, although they did turn down a proposal that pass receivers need to have only one foot inbounds to make legal receptions.

Most important of the rule changes probably was one which provides that if any fourth down pass from inside the opponent's 20 yard line falls incomplete in the end zone, the ball will be returned to the line of scrimmage and not to the 20. So, a defensive team might get possession for its offense on the two or three instead of the 20.

"The previous rule discouraged passing, but now teams will have the option of either running or passing on short yardage situations near the goaline," Rozelle explained.

Bart Starr, Green Bay's former All-Pro quarterback and new coach of the Packers, said: "I think it' a great rule. I only wish it had been in effect when I was playing. I think it'll be great for the game.

"Quarterbacks used to stick to the ground for the most part on fourth-down plays inside maybe the 10 or 15-yard line. Now they'll be more willing to go either way, on the ground or in the air."

Jim Hardy, a former quarterback in the late 1940s and early 1950s with the Detroit Lions, Chicago Cardinals and Los Angeles Rams and now general manager of the Los Angeles Coliseum, echoed Starr's opinion.

"It will help quarterbacks in making decisions. Formerly there was some hesitancy in calling a pass play because of the rule and you would normally go for a running play."

Defensive clubs may no longer huddle more than 11 men and take the extras out just before the offense puts the ball in motion, something the Minnesota Vikings displayed last season. The NFL will now call that unsportsmanlike conduct and assess a 15-yard penalty.

Wes Unseld's Return Helps Bullets Gun Down Celtics

With Unseld playing a key role while scoring just two points, the Bullets recorded a 97-80 victory over the Boston Celtics Wednesday night which could be worth more than $4,000 for each Washington player.

Washington leads the Central Division with a 53-20 record and Boston is atop the Atlantic Division at 51-21.

One of the two teams will earn $40,000 for having the best record in the National Basketball Association after the 82-game schedule, plus another $40,000 for the best mark in the Eastern Conference. The other team will get $27,500, or $52,500 less.

Elvin Hayes, who topped Washington with 29 points, credited Unseld for turning things around with the bonus money and a possible playoff homecourt advantage riding on the outcome.

"Whenever you have the big fellow in there clogging up the middle and blocking off," Hayes said, "it allows all the other players to release, fill the lanes and relax."

Boston superstar John Havlicek was held to only seven points while going 3-for-9 from the floor and Dave Cowens, 3-for-13, was scoreless after getting nine points in the first half.

Phil Chenier shot an anemic 5-for-23 for Washington but he made five steals, and his running mate at guard, Kevin Porter, added 11 assists.

Earl Monroe scored 30 points, including four free throws in the final 23 seconds, to give New York its sixth victory in the last seven games.

Slick Watts scored 12 points in the final period, including the final two, as Seattle shaded Milwaukee.

Pete Maravich pumped in 36 points, 12 of them in the final period, and Aaron James added 20 as New Orleans posted its fifth victory in the last eight games.

Ali Bored With Workout, Wepner Goes To Track

"A fighter is like a race horse. You gotta pace yourself," said Ali, who sparred six rounds while Wepner was at nearby Thistledown watching race horses pace themselves.

"You don't train for every man the same way, or you'll burn yourself out," said Ali, who has trained lightly for his first title defense since he knocked out George Foreman in Africa, a fight for which Ali trained four months.

"I'm not satisfied with my condition," said the champion, who weighs between 225-230 and is carrying a slight paunch. "I'm not satisfied with the way I'm working."

But then he added, "I'm doing enough for this man."

Ali is an overwhelming favorite to beat Wepner, whose $100,000 purse is 10 times as much as his previous biggest payday in an 11-year pro career. Ali is getting $1.5 million.

Ali sparred six rounds with Willie Moore and Larry Holmes. The three rounds with Holmes were marked by a few lively exchanges.

"He would have won the decision if it had been a fight," said Ali of his workout with Holmes. "But he wouldn't win in a fight without head gear and he wouldn't win before 50,000 people with the cards on the table.

"I'm no gym fighter."

The champion had to share the spotlight with his three daughters — 6-year-old Maryum and 4-year-old twins Jamillah and Rashida — who were introduced in the ring before the sparring session watched by about 300 people at the Coliseum.

The girls smiled, and Rashida held up her arms and waved in much the same way Ali does.

"They know they're pretty," said the proud father.

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois' Rick Schmidt was the leading vote-getter on the Big Ten All-Academic team announced by Commissioner Wayne Duke.

Schmidt, Illinois' top performer in a disappointing season earned a 4.23 on a 5.0 system majoring in Agriculture. He received 141 of 145 ballots cast by sports writers and broadcasters covering the Big Ten.

Steve Green of Indiana, Steve Grote of Michigan, Dan Weston of Ohio State and Dick Satterfield of Purdue also were named to the team announced Wednesday.

Based on a 6.0 scale, Satterfield had a 5.92 average in Industrial Management. On a 4.0 scale, Weston had a 3.46 in Real Estate and Finance, Green a 3.06 in Pre-Dentistry and Grote 3.00 in Education.

Knight Big Ten Coach Of Year

CHICAGO (AP) — Indiana's Bobby Knight has been selected as Big Ten Basketball Coach of the Year by sports writers and broadcasters who cover the conference.

It was the second time in three years that Knight has won the award. He also was Coach of the Year in 1973 when his Hoosiers also won an undisputed conference title.

Knight received 131 firstplace votes from the 148 voting members of the media as his Hoosiers hold first place in the Associated Press college basketball poll. On the basis of a 53-1 system, Knight finished with a total of 571 points. Gus Ganakas of Michigan State was second with 157 points. Ganakas received six, first-place votes, one more than Michigan's Johnny Orr who was third with 139 points. Orr won the award last year.

Bill Musselman of Minnesota was fourth with 112 points and Fred Schaus of Purdue was fifth with 88 points.

Cleveland's Robinson Cracks Whip

Dick Allen To Join Braves?

But Allen and the Indians—althoug not connected—were the talk around the grapefruit circuit.

Cleveland Manager Frank Robinson used the off day to take his Indians "over the fundamental mistakes we've been making." He also talked to George Hendrick about the center fielder's failure to run full speed on a double in Tuesday's 10-inning 5-4 loss.

"George's explanation satisfied me," the rookie manager said. "He said he thought the ball left the park for a home run."

Instead, the ball hit the fence and Hendrick barely made it to second when he possibly could have ended up with a triple.

"I told George he still should have been running hard," Robinson said. "Not only did it prove to be embarrassing to him, it also cost us the game.

"He knows now he was wrong. I'm sure he realized it when the ball hit the fence instead of going over. In a way, I'm glad it happened down here so I can say, 'Don't let these things happen during the season.'"

Robinson defended Hendrick and said at least two other players have failed to run hard after hitting pop flies.

"Just because it's Hendrick, everybody is watching every move he makes...George wasn't the first, and he wasn't the first one I talked to."

In West Palm Beach, Fla., Atlanta Braves vice president Eddie Robinson said he believes slugger Dick Allen will join the National League club soon.

"I do think he is going to play," Robinson said. "I've thought all along he would show, and I believe that more than ever right now."

Allen was in Florida Sunday and arranged a meeting with the White Sox for Monday. However, Allen didn't show at the meeting and was back at his Perkasie, Pa., home Wednesday.

The Braves purchased Allen from the White Sox for $5,000 and a player to be named if Allen plays for Atlanta. Last year, Allen led the American League with 32 home runs.

Ferguson Jenkins hurled four scoreless innings and Texas scored three runs in the fourth inning as the Rangers defeated the Houston Astros 5-2. Jenkins was touched for only three hits while striking out four.

Minnesota tallied three runs on only one single to snap the New York Yankees' four-game winning streak with a 5-1 victory. Yankee pitcher Scott McGregor walked the first two batters in the eighth. Then after Eric Soderholm singled home one run, an error let in another and the third scored on a wild pitch.

Two home runs by Buddy Bradford, his fifth and sixth of the spring, paced the Chicago White Sox to a 14-7 romp over the St. Louis Cardinals. Bradford drove in six runs in all.

Clay Kirby and Fred Norman combined to pitch the Cincinnati Reds to a five-hit 1-0 victory over the New York Mets. Johnny Bench doubled, was sacrificed to third and scored the lone run on an infield out.

Kansas City slammed six home runs, but it was a 10th inning roundtripper by Leon Roberts that lifted the Detroit Tigers to an 11-10 victory over the Royals.

Mike Hegan's homer and two doubles by Pedro Garcia powered the Milwaukee Brewers over California 8-4, the Angels' first loss in six Cactus League starts. Garcia had four hits in the game and the Brewers' designated hitter, Hank Aaron, had a double and a run batted in.

Derrel Thomas stroked a two-run double in the third to tie the score at 2-2, then rookie Marc Hill scored Gary Matthews with a sacrifice fly for the go-ahead run as San Francisco beat the Oakland A's 7-2. Bobby Murcer tripled in a run for the Giants in the fifth.

Mike Ivie walked with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth to give the San Diego Padres a 5-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Five San Diego pitchers held the Cubs to just four hits, but one was a triple by George Mitterwald to knock in three runs.

The Philadelphia Phillies edged the Boston Red Sox 5-4 on Larry Cox's bloop single in the 13th inning. The safety scored Don Hahn with the winning run.

Lee Lacy blooped a single in the ninth to break a 3-3 deadlock and give the Los Angeles Dodgers a 4-3 victory over the Montreal Expos.

New Rules Aid Offense

NFL Continues Efforts To Restore Balance

HONOLULU (AP) — Watch out you Fearsome Foursomes, Purple Peaple Eaters, Doomsday Defenses, No-Names and Mean Joe Greenes. Waikiki Beach does you no good.

National Football League owners in their annual meeting on Oahu Island in the Pacific passed seven rule changes Wednesday and the majority help the offense.

The moves mark a continuance of the 1974 philosophy that the offense needs help to restore more balance in the pro game.

"In general, the new rule changes will benefit the offense," asserted NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Two years ago there was wide criticism that defenses had moved far ahead of offenses and made the NFL games dull. So a year ago came a series of rule changes aimed at helping the team trying to move the ball.

This time the owners went further, although they did turn down a proposal that pass receivers need to have only one foot inbounds to make legal receptions.

Most important of the rule changes probably was one which provides that if any fourth down pass from inside the opponent's 20 yard line falls incomplete in the end zone, the ball will be returned to the line of scrimmage and not to the 20. So, a defensive team might get possession for its offense on the two or three insteal of the 20.

"The previous rule discouraged passing, but now teams will have the option of either running or passing on short yardage situations near the goaline," Rozelle explained.

Bart Starr, Green Bay's former All-Pro quarterback and new coach of the Packers, said: "I think it' a great rule. I only wish it had been in effect when I was playing. I think it'll be great for the game.

"Quarterbacks used to stick to the ground for the most part on fourth-down plays inside maybe the 10 or 15-yard line. Now they'll be more willing to go either way, on the ground or in the air."

Jim Hardy, a former quarterback in the late 1940s and early 1950s with the Detroit Lions, Chicago Cardinals and Los Angeles Rams and now general manager of the Los Angeles Coliseum, echoed Starr's opinion.

"It will help quarterbacks in making decisions. Formerly there was some hesitancy in calling a pass play because of the rule and you would normally go for a running play."

Defensive clubs may no longer huddle more than 11 men and take the extras out just before the offense puts the ball in motion, something the Minnesota Vikings displayed last season. The NFL will now call that unsportsmanlike conduct and assess a 15-yard penalty.

Wes Unseld's Return Helps Bullets Gun Down Celtics

With Unseld playing a key role while scoring just two points, the Bullets recorded a 97-80 victory over the Boston Celtics Wednesday night which could be worth more than $4,000 for each Washington player.

Washington leads the Central Division with a 53-20 record and Boston is atop the Atlantic Division at 51-21.

One of the two teams will earn $40,000 for having the best record in the National Basketball Association after the 82-game schedule, plus another $40,000 for the best mark in the Eastern Conference. The other team will get $27,500, or $52,500 less.

Elvin Hayes, who topped Washington with 29 points, credited Unseld for turning things around with the bonus money and a possible playoff homecourt advantage riding on the outcome.

"Whenever you have the big fellow in there clogging up the middle and blocking off," Hayes said, "it allows all the other players to release, fill the lanes and relax."

Boston superstar John Havlicek was held to only seven points while going 3-for-9 from the floor and Dave Cowens, 3-for-13, was scoreless after getting nine points in the first half.

Phil Chenier shot an anemic 5-for-23 for Washington but he made five steals, and his running mate at guard, Kevin Porter, added 11 assists.

Earl Monroe scored 30 points, including four free throws in the final 23 seconds, to give New York its sixth victory in the last seven games.

Slick Watts scored 12 points in the final period, including the final two, as Seattle shaded Milwaukee.

Pete Maravich pumped in 36 points, 12 of them in the final period, and Aaron James added 20 as New Orleans posted its fifth victory in the last eight games.

Aaron-Less Braves Facing Uphill Climb

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Atlanta Braves, minus one of baseball's all-time greats for the first time in 22 seasons, may be in the rare position of showing improvement on the field without results in the National League West standings.

The Braves had their second-best season in the last decade in 1974, but it was hardly noticeable because of the hoopla surrounding the record home run feats of Henry Aaron and the presence of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds in the same division.

In fact, Atlanta's 88-74 record matched that of East champion Pittsburgh, but left the Braves 14 games off the pace of the National League champion Dodgers and 10 games behind division runnerup Cincinnati.

Aaron and the Braves parted company on unfriendly terms after the aging slugger slammed his 733rd career home run on his final trip to the plate in a Braves' uniform. He was traded to the Milwaukee Brewers during the winter.

Clyde King begins his first full season as Atlanta manager, having taken over at the All-Star break last season when Eddie Mathews was fired. King guided the Braves to a 38-25 mark down the stretch.

The Braves, minus a righthanded power hitter, may be hard-pressed to equal last year's performance and it appears unlikely, even with continued improvement, they will be able to overtake either the Dodgers or Reds.

The biggest question is whether the pitching staff is as good as it appeared to be last year. Phil Niekro was one of only two 20-game winners in the National League and also finished second in the league in earned-run average behind teammate Buzz Capra, the little right-hander who captured the hearts of Atlanta fans by reeling off nine straight victories last year.

The Braves also feature Ralph Garr, the NL's leading hitter last year with a .353 average. Garr is the highest paid Brave since the departure of Aaron. The outfielder won a $114,500 annual salary through arbitration. Niekro signed a $100,000 pact.

Atlanta's starting lineup appears to be set in five positions, with battles still on for the other three.

Larvell Blanks, who has spent parts of the past three seasons on the roster, is off to a good spring start and could take the shortstop job away from Craig Robinson.

Rookie Biff Pocoroba is giving returning starter Vic Correll a battle for the catching job. And two veterans, Mike Lum and Dave Johnson, are lodged in a duel for the first base spot.

The outfield should be set with Garr in left, fleet Rowland Office in center and veteran Dusty Baker in right. Lum also is available for outfield duty along with Dave May, acquired in the Aaron trade with the Brewers.

Darrell Evans, who slipped from a career-high 41 home runs in 1973 to 25 last year, is secure at third base and is Atlanta's best hope to provide needed power. Former shortstop Marty Perez, coming off his best ever season with a .260 average, will operate at second base.

Niekro, 20-13, and Capra, 168, head the pitching staff. Another starting assignment goes to right-hander Carl Morton, 16-12 last year, and rookie southpaw Jamie Easterly is making a strong bid for the final spot in the rotation.

If Easterly falters, that job could go to any of three veterans—Ron Reed, Roric Harrison or Gary Gentry. Each was sidelined last year with injuries.

The bullpen should be in good shape, anchored by left-hander Tom House, who had 11 saves and a 1.92 ERA last year, and right-hander Max Leon, who had a 2.64 ERA.

"To overtake the two teams that finished ahead of us last season, it's going to take an awfully strong effort all year long," says King. "Excellence, consistently. That, though, isn't impossible."

EASY VICTORY: Top-seeded Jimmy Connors charges in to make forehand return during easy victory over Dick Bornstedt in first round of Independent Tennis Players tournament Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden. Connors, the No. 1 ranked player in the world, won 6-2, 6-3. (AP Wirephoto)

Hubert Green Frustrated By Continued Golf Slump

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — He talks about getting it in "Euell Gibbons country," the woods and weeds. He'll make a comment about his "Laurence of Arabia time on the wrong side of the gallery ropes."

He tries to keep it light and funny, as if it didn't matter.

But Hubert Green is a deeply frustrated young man. "I'm hitting it sideways," he said. "I'm playing terrible."

There may be just the glimpse of a light at the end of the tunnel, however. "I think I've finally figured out what's wrong," Green said before teeing off today as the defending champion in the $150,000 Greater Jacksonville Open Golf Tournament.

"Now it's a matter of working on my mistakes, correcting them, getting my game back to where it was, to where it ought to be," he said in his rapid-fire, machine gun style of speech. "At least I've got something to work on."

Green stamped himself one of the game's outstanding young players last season when he took this title and three others and collected more than $200,000. Only Johnny Miller surpassed him in tournament victories.

This season it's all gone sour. Green's had little but troubles. He finished second in the Bing Crosby, but he hasn't been higher than 32nd in any other event and has missed the cut twice.

"He wants to win every tournament he enters," said his wife Judi. "He tries so hard, just as hard as he can, in every tournament. He really wants to play well and he gets angry at himself when he doesn't. It just all builds up.

"He had that good year last year. Hubert feels he should be improving. He feels he should be advancing all the time. He hasn't played well this year and it's been a little bit tough on him."

Green, however, is fresh from a week's break, got in some solid practice early in the week and can't be overlooked in this 72-hole chase for a $30,000 first prize.

The top choices in the 150-man field were U.S. Open king Hale Irwin, who hasn't finished lower than sixth in his last four starts; Australian Bruce Crampton, a contender in his last two appearances, and Mike Hill, who has played very strongly in recent tournaments.

Tech Coach Rejects Offer

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — Michigan Tech hockey Coach John MacInnes, who guided the Huskies to their third NCAA title a week ago, Wednesday turned down the head coaching job at University of Minnesota-Duluth.

UMD reportedly had offered him a salary of $25,000.

MacInnes told a news conference in Duluth that he would like to coach at UMD, but did not want to leave Michigan Tech.

"I guess I have feet of clay so I couldn't make the move," said MacInnes.

MacInnes, 49, has been at Michigan Tech 19 years and nearly singlehandedly has built the school into a national hockey power.

Under his coaching, Tech teams have won three gncaa titles, six Western Collegiate Hockey Association championships and have been NCAA runnerup three times.

Willie Mays Fallen Giant

All-Time Great Now Lost With Mets

"Hey, where's Willie?" someone yelled. "Willie Mays is not in the picture."

He's a lonely, lost individual, this once dynamic, scintillating giant of the game. The Mets don't know what to do with him. Willie doesn't know what to do with himself.

"It's not as bad as last year," Mays said as he moved self-consciously around the Mets' training quarters Tuesday. "Last year, my first year not playing, I was very nervous. I had to be careful not to get too involved.

"I've overcome that a little bit, but not entirely. I have to be careful not to get in Yogi's way. I've got to keep away from the action. I can't let myself get involved."

Mays retired after the 1973 season, leaving a legacy of 660 career home runs. But he exercised the option of his Mets' contract to stay around 10 more years at $50,000 a year.

He is associated with three major companies in a public relations capacity. "I just play golf and meet people," he said.

He is finding it more trouble to keep busy in a baseball role that is not fully defined.

"Joe McDonald has made it easier on me by getting me away from the club as much as possible," the 43-year-old one-time outfielder said.

McDonald, the Mets' general manager, said he has set up a program for Mays to visit each of the Mets' five farm clubs two to four times.

"He should be very valuable with the young guys," McDonald said. "This will keep him on the road until about July 8. As best we can, we are trying not to interfere with his other commitments."

Mays, one of the great hitters of all-time, will not be called upon to use his knowledge with the varsity.

"That's what they brought Phil Cavarretta in for," Mays said. "I won't be working with any of the Mets' hitters. They haven't asked me and I don't want to interfere.

"It will give me more time for golf."

TIME OUT!

"Don't ask me. . . some golf nut just come froom the nineteenth hole, I imagine."

Aaron-Less Braves Facing Uphill Climb

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The Atlanta Braves, minus one of baseball's all-time greats for the first time in 22 seasons, may be in the rare position of showing improvement on the field without results in the National League West standings.

The Braves had their second-best season in the last decade in 1974, but it was hardly noticeable because of the hoopla surrounding the record home run feats of Henry Aaron and the presence of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds in the same division.

In fact, Atlanta's 88-74 record matched that of East champion Pittsburgh, but left the Braves 14 games off the pace of the National League champion Dodgers and 10 games behind division runnerup Cincinnati.

Aaron and the Braves parted company on unfriendly terms after the aging slugger slammed his 733rd career home run on his final trip to the plate in a Braves' uniform. He was traded to the Milwaukee Brewers during the winter.

Clyde King begins his first full season as Atlanta manager, having taken over at the All-Star break last season when Eddie Mathews was fired. King guided the Braves to a 38-25 mark down the stretch.

The Braves, minus a righthanded power hitter, may be hard-pressed to equal last year's performance and it appears unlikely, even with continued improvement, they will be able to overtake either the Dodgers or Reds.

The biggest question is whether the pitching staff is as good as it appeared to be last year. Phil Niekro was one of only two 20-game winners in the National League and also finished second in the league in earned-run average behind teammate Buzz Capra, the little right-hander who captured the hearts of Atlanta fans by reeling off nine straight victories last year.

The Braves also feature Ralph Garr, the NL's leading hitter last year with a .353 average. Garr is the highest paid Brave since the departure of Aaron. The outfielder won a $114,500 annual salary through arbitration. Niekro signed a $100,000 pact.

Atlanta's starting lineup appears to be set in five positions, with battles still on for the other three.

Larvell Blanks, who has spent parts of the past three seasons on the roster, is off to a good spring start and could take the shortstop job away from Craig Robinson.

Rookie Biff Pocoroba is giving returning starter Vic Correll a battle for the catching job. And two veterans, Mike Lum and Dave Johnson, are lodged in a duel for the first base spot.

The outfield should be set with Garr in left, fleet Rowland Office in center and veteran Dusty Baker in right. Lum also is available for outfield duty along with Dave May, acquired in the Aaron trade with the Brewers.

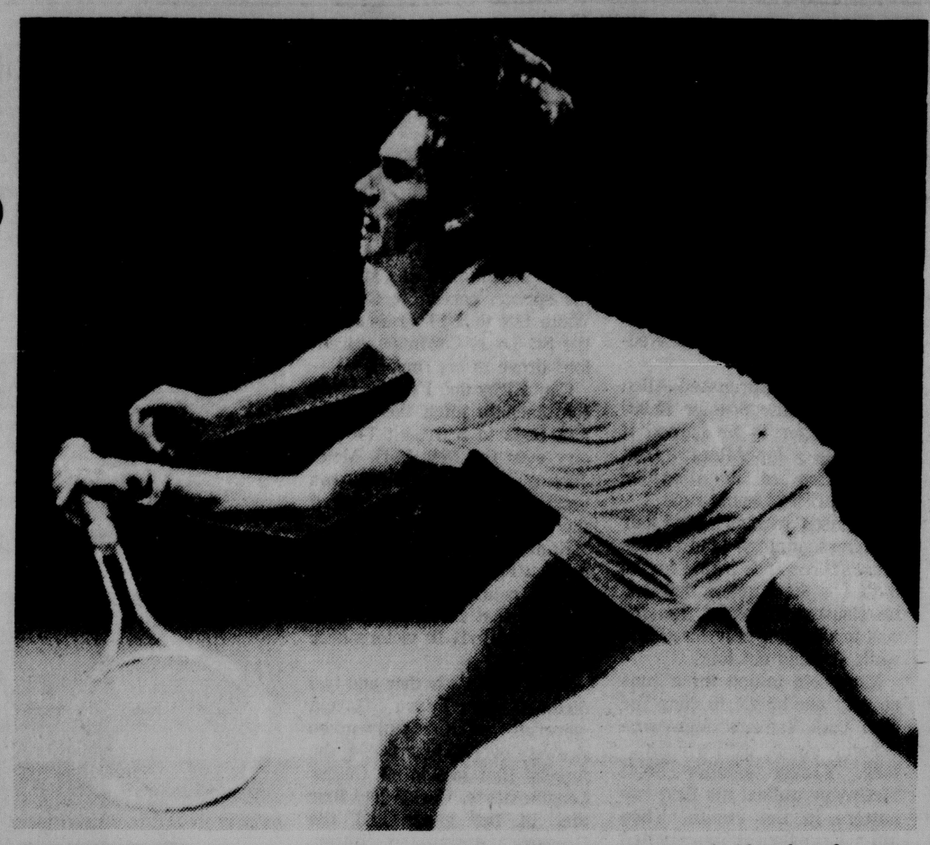
Darrell Evans, who slipped from a career-high 41 home runs in 1973 to 25 last year, is secure at third base and is Atlanta's best hope to provide needed power. Former shortstop Marty Perez, coming off his best ever season with a .260 average, will operate at second base.

Niekro, 20-13, and Capra, 168, head the pitching staff. Another starting assignment goes to right-hander Carl Morton, 1612 last year, and rookie southpaw Jamie Easterly is making a strong bid for the final spot in the rotation.

If Easterly falters, that job could go to any of three veterans—Ron Reed, Roric Harrison or Gary Gentry. Each was sidelined last year with injuries.

The bullpen should be in good shape, anchored by left-hander Tom House, who had 11 saves and a 1.92 ERA last year, and right-hander Max Leon, who had a 2.64 ERA.

"To overtake the two teams that finished ahead of us last season, it's going to take an awfully strong effort all year long," says King. "Excellence, consistently. That, though, isn't impossible."



EASY VICTORY: Top-seeded Jimmy Connors charges in to make forehand return during easy victory over Dick Bornstedt in first round of Independent Tennis Players tournament Wednesday night at Madison Square Garden. Connors, the No. 1 ranked player in the world, won 6-2, 6-3. (AP Wirephoto)

Hubert Green Frustrated By Continued Golf Slump

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — He talks about getting it in "Euell Gibbons country," the woods and weeds. He'll make a comment about his "Laurence of Arabia time on the wrong side of the gallery ropes."

He tries to keep it light and funny, as if it didn't matter.

But Hubert Green is a deeply frustrated young man. "I'm hitting it sideways," he said. "I'm playing terrible."

There may be just the glimpse of a light at the end of the tunnel, however. "I think I've finally figured out what's wrong," Green said before teeing off today as the defending champion in the $150,000 Greater Jacksonville Open Golf Tournament.

"Now it's a matter of working on my mistakes, correcting them, getting my game back to where it was, to where it ought to be," he said in his rapid-fire, machine gun style of speech. "At least I've got something to work on."

Green stamped himself one of the game's outstanding young players last season when he took this title and three others and collected more than $200,000. Only Johnny Miller surpassed him in tournament victories.

This season it's all gone sour. Green's had little but troubles. He finished second in the Bing Crosby, but he hasn't been higher than 32nd in any other event and has missed the cut twice.

"He wants to win every tournament he enters," said his wife Judi. "He tries so hard, just as hard as he can, in every tournament. He really wants to play well and he gets angry at himself when he doesn't. It just all builds up.

"He had that good year last year. Hubert feels he should be improving. He feels he should be advancing all the time. He hasn't played well this year and it's been a little bit tough on him."

Green, however, is fresh from a week's break, got in some solid practice early in the week and can't be overlooked in this 72-hole chase for a $30,000 first prize.

The top choices in the 150-man field were U.S. Open king Hale Irwin, who hasn't finished lower than sixth in his last four starts; Australian Bruce Crampton, a contender in his last two appearances, and Mike Hill, who has played very strongly in recent tournaments.

Willie Mays Fallen Giant

All-Time Great Now Lost With Mets

From the sidelines shuffled a familiar figure, cap ajar and his jaws wocking gingerly on a mouthful of gum. Sheepishly, almost apologetically, he took a position at the end of the front row.

He's a lonely, lost individual, this once dynamic, scintillating giant of the game. The Mets don't know what to do with him. Willie doesn't know what to do with himself.

"It's not as bad as last year," Mays said as he moved self-consciously around the Mets' training quarters Tuesday. "Last year, my first year not playing, I was very nervous. I had to be careful not to get too involved.

"I've overcome that a little bit, but not entirely. I have to be careful not to get in Yogi's way. I've got to keep away from the action. I can't let myself get involved."

Mays retired after the 1973 season, leaving a legacy of 660 career home runs. But he exercised the option of his Mets' contract to stay around 10 more years at $50,000 a year.

He is associated with three major companies in a public relations capacity. "I just play golf and meet people," he said.

He is finding it more trouble to keep busy in a baseball role that is not fully defined.

"Joe McDonald has made it easier on me by getting me away from the club as much as possible," the 43-year-old one-time outfielder said.

McDonald, the Mets' general manager, said he has set up a program for Mays to visit each of the Mets' five farm clubs two to four times.

"He should be very valuable with the young guys," McDonald said. "This will keep him on the road until about July 8. As best we can, we are trying not to interfere with his other commitments."

Mays, one of the great hitters of all-time, will not be called upon to use his knowledge with the varsity.

"That's what they brought Phil Cavarretta in for," Mays said. "I won't be working with any of the Mets' hitters. They haven't asked me and I don't want to interfere.

"It will give me more time for golf."

Tech Coach Rejects Offer

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — Michigan Tech hockey Coach John MacInnes, who guided the Huskies to their third NCAA title a week ago, Wednesday turned down the head coaching job at University of Minnesota-Duluth.

UMD reportedly had offered him a salary of $25,000.

MacInnes told a news conference in Duluth that he would like to coach at UMD, but did not want to leave Michigan Tech.

"I guess I have feet of clay so I couldn't make the move," said MacInnes.

MacInnes, 49, has been at Michigan Tech 19 years and nearly singlehandedly has built the school into a national hockey power.

Under his coaching, Tech teams have won three gncaa titles, six Western Collegiate Hockey Association championships and have been NCAA runnerup three times.

Tiger Shortstop Polishes Hitting

Tom Veryzer Fast Learner

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Although Tom Veryzer was the Detroit Tigers' No. 1 draft choice in June, 1971, "when I first started out, I didn't think I'd ever make it," he recalled.

"I couldn't hit at all," Veryzer said prior to a spring training baseball game.

He knows how to hit one now, and he hasn't lost slick fielding ability that prompted the Tigers to label him their "Shortstop of the Future" almost from the moment they signed him.

The future is now.

Veryzer's development was so brisk that veteran Ed Brinkman became expendable and was traded in the off-season to St. Louis via San Diego.

Brinkman said recently:

"They knew Tommy was ready to play every day. At his age he should play every day ... If I had stayed here I knew somebody would have to sit. I think I would be sitting."

Veryzer, a slender 22-year-old from Islip, N.Y., batted only .225 his rookie year at Bristol of the Appalachian League. He fell to .220 in 1972 at Class AA Montgomery of the Southern League.

Then Wayne Blackburn took him under his wing. Blackburn, 57, is a special hitting instructor with the Tigers and coached their entry in the Florida instructional League and in 1972 Veryzer batted .300 for him.

At Toledo, Detroit's top farm club in 1973, Veryzer batted .250 and was the International League's All-Star shortstop, earning a September tryout with Detroit.

Although out a month last year with a broken wrist, he hit .296 at Evansville and was an American Association All-Star. He was promoted to the Tigers Aug. 7, hitting .236 in 55 at bats.

"Shortstop is a key to this ballclub and Veryzer's done well both with the bat and the glove," said Manager Ralph Houk.

Veryzer, an introvert who enjoys rock music and basketball, didn't play shortstop until he was 16.

"When I was 15 I couldn't even reach first base with my throws," he said. "So I didn't play short. Then I guess I just got stronger."

The 6-foot-1, 180-pounder now has a whip-like throw to first. He also is a good base runner but isn't much of a threat to steal.

"I used to run well, until I broke a leg my junior year in high school," he said. "That hurt my speed, I think."

Wings, Gears Battle To 5-5 Overtime Tie

From associated Press

Saginaw's Dennis Desrosiers was ejected for game misconduct and Kalamazoo's Mike Wanchuk was sidelined with a broken leg Wednesday as the Gears and Wings fought to a 5-5 overtime tie in the International Hockey League.

Elgin Mc Cann paced Kalamazoo with two goals while Glen Ing, Brett Callighen and Rich Kramp added one goal each.

Wanchuk, lead scorer for Kalamazoo, crashed into the goal post in the first period and broke his leg.

Kalamazoo led 4-2 by the end of two periods. Saginaw opened the third period by smacking in two goals and tying the game at 4-4.

Saginaw is now 43-27-3 while Kalamazoo has a 17-50-5 mark.

At Toledo, Jerry Badiuk had three goals and Michael Laurendeau scored twice to help Toledo defeat Flint, 7-1, and clinch third place in the South Division.

Meanwhile, in Fort Wayne, Dave Inkpen scored two goals and Jerome Mrazek notched his second shutout of the year as the Des Moines Capitols blanked the Komets 6-0. Des Moines scored two goals in each period. The loss eliminated Fort Wayne from playoff contention.

Tiger Shortstop Polishes Hitting

Tom Veryzer Fast Learner

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Although Tom Veryzer was the Detroit Tigers' No. 1 draft choice in June, 1971, "when I first started out, I didn't think I'd ever make it," he recalled.

"I couldn't hit at all," Veryzer said prior to a spring training baseball game.

He knows how to hit one now, and he hasn't lost slick fielding ability that prompted the Tigers to label him their "Shortstop of the Future" almost from the moment they signed him.

The future is now.

Veryzer's development was so brisk that veteran Ed Brinkman became expendable and was traded in the off-season to St. Louis via San Diego.

Brinkman said recently:

"They knew Tommy was ready to play every day. At his age he should play every day ... If I had stayed here I knew somebody would have to sit. I think I would be sitting."

Veryzer, a slender 22-year-old from Islip, N.Y., batted only .225 his rookie year at Bristol of the Appalachian League. He fell to .220 in 1972 at Class AA Montgomery of the Southern League.

Then Wayne Blackburn took him under his wing. Blackburn, 57, is a special hitting instructor with the Tigers and coached their entry in the Florida instructional League and in 1972 Veryzer batted .300 for him.

At Toledo, Detroit's top farm club in 1973, Veryzer batted .250 and was the International League's All-Star shortstop, earning a September tryout with Detroit.

Although out a month last year with a broken wrist, he hit .296 at Evansville and was an American Association All-Star. He was promoted to the Tigers Aug. 7, hitting .236 in 55 at bats.

"Shortstop is a key to this ballclub and Veryzer's done well both with the bat and the glove," said Manager Ralph Houk.

Veryzer, an introvert who enjoys rock music and basketball, didn't play shortstop until he was 16.

"When I was 15 I couldn't even reach first base with my throws," he said. "So I didn't play short. Then I guess I just got stronger."

The 6-foot-1, 180-pounder now has a whip-like throw to first. He also is a good base runner but isn't much of a threat to steal.

"I used to run well, until I broke a leg my junior year in high school," he said. "That hurt my speed, I think."

Reaction Mixed After Meeting On School Plan

Representatives from 12 of the 16 school districts in Berrien county met Tuesday night in closed session with the county intermediate board for an informational meeting on the proposed centralized facility for the mentally impaired.

But reactions by those attending varied on whether anything was accomplished.

"I don't feel anything was accomplished," stated Supt. Burton Aldrich, of St. Joseph schools. He felt many questions posed by superintendents and board members were left unanswered.

"I think it was a very healthy and valuable kind of meeting," noted Lawrence Peachy, president of the Intermediate board. He added that the purpose of the meeting was not to "resolve anything," but to supply input that some districts may not have had before.

He conceded that "I suppose there are still questions to be answered, however."

"I was very pleased at what came out of the meeting," noted Watervliet Supt. Sam Gravitt, and termed the discussion "long overdue."

He said the Intermediate board explained many of the considerations and facts that went into planning the proposed central facility, which will be located in Berrien Springs, as opposed to the two centers now operating in St. Joseph and Niles.

Gravitt added he didn't believe that many of the various district's representatives "made much of an impression, but there was a lot of soul-searching, and I'm sure they're (the Intermediate board) sincere in their decision."

Aldrich, however, said a number of questions were left unanswered by the Intermediate board. He cited two questions which he felt were not answered: What if the majority of people in the Intermediate district with children in the impaired programs still oppose the facility?; and does the board feel it should substitute its judgment for that of parents with children in the programs.

Cassopolis Man Is Arrested

CASSOPOLIS — Willie C. Williamson, 24, route 3, Cassopolis, was arrested Tuesday by Cass sheriff's deputies on a charge of assult with intent to commit murder.

Williamson appeared before Fourth District Judge Steg J. Lignell, requested a court appointed attorney and was lodged in jail in lieu of $10,000 bond.

According to the warrant, Williamson is accused of allegedly striking Terry Buggs, 22, route 3, Cassopolis, on the back of his head with a piece of wood in a rear parking lot of Jake's tavern, Calvin Center road, Calvin township, around 8:30 p.m. March 15.

Buggs, is listed in guarded condition in the intensive care unit of Lee Memorial hospital, Dowagiac, with head and neck injuries, police said.

South Haven's School Board To Bid On Building

SOUTH HAVEN — South Haven school board Tuesday approved submitting a bid to South Haven city for leasing the city's old recreation building for school administration officers.

The bid submitted will be a $1 a year for 25 years. Supt. Harold Gaarde said the two-story building located on the southeast corner of Broadway and Phoenix street can be remodeled to accomodate seven offices and a large board room of almost 900 square feet.

He said cost of the remodeling would run approximately $60,000, about $20,000 more than first anticipated. Moving school administrative offices from the high school and central school, would free more than 3,000 square feet of space in those buildings, Gaarde said.

Under the proposed leasing agreement, the school would agree to take care of all maintenance and remodeling, plus pay utility, heating and overhead costs.

The city has already indicated it would lease the building to the district but was informed that a bid was needed to meet legal requirements.

In other areas, the board gave its support to a request from a group of citizens seeking installation of a stoplight at the intersection of Broadway and Superior street by the Central school. A group spokesman said petitions seeking the installation have been signed by about 500 people and will be turned over to the state highway department.

The board approved creating the position of freshman baseball coach to handle approximately 25 to 30 freshman who have inicated they would like a freshman baseball program this spring.

The Telephone 'Born' In March

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inventions that made history were on the march in March.

A speech teacher from Massachusetts on March 7, 1876, received a U.S. patent for a device that would transmit the human voice over wires.

The inventor was Alexander Graham Bill and his creation was, of course, the telephone, which ultimately got him into the Inventors Hall of Fame.

Eighty-two years earlier, on March 14, 1794, Eli Whitney was issued a patent, signed by President George Washington, for his cotton gin. Whitney's invention made cheap cotton possible and led to America's first big industry — textiles.

But it also sowed the seeds of slavery.

Other U.S. patents of less lasting significance received in March were those by Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin of Stuttgart, Germany.

Reaction Mixed After Meeting On School Plan

Representatives from 12 of the 16 school districts in Berrien county met Tuesday night in closed session with the county Intermediate board for an informational meeting on the proposed centralized facility for the mentally impaired.

But reactions by those attending varied on whether anything was accomplished.

"I don't feel anything was accomplished," stated Supt. Burton Aldrich, of St. Joseph schools. He felt many questions posed by superintendents and board members were left unanswered.

"I think it was a very healthy and valuable kind of meeting," noted Lawrence Peachy, president of the Intermediate board. He added that the purpose of the meeting was not to "resolve anything," but to supply input that some districts may not have had before.

He conceded that "I suppose there are still questions to be answered, however."

"I was very pleased at what came out of the meeting," noted Watervliet Supt. Sam Gravitt, and termed the discussion "long overdue."

He said the Intermediate board explained many of the considerations and facts that went into planning the proposed central facility, which will be located in Berrien Springs, as opposed to the two centers now operating in St. Joseph and Niles.

Gravitt added he didn't believe that many of the various district's representatives "made much of an impression, but there was a lot of soul-searching, and I'm sure they're (the Intermediate board) sincere in their decision."

Aldrich, however, said a number of questions were left unanswered by the Intermediate board. He cited two questions which he felt were not answered: What if the majority of people in the Intermediate district with children in the impaired programs still oppose the facility?; and does the board feel it should substitute its judgment for that of parents with children in the programs.

Brighton Woman Says Men Are Easier To Figure

LOS ALAMITOS, Calif. (AP) — Bea Farber of Brighton, Mich., got into harness racing because she didn't like the way her husband handled the horses.

That was five years ago. Now she says she'd much rather drive against the men and she likes to avoid female competition.

"I hate driving against women," she said.

Mrs. Farber, 34, left her job as a legal secretary to go racing with her husband and now handles most of the driving chores for the couple's horses.

Since she turned to harness racing, Mrs. Farber has become one of the top women drivers and rates among the leading drivers in the current meeting at Los Alamitos.

"I began driving one day because I told Charlie, that's my husband, that he wasn't doing it right," she said.

"He said, 'If you think you can do it better, go ahead' and so I did."

Figures from the U.S. Trotting Association show Mrs. Farber opened 1975 with 144 victories and $241,897 in winnings at recognized tracks, about four times more money than the second winningest lady driver.

She bought a horse a few years ago for riding, then became involved in training and racing when she learned the horse could be used in harness racing.

She's had three spills in five years of racing but no serious injuries. "I guess it's mainly due to the fact that I've worked with horses most of my life," she said.

But, she said, "Driving skill and what you might call a woman's touch make up for strength.

"The toughest part of racing is mental. It takes experience to drive, but once you get it, it isn't difficult. The mental work is tough because you have to keep track of all your horses, know which need help, how to drive them, how to get each one just right."

Mrs. Black Helping Uncle Sam

Shirley Temple Still A Hit

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — In the three months since she became U.S. ambassador here, Shirley Temple Black has been almost as big a hit on the diplomatic stage as she was in the movies three and four decades ago.

The poise, charm and hard work that made her one of the highest paid stars in Hollywood in her childhood has won Uncle Sam unexpected box office appeal in West Africa.

She has approached her job with some unorthodoxy.

She has startled the embassy pros by turning up at her desk in a Ghanaian outfit of printed cotton head scarf and matching gown and strewing "awwaabas" — welcome in Twi, and "oyiwala dons" — thank you in Ga — all over town.

She has delighted the ladies of the Market Women's Association, who own 90 per cent of Ghana's shops and stalls and most of the fishing boats, by stomping out a torrid High Life, the native dance, on a length of African cloth down at the colorful Macoola market and embracing them as sister working girls.

Madam ambassador has definitely become one of Ghana's "wanto wazuri," which is Ashanti for "beautiful people."

An outspoken opponent of racial separation in a country vigorously dedicated to supporting African liberation movements, and a successful career woman in a society where women's liberation banners drape the dusty streets of even the most remote villages, Ambassador Black has scored a triumph for the casting office of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

"Is she black? Is she an Afro-American?" asked a Ghanaian journalist as a press bus bumped through Ashanti country to yet another "durbar," a convocation of tribal chiefs, he mistook the ambassador's California tan and Ghana-like joviality for tribal affinity.

No, he had never seen any of her films, but knew she was "a famous actress lady."

Ambassador Black, in an interview with The Associated Press, was delighted to be mistaken for an authentic black and almost as happy with the thought that someone, somewhere had missed her films.

Flashing the famous dimples from the 1936 picture of the same name, the ambassador diplomatically brought up her pet peeve against the press: being called a "former child star."

"Dr. Kissinger was a former child. Gerry Ford was a former child. Even F.D.R. was a former child. I retired from the movies in 1949, but I'm still a former child," she pouted the winsome pout then, laughing at her own pique, turned to African affairs.

For the better part of an hour, Mrs. Black discussed Ghana's economic recovery in great detail and without recourse to notes, she touched on the country's so far unsuccessful quest for oil, its problems with quadrupled oil prices and worldwide inflation, the lingering debts from the previous Kwame Nkrumah regime and the so far highly successful "operation feed yourself," the government's program to reduce Ghana's dependence on imported food.

Mrs. Black said that she first became interested in Africa and the Third World when she was the U.S. representative to the United Nations General Assembly in 1969 and took her seat "with the delegate from the United Republic of Tanzania on my left and Upper Volta on my right and we all became very close friends."

New Buffalo City Votes To Seek Bridge Funding

NEW BUFFALO — A preliminary application for state funds to help finance reconstruction of the Whittaker street bridge here was approved by the city council Tuesday night.

ROLLAND OSELKA
Re-elected mayor

If approved, the state would pay for 75 per cent of the projected $300,920 cost for the bridge itself, and another $10,000 on an estimated $67,930 cost for approach work.

The city would pay the rest, or $159,790.

Previously, the city had sought help in financing from Berrien county, but had the request turned down because the bridge is inside the city.

In other areas, Mayor Rolland Oselka was re-elected by the council to another term as mayor. Frank Magro was elected mayor pro-tem.

Under the city charter, the mayor is a council member elected to the mayor's post by other councilmen.

Councilmember Mrs. Ronald (Carol) Bond was appointed the city's representative to the Pine Grove cemetery board. The cemetery is operated jointly by New Buffalo city and township.

Acting as the water board prior to the regular council session, the council approved a 100 per cent increase in water tap in fees.

Effectively immediately, tap-in fees will be $220 for three-quarter-inch lines, compared to $110 before the hike, and $280 for one-inch lines, compared to $135 charged in the past.

Marx said the hikes were necessary to cover increased operation and maintenance costs of the water plant.

A proposed rate schedule for selling water to Chikaming township was taken under advisement and a special meeting to set the fees was scheduled tomorrow at for 7:30 p.m.

Galien Play Postponed A Month

GALIEN — The Galien junior class play, "The Night of January 16," previously scheduled to be presented March 26 ad 27, has been postponed until April 24 and 25 at 8 p.m. in the cafetorium.

The announcement of the postponement was made by Carl Simmons, faculty advisor for the play.

She bought a horse a few years ago for riding, then became involved in training and racing when she learned the horse could be used in harness racing.

She's had three spills in five years of racing but no serious injuries. "I guess it's mainly due to the fact that I've worked with horses most of my life," she said.

Mrs. Farber admits she lacks the strength to handle a horse hard.

But, she said, "Driving skill and what you might call a woman's touch make up for strength.

"The toughest part of racing is mental. It takes experience to drive, but once you get it, it isn't difficult. The mental work is tough because you have to keep track of all your horses, know which need help, how to drive them, how to get each one just right."

Mrs. Black Helping Uncle Sam

Shirley Temple Still A Hit

ACCRA, Ghana (AP) — In the three months since she became U.S. ambassador here, Shirley Temple Black has been almost as big a hit on the diplomatic stage as she was in the movies three and four decades ago.

The poise, charm and hard work that made her one of the highest paid stars in Hollywood in her childhood has won Uncle Sam unexpected box office appeal in West Africa.

She has approached her job with some unorthodoxy.

She has startled the embassy pros by turning up at her desk in a Ghanaian outfit of printed cotton head scarf and matching gown and strewing "awwaabas" — welcome in Twi, and "oyiwala dons" — thank you in Ga — all over town.

She has delighted the ladies of the Market Women's Association, who own 90 per cent of Ghana's shops and stalls and most of the fishing boats, by stomping out a torrid High Life, the native dance, on a length of African cloth down at the colorful Macoola market and embracing them as sister working girls.

An outspoken opponent of racial separation in a country vigorously dedicated to supporting African liberation movements, and a successful career woman in a society where women's liberation banners drape the dusty streets of even the most remote villages, Ambassador Black has scored a triumph for the casting office of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

"Is she black? Is she an Afro-American?" asked a Ghanaian journalist as a press bus bumped through Ashanti country to yet another "durbar," a convocation of tribal chiefs, he mistook the ambassador's California tan and Ghana-like joviality for tribal affinity.

No, he had never seen any of her films, but knew she was "a famous actress lady."

Ambassador Black, in an interview with The Associated Press, was delighted to be mistaken for an authentic black and almost as happy with the thought that someone, somewhere had missed her films.

Flashing the famous dimples from the 1936 picture of the same name, the ambassador diplomatically brought up her pet peeve against the press: being called a "former child star."

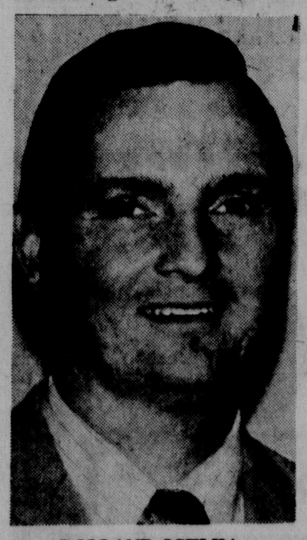
"Dr. Kissinger was a former child. Gerry Ford was a former child. Even F.D.R. was a former child. I retired from the movies in 1949, but I'm still a former child," she pouted the winsome pout then, laughing at her own pique, turned to African affairs.

For the better part of an hour, Mrs. Black discussed Ghana's economic recovery in great detail and without recourse to notes, she touched on the country's so far unsuccessful quest for oil, its problems with quadrupled oil prices and worldwide inflation, the lingering debts from the previous Kwame Nkrumah regime and the so far highly successful "operation feed yourself," the government's program to reduce Ghana's dependence on imported food.

Mrs. Black said that she first became interested in Africa and the Third World when she was the U.S. representative to the United Nations General Assembly in 1969 and took her seat "with the delegate from the United Republic of Tanzania on my left and Upper Volta on my right and we all became very close friends."

New Buffalo City Votes To Seek Bridge Funding

NEW BUFFALO — A preliminary application for state funds to help finance reconstruction of the Whittaker street bridge here was approved by the city council Tuesday night.



ROLLAND OSELKA
Re-elected mayor

If approved, the state would pay for 75 per cent of the projected $300,920 cost for the bridge itself, and another $10,000 on an estimated $67,930 cost for approach work.

The city would pay the rest, or $159,790.

Previously, the city had sought help in financing from Berrien county, but had the request turned down because the bridge is inside the city.

In other areas, Mayor Rolland Oselka was re-elected by the council to another term as mayor. Frank Magro was elected mayor pro-tem.

Under the city charter, the mayor is a council member elected to the mayor's post by other councilmen.

Councilmember Mrs. Ronald (Carol) Bond was appointed the city's representative to the Pine Grove cemetery board. The cemetery is operated jointly by New Buffalo city and township.

Acting as the water board prior to the regular council session, the council approved a 100 per cent increase in water tap in fees.

Effectively immediately, tap-in fees will be $220 for three-quarter-inch lines, compared to $110 before the hike, and $280 for one-inch lines, compared to $135 charged in the past.

Marx said the hikes were necessary to cover increased operation and maintenance costs of the water plant.

A proposed rate schedule for selling water to Chikaming township was taken under advisement and a special meeting to set the fees was scheduled tomorrow at for 7:30 p.m.

Galien Play Postponed A Month

GALIEN — The Galien junior class play, "The Night of January 16," previously scheduled to be presented March 26 ad 27, has been postponed until April 24 and 25 at 8 p.m. in the cafetorium.

The announcement of the postponement was made by Carl Simmons, faculty advisor for the play.

Virus Link Studied

Researchers Tackle MS

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the fourth in a series of articles on diseases that can't be cured or prevented because scientists lack fundamental knowledge about them.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Writer

BETHESDA, Md. (AP) — Increasing circumstantial evidence is pointing to a virus or viruses as the cause of the incurable nerve disease multiple sclerosis.

One finger of suspicion points to the ordinary measles virus. Other evidence implicates one kind of flu virus.

If they are culprits, they would be acting as "slow viruses," meaning they could hide in the body for years before becoming activated to do their damage in multiple sclerosis, or M.S.

Whatever the cause, and it well may not be a virus, the damage is a kind of short-circuiting of nerves in the brain and spinal cord. The fatty insulating sheath, called myelin, around nerves breaks down in patches, forming scars, and impeding the normal flow of nerve impulses.

Multiple sclerosis can damage eyesight, slur speech, bring on tremors, numbness, difficulty in walking, weakness, spasticity, impaired bladder control and other troubles.

Attacks come and go, occasionally with long periods of remission in between, but the course is always downhill. Some 250,000 Americans are victims, and most contract M.S. between ages 20 and 40, with women more susceptible. Another 250,000 people suffer from diseases affecting nerves in a similar way.

Multiple sclerosis has long been one of the "stalled diseases," with its cause, prevention or cure so far eluding all research efforts.

But with M.S. and other stalled diseases, there is optimism among many scientists that significant progress could soon be made.

While viruses are highly suspect as cause, another strong possibility is that something goes wrong with the body's protective immune mechanism which defends against invading germs or viruses.

Is M.S. one of the "autoimmune" diseases in which the defensive mechanism turns against its own tissue? Can peculiar viruses alter the mechanism, setting it off on a selfdestructive track? Does some initial defect in the immune system allow a virus to exist in a suspended state before something triggers it?

These and other questions are being pursued in laboratories across this country and around the world.

And there are tantalizing leads.

In Philadelphia, Dr. Hilary Koprowski of the Wistar Institute and Dr. Donald H. Silberberg of the University of Pennsylvania, working with Dr. V. Termuelen of the University of Gottingen, Germany, isolated a parainfluenza virus causing symptoms much like ordinary flu from brain tissue of two M.S. victims.

They found this virus by fusing, in tissue culture, genetic material from the human brain tissue with genetic material from kidney cells of an African Green monkey. Out came the virus identified as parainfluenza. It had somehow become "completed" by this treatment.

A virus is a tiny chunk of genetic information or commands, but some need additional components to become complete or active.

Was the parainfluenza virus the cause of M.S., or just a casual visitor in the brain tissue? If it was causative, then vaccinations or other treatments might prevent M.S.

Now the Koprowski-Silberberg team is testing whether this virus will cause multiple sclerosis or a multiple sclerosis-like disease after injection into newborn, germ-free primates.

Their research, like others, also is looking into another strange aspect of viruses. This is the fact that some viruses can change the surface membranes of cells, giving rise to new structures or antigens. An antigen is something that stimulates defensive antibodies against it. The new antigens produced this way can affect the growth and survival of cells, at least in tissue culture. Might they also trigger a quite different disease?

To pursue all these leads, the National Multiple Sclerosis Society, based in New York, is contributing $500,000 and the National Institute of Neurological Disease and Stroke some $2 million in a three-year grant to the Wistar group.

Here on the campus of the National Institutes of Health, Dr. David A. Puccillo, in an interview, talks of slow viruses and evidence suggesting that measles might play a role in M.S. He is assistant chief of the Infectious Diseases Branch of the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Stroke.

Multiple sclerosis patients usually have a higher level of antibody against measles virus than the general population.

If measles virus is later responsible for M.S. or allied diseases, then "why is it not vacuumed up by the usual immune system" soon after the initial infection, Dr. Puccillo asks. There is no answer yet.

Dr. Puccillo points to another disease, SSPE (Subacute sclerosing panencephalitis) caused by a virus that is either measles or related to it. This very rare disease causes a long-drawn infection in the brain leading to death, with initial symptoms perhaps being no more than subtle behavior changes or discipline problems in school.

The virus in SSPE was isolated by using the cocultivation technique, mixing human brain tissue with animal tissue, as in the case of the parainfluenza virus work. Out came the complete virus. One guess is that an incomplete virus had lain smoldering for years after the initial measles infection.

Cancer researchers first started the technique of pulling out the incomplete viruses, and "we were the first to try it here with slow viruses," says Dr. Puccillo. "We hope that if there is an incomplete virus involved in M.S., we can pull it out."

Other researchers are looking into reasons why M.S. is relatively rare in equatorial regions, but rises in incidence in higher latitudes. People who move from a high-risk area after age 15 to a low-risk country keep their high risks. But those moving from low-risk to high-risk areas before age 15 keep their low risk. Why?

Last year the National Advisory Commission on Multiple Sclerosis recommended a new expenditure of $18 million annually for the next three years, mostly on basis biomedical research in the neurological sciences, in hopes of turning up knowledge valuable to all neurological disorders, including M.S.

Probe Target Gets Top Job

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Immigration and Naturalization Service is giving a regional commissioner who was the target of a corruption probe the agency's top law enforcement job.

Leonard Gilman, currently the Southwest regional commissioner, is moving to Washington to become associate commissioner for enforcement.

Pianist's Show Must Go On

WATERVILLE, Maine (AP) — Pianist Lorin Hollander played his concert at Colby College flanked by four music students with flashlights.

Just as the concert began Wednesday night, the power failed and the lights went out. Emergency lights weren't bright enough for seeing the keyboard, so the students held flashlights while Hollander played.

CIA, FBI Aid In Nazi Hunt

Market Down A Fraction

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pulled back slightly today in a continuation of the downtrend of the past two sessions.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down a fraction, and losers held a narrow lead over gainers on the New York Sock Exchange.

Analysts noted some further profit taking while many investors apparently stepped back to take a new look at economic prospects.

The government reported as trading began that consumer prices rose at a 7.2 per cent annual rate in February—matching the pace of the previous month.

Early prices on the Big Board included Pitney-Bowes, down ½ at 15¼; American Cyanamid, off ½ at 25½; Inexco Oil, up ⅛ at 7⅛; and MCA, up ⅛ at 42⅞.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 9.93 to 769.48 for its biggest decline in more than two weeks.

Losers outnumbered gainers by more than a 5-2 margin on the NYSE in turnover of 19.03 million shares.

The Big Board's composite index dropped .41 to 44.69.

Whirlpool's Platts Sees Appliances Rebounding

The four-month decline of major appliance sales has reversed and may signal a significant turn-around, John H. Platts, chairman of Whirlpool Corp., said Wednesday.

"March unit sales aren't back up to last year's levels, but they represent the first upward trend since November," he said in an interview.

According to the Association of Home Appliance Manufacurers, appliance shipments fell 28 per cent in November from year earlier, 22 per cent in December, 36 per cent in January and 32 per cent in February.

Whirlpool shipments are believed to closely parallel those of the industry.

As a result of the uptrend, Whirlpool, which is a major Sears, Roebuck & Co. supplier, has boosted production schedules through April and is calling back some furloughed workers. Whirlpool had a peak layoff corporate-wide of about 5,300 hourly workers in early February, of which 20 per cent to 25 per cent will be recalled by the end of April, Platts said.

Platts also said that supply lines between factory and dealers are "clean" and that any sales increase will mean a quick rise in production. "Our inventories are extremely tight," he said. "We have a three - to - five - week supply in our factories, depending on the type of appliance, compared to the 'normal' supply of six - to - eight weeks."

First quarter sales will be down 15 per cent — "plus or minus 3 per cent depending on how March turns out" — from the year-earlier $388.2 million, Platts said.

Profit for the quarter won't match the year-earlier 23 cents a share, restated for last-in, first-out inventory accounting, and first half profit, probably won't equal the year-earlier 39 cents a share, Platts said.

But "with the improving trend at retail," full-year profit is expected to be "significantly better" than 1974's 69 cents a share, he added. Asked about some analysts' estimates of 1975 earnings of about $1.30 a share, he said: "As things stand now, I'd be disappointed if we didn't do better than that. I have a lot of confidence in the second half."

Whirlpool's plans until 1979 call for an average sales growth of 9.7 per cent a year, with a "minimum" profit growth of that amount. In the five years through 1973, sales grew at the rate of 10.5 per cent a year and profit at 15 per cent a year. "The growth of return on equity from 1968-73 was 12.9 per cent," Platts said. "We see a 12.5 per cent annual return over the next five-year period."

Platts said a much smaller increase in raw material costs this year than last will help profit. Raw material costs rose 18 per cent to 20 per cent in 1974, but are expected to rise only 4 per cent to 7 per cent in 1975, he said. "The situation is getting better. In August we are guessing a 10 per cent to 11 per cent increase" in raw material costs for 1975, he said.

Prices have been raised on "some selected" Whirlpool models but "nothing to the extent of the increases we made in late 1974 and the beginning of 1975," the executive said.

He said Whirlpool isn't planning any factory-rebate program to stimulate consumer buying. "The level of profitability in this industry is just too damn low," he explained.

"People aren't buying the bottom of the line," although they apparently have traded down a bit, Platts continued. "Say in a 10-model line last year, they were buyng model Nos. 7, 8 and 9, well now they're buying Nos. 5, 6 and 7," he said.

To hold the line on appliance prices, Whirlpool has redesigned some models "to take off a feature or two," Platts said. "If we can drop a washing-machine water level or a cycle in the interest of a better consumer price, we're doing it," he said. "That's typical of the whole appliance industry."

Platts said Whirlpool's 1975 capital spending won't match 1974's $33 million. "We don't know how much lower it will be — we're reviewing it now," he said. Tooling costs, however, will be down 15 per cent to 20 percent from last year's $19 million, he said.

Whirlpool's television-manufacturing subsidiary, Warwick Inc., which had a loss of $1.8 million in 1974, probably won't be profitable this year, either, Platts indicated. "A profit, however modest, will represent a very competent management job," he said.

The executive said Whirlpool believes it could make up Warwick's $1.8 million 1974 loss if 1975 industry sales of color-television sets reach 7.5 million. "But it looks like a 5.5-million-set year, and that puts an additional strain on profit making," Platts said.

Warwick makes sets mostly for Sears, but also for S. S. Kresge Co.'s K-Mart and Gamble-Skogmo Inc.

Hoosier Oil Dissipates In SJ River

NILES — Federal, state and local officials today were continuing cleanup operations of several thousand gallons of oil that leaked from an Indiana utility company tank in South Bend, Tuesday, and spread northward down the St. Joseph river to the Niles area.

Robert Babcock, of the state's Department of Natural Resources (DNR), division of water resources, said state and federal officers began working in Niles yesterday to clean up the slick.

Babcock said it has not been determined how much oil spread northward from a storage tank area located near Bowman creek, a St. Joseph river tributary, in South Bend, but estimated several thousand gallons were involved.

The DNR official said the federal Environmental Protection agency, and the U.S. Coast Guard, have been called in to supervise the cleanup because the oil slick had spread across the state line into Michigan.

The heavy oil was used to seal a natural gas storage tank owned by the Northern Indiana Public Service company, a private utility firm, supplying customers in northern Indiana.

Tom Booker, NIPSCO official in South Bend, said crews were dismantling a tank when the oil flowed into an overflow pipe that led into the river.

He said the leak began sometime late Tuesday after the crews had left for the day. It was plugged by Wednesday morning.

Ken Dodge, of the DNR's fisheries division in Plainwell, said state and federal officials felt the slick had apparently dissipated between the Niles and Buchanan area.

He said no reports had been received by this morning that the oil had spread any further north than Niles.

Dodge said the Coast Guard had installed a boom across the river just north of the French Paper company mill dam in Niles to skim the oil from the river's surface by yesterday afternoon.

No reports of kills to wildlife or fish had been reported this morning, Dodge said.

Driver Hurt As Tanker Overturns

EDWARDSBURG — Harold Messenger, 34, Niles, sustained minor injuries after the gasoline tanker truck he was driving overturned 10 miles east of here about 2:43 a.m. today, according to Cass county sheriff's deputies.

Deputies said that gasoline from the truck, owned by Refiners Transport and Terminal corporation of Niles, spilled on the roadway and into a ditch near the intersection of M-203 and Cassopolis road. No fire resulted from the accident, deputies added, as firemen from the Edwardsburg fire department cleared away the spillage.

A company spokesman said that the tanker was carrying 7,800 gallons of regular gasoline and it had not been determined this morning how many gallons spilled out of the truck.

Messenger received facial cuts and superficial injuries, deputies said. He was treated at Elkhart, Ind., General hospital and released.

UP .6 PER CENT

Consumer Prices Continue To Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the smallest rise in food prices in seven months, the cost of other goods and services pushed consumer prices up another six-tenths of a per cent in February, the government reported today.

Last month's retail price increase was the same as January and came despite three months of steadily falling prices at the wholesale level.

The latest Consumer Price Index figures show that consumers are still being hit by sharply higher costs for services, such as medical fees, utility bills and rent.

Finished goods other than food also are continuing to increase sharply, in part the reflection of mounting labor costs.

In a separate report, the Labor Department said that hourly earnings increased slightly last month but that the purchasing power of the average American worker's paycheck again declined. Real spendable earnings — that is, earnings after deductions for inflation and taxes — fell five-tenths of a per cent last month. Over the year real earnings have declined 5 per cent.

The rate of inflation has been moderating somewhat in the past few months, with the six-tenths of a per cent increases in each of the past two months marking the slowest rate of increase since the five-tenths of 1 per cent gain last April.

For the three-month period ended in February, prices rose at an annual rate of 8.1 per cent, far below the 14.2 per cent annual rate of increase from July to September of last year.

The Ford administration predicts inflation will subside to a rate of 8 to 9 per cent for the year, down from the near 12 per cent level in 1974.

The Consumer Price Index stood at 157.2 in February, meaning that it cost $157.20 to buy the same amount of goods and services that cost $100 in the 1967 base period.

Food prices rose one-tenth of a per cent last month, the smallest increase since last July, when they dropped four-tenths of a per cent.

Declines in beef, pork, poultry and sugar prices were mainly responsible for the slowdown.

Grocery prices, the major portion of the food index, were up four-tenths of a per cent in February, slightly less than the usual seasonal increase at that time of the year. The increase in grocery prices was largely due to higher prices for fresh fruits and vegetables and sharp increases in prices of bakery products and other sugar-based products.

Burroughs Capital Spending Up

DETROIT (AP) — Burroughs Corp., a computer company, said Wednesday it has allocated a record $350 million in 1975 for capital spending projects.

The eight per cent increase over 1974 capital expenditures is below the 12.8 per cent rate of inflation for last year, however.

Burroughs' Chairman Ray MacDonald said $245 million is earmarked for additions to the firm's rental equipment supply, while $70 million will go for improvements in plant, tools, test equipment and marketing offices.

Burroughs has a total of 54 plants with two more under construction. The firm employs 51,000 persons and had 1974 revenues of $1.53 billion.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Down A Fraction

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pulled back slightly today in a continuation of the downtrend of the past two sessions.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down a fraction, and losers held a narrow lead over gainers on the New York Sock Exchange.

Analysts noted some further profit taking while many investors apparently stepped back to take a new look at economic prospects.

The government reported as trading began that consumer prices rose at a 7.2 per cent annual rate in February—matching the pace of the previous month.

Other government figures showed that a typical worker's purchasing power registered a further decline in February.

Early prices on the Big Board included Pitney-Bowes, down ½ at 15¼; American Cyanamid, off ½ at 25½; Inexco Oil, up ⅛ at 7⅛; and MCA, up ⅛ at 42⅞.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 9.93 to 769.48 for its biggest decline in more than two weeks.

Losers outnumbered gainers by more than a 5-2 margin on the NYSE in turnover of 19.03 million shares.

The Big Board's composite index dropped .41 to 44.69.

Whirlpool's Platts Sees Appliances Rebounding

The four-month decline of major appliance sales has reversed and may signal a significant turn-around, John H. Platts, chairman of Whirlpool Corp., said Wednesday.

"March unit sales aren't back up to last year's levels, but they represent the first upward trend since November," he said in an interview.

According to the Association of Home Appliance Manufacurers, appliance shipments fell 28 per cent in November from year earlier, 22 per cent in December, 36 per cent in January and 32 per cent in February.

Whirlpool shipments are believed to closely parallel those of the industry.

As a result of the uptrend, Whirlpool, which is a major Sears, Roebuck & Co. supplier, has boosted production schedules through April and is calling back some furloughed workers. Whirlpool had a peak layoff corporate-wide of about 5,300 hourly workers in early February, of which 20 per cent to 25 per cent will be recalled by the end of April, Platts said.

Platts also said that supply lines between factory and dealers are "clean" and that any sales increase will mean a quick rise in production. "Our inventories are extremely tight," he said. "We have a three - to - five - week supply in our factories, depending on the type of appliance, compared to the 'normal' supply of six - to - eight weeks."

First quarter sales will be down 15 per cent — "plus or minus 3 per cent depending on how March turns out" — from the year-earlier $388.2 million, Platts said.

Profit for the quarter won't match the year-earlier 23 cents a share, restated for last-in, first-out inventory accounting, and first half profit probably won't equal the year-earlier 39 cents a share, Platts said.

But "with the improving trend at retail," full-year profit is expected to be "significantly better" than 1974's 69 cents a share, he added. Asked about some analysts' estimates of 1975 earnings of about $1.30 a share, he said: "As things stand now, I'd be disappointed if we didn't do better than that. I have a lot of confidence in the second half."

Whirlpool's plans until 1979 call for an average sales growth of 9.7 per cent a year, with a "minimum" profit growth of that amount. In the five years through 1973, sales grew at the rate of 10.5 per cent a year and profit at 15 per cent a year. "The growth of return on equity from 1968-73 was 12.9 per cent," Platts said. "We see a 12.5 per cent annual return over the next five-year period."

Platts said a much smaller increase in raw material costs this year than last will help profit. Raw material costs rose 18 per cent to 20 per cent in 1974, but are expected to rise only 4 per cent to 7 per cent in 1975, he said. "The situation is getting better. In August we are guessing a 10 per cent to 11 per cent increase" in raw material costs for 1975, he said.

Prices have been raised on "some selected" Whirlpool models but "nothing to the extent of the increases we made in late 1974 and the beginning of 1975," the executive said.

He said Whirlpool isn't planning any factory-rebate program to stimulate consumer buying. "The level of profitability in this industry is just too damn low," he explained.

"People aren't buying the bottom of the line," although they apparently have traded down a bit, Platts continued. "Say in a 10-model line last year they were buyng model Nos. 7, 8 and 9, well now they're buying Nos. 5, 6 and 7," he said.

To hold the line on appliance prices, Whirlpool has redesigned some models "to take off a feature or two," Platts said. "If we can drop a washing-machine water level or a cycle in the interest of a better consumer price, we're doing it," he said. "That's typical of the whole appliance industry."

Platts said Whirlpool's 1975 capital spending won't match 1974's $33 million. "We don't know how much lower it will be — we're reviewing it now," he said. Tooling costs, however, will be down 15 per cent to 20 percent from last year's $19 million, he said.

Whirlpool's television-manufacturing subsidiary, Warwick Inc., which had a loss of $1.8 million in 1974, probably won't be profitable this year, either, Platts indicated. "A profit, however modest, will represent a very competent management job," he said.

The executive said Whirlpool believes it could make up Warwick's $1.8 million 1974 loss if 1975 industry sales of color-television sets reach 7.5 million. "But it looks like a 5.5-million-set year, and that puts an additional strain on profit making," Platts said.

Warwick makes sets mostly for Sears, but also for S. S. Kresge Co.'s K-Mart and Gamble-Skogmo Inc.

Hoosier Oil Dissipates In SJ River

NILES — Federal, state and local officials today were continuing cleanup operations of several thousand gallons of oil that leaked from an Indiana utility company tank in South Bend, Tuesday, and spread northward down the St. Joseph river to the Niles area .

Robert Babcock, of the state's Department of Natural Resources (DNR), division of water resources, said state and federal officers began working in Niles yesterday to clean up the slick.

Babcock said it has not been determined how much oil spread northward from a storage tank area located near Bowman creek, a St. Joseph river tributary, in South Bend, but estimated several thousand gallons were involved.

The DNR official said the federal Environmental Protection agency, and the U.S. Coast Guard, have been called in to supervise the cleanup because the oil slick had spread across the state line into Michigan.

The heavy oil was used to seal a natural gas storage tank owned by the Northern Indiana Public Service company, a private utility firm, supplying customers in northern Indiana.

Tom Booker, NIPSCO official in South Bend, said crews were dismantling a tank when the oil flowed into an overflow pipe that led into the river.

He said the leak began sometime late Tuesday after the crews had left for the day. It was plugged by Wednesday morning.

Ken Dodge, of the DNR's fisheries division in Plainwell, said state and federal officials felt the slick had apparently dissipated between the Niles and Buchanan area.

He said no reports had been received by this morning that the oil had spread any further north than Niles.

Dodge said the Coast Guard had installed a boom across the river just north of the French Paper company mill dam in Niles to skim the oil from the river's surface by yesterday afternoon.

No reports of kills to wildlife or fish had been reported this morning, Dodge said.

Driver Hurt As Tanker Overturns

EDWARDSBURG — Harold Messenger, 34, Niles, sustained minor injuries after the gasoline tanker truck he was driving overturned 10 miles east of here about 2:43 a.m. today, according to Cass county sheriff's deputies.

Deputies said that gasoline from the truck, owned by Refiners Transport and Terminal corporation of Niles, spilled on the roadway and into a ditch near the intersection of M-203 and Cassopolis road. No fire resulted from the accident, deputies added, as firemen from the Edwardsburg fire department cleared away the spillage.

A company spokesman said that the tanker was carrying 7,800 gallons of regular gasoline and it had not been determined this morning how many gallons spilled out of the truck.

Messenger received facial cuts and superficial injuries, deputies said. He was treated at Elkhart, Ind., General hospital and released.

UP .6 PER CENT

Consumer Prices Continue To Rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the smallest rise in food prices in seven months, the cost of other goods and services pushed consumer prices up another six-tenths of a per cent in February, the government reported today.

Last month's retail price increase was the same as January and came despite three months of steadily falling prices at the wholesale level.

The latest Consumer Price Index figures show that consumers are still being hit by sharply higher costs for services, such as medical fees, utility bills and rent.

Finished goods other than food also are continuing to increase sharply, in part the reflection of mounting labor costs.

In a separate report, the Labor Department said that hourly earnings increased slightly last month but that the purchasing power of the average American worker's paycheck again declined. Real spendable earnings — that is, earnings after deductions for inflation and taxes — fell five-tenths of a per cent last month. Over the year real earnings have declined 5 per cent.

The rate of inflation has been moderating somewhat in the past few months, with the six-tenths of a per cent increases in each of the past two months marking the slowest rate of increase since the five-tenths of 1 per cent gain last April.

For the three-month period ended in February, prices rose at an annual rate of 8.1 per cent, far below the 14.2 per cent annual rate of increase from July to September of last year.

The Ford administration predicts inflation will subside to a rate of 8 to 9 per cent for the year, down from the near 12 per cent level in 1974.

The Consumer Price Index stood at 157.2 in February, meaning that it cost $157.20 to buy the same amount of goods and services that cost $100 in the 1967 base period.

Food prices rose one-tenth of a per cent last month, the smallest increase since last July, when they dropped four-tenths of a per cent.

Declines in beef, pork, poultry and sugar prices were mainly responsible for the slowdown.

Grocery prices, the major portion of the food index, were up four-tenths of a per cent in February, slightly less than the usual seasonal increase at that time of the year. The increase in grocery prices was largely due to higher prices for fresh fruits and vegetables and sharp increases in prices of bakery products and other sugar-based products.

Burroughs Capital Spending Up

DETROIT (AP) — Burroughs Corp., a computer company, said Wednesday it has allocated a record $350 million in 1975 for capital spending projects.

The eight per cent increase over 1974 capital expenditures is below the 12.8 per cent rate of inflation for last year, however.

Burroughs' Chairman Ray MacDonald said $245 million is earmarked for additions to the firm's rental equipment supply, while $70 million will go for improvements in plant, tools, test equipment and marketing offices.

Burroughs has a total of 54 plants with two more under construction. The firm employs 51,000 persons and had 1974 revenues of $1.53 billion.

STATEMENT OF NONDISCRIMINATION

"Fruit Belt Electric Cooperative has filed with the Federal Government a Compliance Assurance in which it assures the Rural Electrification Administration that it will comply fully with all requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Rules and Regulations of the Department of Agriculture issued thereunder, to the end that no person in the United States shall, on the ground of race, color, or national origin, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be otherwise subjected to discrimination in the conduct of its program and the operation of its facilities. Under this Assurance, this organization is committed not to discriminate against any person on the ground of race, color or national origin in its policies and practices relating to applications for service or any other policies and practices relating to treatment of beneficiaries and participants including rates, conditions and extensions of service, use of any of its facilities, attendance at and participation in any meetings of beneficiaries and participants or the exercise of any rights of such beneficiaries and participants in the conduct of the operations of this organization.

"Any person who believes himself, or any specific class of individuals, to be subjected by this organization to discrimination prohibited by Title VI of the Act and the Rules and Regulations issued thereunder may, by himself or a representative, file with the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, of the Rural Electrification Administration, Washington, D.C. 20250, or this organization, or all, a written complaint. Such complaint much be filed not later than 90 days after the alleged discrimination, or by such later date to which the Secretary of Agriculture or the Rural Electrification Administration extends the time for filing. Identity of complainants will be kept confidential except to the extent necessary to carry out the purposes of the Rules and Regulations."

STATEMENT OF NONDISCRIMINATION

"Fruit Belt Electric Cooperative has filed with the Federal Government a Compliance Assurance in which it assures the Rural Electrification Administration that it will comply fully with all requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Rules and Regulations of the Department of Agriculture issued thereunder, to the end that no person in the United States shall, on the ground of race, color, or national origin, be excluded from participation in, be denied the benefits of, or be otherwise subjected to discrimination in the conduct of its program and the operation of its facilities. Under this Assurance, this organization is committed not to discriminate against any person on the ground of race, color or national origin in its policies and practices relating to applications for service or any other policies and practices relating to treatment of beneficiaries and participants including rates, conditions and extensions of service, use of any of its facilities, attendance at and participation in any meetings of beneficiaries and participants or the exercise of any rights of such beneficiaries and participants in the conduct of the operations of this organization.

"Any person who believes himself, or any specific class of individuals, to be subjected by this organization to discrimination prohibited by Title VI of the Act and the Rules and Regulations issued thereunder may, by himself or a representative, file with the Secretary of Agriculture, Washington, D.C. 20250, or the Rural Electrification Administration, Washington, D.C. 20250, or this organization, or all, a written complaint. Such complaint much be filed not later than 90 days after the alleged discrimination, or by such later date to which the Secretary of Agriculture or the Rural Electrification Administration extends the time for filing. Identity of complainants will be kept confidential except to the extent necessary to carry out the purposes of the Rules and Regulations."

Susan Ford Has Crush On Lensman?

Q: I read that White House photographer David Kennerly was practically a member of the family for a period when Ford was vice president. What does Susan think of him? — K.L., Walterboro, S.C.

A: Since we are in the gossip business we'll pass along a totally unsubstantiated rumor that 17-year-old Susan Ford developed a real crush on Kennerly and that it was one of the reasons for her split with her recent "steady," Gardner Britt. Kennerly is now being seen with Candice Bergen, which either thickens the plot or gives lie to the rumor. Take your choice.

KENNERLY: Did Susan have a crush?

Q: You keep reading about all the British stars who now make their home in the U.S. — Julie Christie, Sarah Miles and dozens of others, but what about my favorite, Miss Poppins herself: Julie Andrews? — M.D., Des Moines, Iowa

A: Julie always hated Hollywood and loathed people prying into her private life. When you add this to the fact that most of the movies she made after "Mary Poppins" were less than sensational then you may understand why she insisted that she and her husband, Blake Edwards, go live in Switzerland.

PEOPLE
By Robin Adams Sloan

LATEST REFUGEE FROM HOLLYWOOD: Lee Marvin, who used to keep things interesting with his wild, wild ways in the Malibu movie colony, has moved with his wife, Pam, to a 20-acre ranch in the clear desert air near Tucson, Arizona. She has practically given up the booze and is now mostly interested in deep-sea fishing (Australia) and working an old gold mine which is now beginning to pay off since the new regulations on the yellow stuff went into effect.

Q: Television is awash with Hollywood private detectives. Do any real ones get into all these adventures? — P.A., Beloit, Wis.

A: Well, there is a John (Two-gun) O'Grady, who has had a long career as bodyguard and private investigator for the Hollywood crowd. As far as we know, however, shoot-outs on the freeway are not his style. He does claim to have bought back stolen jewelry and art works from underworld characters and once arrested a teenage girl peering into Peggy Lee's window. He also investigated and disproved the rumors that Jane Russell was a lush and helped her to gain custody of her adopted child in a divorce proceeding.

Q: I read that Jackie Onassis had to be convinced to fly from New York to her husband when he was ill in Greece. Can this be true? — Y.E., Birmingham, Mich.

A: We think not! Jackie was, on the contrary, so concerned about Ari's condition that it was she who overrode his relatives in Greece and insisted on having him flown out of the islands direct to a Paris hospital for intensive treatment. Most stories on Mrs. Onassis are imaginary speculation by the press. But we have this information on best authority.

JULIE: Away from it all ....

HOLLYWOOD'S TALKING: About that big he-man who has taken over that big star's life. Anytime she puts forth one of her famous objections to anything in their various entertainment projects, he assures associates not to worry. "I'll go home and give her a little loving and she'll do whatever I say," he brags.
